U.S. Casts Veto

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After 24 years, the United States cast its first Security Council veto Tuesday night in rejection of an African-Asian demand for complete isolation of Rhodesia and its white government.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost voted with British Ambassador Lord Caradon to kill a resolution sponsored by African and Asian countries condemning Britain's refusal to use force against the government of its former African colony and calling on all nations to sever all relations and means of communication with Rhodesia.

Yost said the United States had closed its consulate in Rhodesia, but the resolution "would amount to barring American citizens in Rhodesia from contact with the outside world and this we cannot support. "We cannot agree now not only to cut off all their communications with the rest of the world, but even to cut off all means by which they might leave Rhodesia."

Yost also said his government opposed the condemnation of Britain for not using force. There was speculation that the American veto was cast so that Britain would not have to stand alone, but a spokesman for the U.S. delegation refused to say whether the British had asked for such support.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik told the council the U.S. vote was "a dark page in the annals of the United Nations" because the veto had been used "to protect ... racist countries."

Yost replied that the Soviet Union had "exercised the veto more than 100 times, the last time to prevent council action over the Soviet invasion of a small country in Central Europe."

Malik admitted that he had vetoed a 1968 resolution condemning the invasion of Czechoslovakia but said he did so to protect that country from imperialism.

Since the council first met on Jan. 17, 1946, the Soviet Union has used the veto 105 times, Britain and France four times each, Nationalist China once and now the United States once.

The vote on the African-Asian resolution was nine in favor, Britain and the United States opposed, and four abstaining. The nine votes would have been enough to pass it had Britain and the United States not used the veto which the five permanent members of the council have.

School Levy Hike Approved

DEXTER - Voters in the Dexter school district yesterday approved a 20-cent tax levy increase 493 to 147.

The passage of the proposal means an increase from $3.65 tax levy to $3.85 per $100 assessed valuation.

The $3.85 levy, broken down, is $1.70 for the teachers fund, 50 cents for the building fund, $1.25 for an incidental fund and 40 cents for the debt service fund.

Superintendent T. S. Hill said the tax rate of $3.85 will make it possible for the Dexter district to qualify for additional state aid of $14 per pupil, which comes to approximately $28,000.

This is required because the assessment ratio in Stoddard county has been set at 27.28 per cent, short of the required 30 per cent.

Fourth Ft.Wood Soldier Dies Of Meningitis

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP) — Pvt. Don A. Denton, 18, of Amarillo, Tex., died of meningitis Tuesday, the fourth man to die of the disease in the current outbreak at this army post.

Denton was assigned to a basic combat training brigade. He was admitted to the base hospital March 12, and placed on the "very seriously ill list" a spokesman said.

Fort officials said there have been 50 meningitis cases since Oct. 1.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo. called for an investigation of training practices and conditions at the installation after the first three deaths and cited letters he said he had received from parents which indicated trainees were driven past their endurance and discouraged from seeking medical attention.

A three- man House subcommittee headed by Rep. Richard Ichord, D- Mo., conducted a one- day investigation March 6 and reported it was satisfied the Army was taking efficient measures to combat the outbreak.

Eagleton said he would continue to conduct his own investigation.

Viet Forces Overrun Another Base in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Another major Laotian government position fell to the Communists today with little or no resistance as North Vietnamese troops overran the supply base at Sam Thong and burned the adjoining village and the hospital the Americans operated. "This may signal the initial thrust southward," a source in Vientiane commented after the North Vietnamese victory 90 miles north of the capital.

As the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao drew close to Sam Thong Tuesday, the CIA's Air America charter line flew out the 15 to 20 Americans stationed there along with more than 2,000 Meo tribesmen and Laotian peasants. Another 4,000 fled earlier in the week as the Communist troops moved down from the Plain of Jars, 15 miles to the northeast.

The Laotian government's chief military hope, Gen. Vang Pao, reportedly had a force of about 7,000 Meo tribesmen in the area from Sam Thong to Vang Pao's headquarters at Long Cheng, 10 miles to the southeast. But the casualty report from the defenders at Sam Thong—three wounded—indicated resistance was negligible, as it has been since the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao began their offensive northeast o fthe Plain of Jars nearly five weeks ago.

There were unconfirmed reports of North Vietnamese military activity today in the vicinity of Long Cheng. Meanwhile, bombers from either the Laotian or U.S. air forces attacked an estimated 2,000 North Vietnamese troops reported on high ground overlooking Sam Thong, according to informed sources.

Sam Thong was a supply base for both Van Pao's army and an estimated 10,000 refugees from areas taken over by the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao. The base included an airstrip, a U.S. aid warehouse and hangars for Air America planes, as well as the hospital.

Sources in Vientiane said the attack on Sam Thong was the first since the base was built in 1968. It was not threatened when the North Vietnamese and the Pathet Lao occupied the Plain of Jars before being driven out by Vang Pao's forces last summer.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command said an Air Force F105 jet fighter was hit by enemy ground fire while on a combat mission over Laos Monday. The plane crashed in Thailand, and the pilot was rescued with no injuries, a spokesman said.

It was the fourth American warplane reported downed by enemy ground fire in Laos since the U.S. Command started announcing losses there on March 10. A fifth plane crashed due to unknown causes, the spokesman said. The crewmen aboard all the planes were rescued, he added.

Cambodia Overthrows Sihanouk

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodia's Parliament overthrew Prince Norodom Sihanouk today, charging the chief of state provoked the political crisis gripping the nation, Radio Phnom Penh announced.

Asian diplomats in Saigon received reports that Cambodian troops surrounded the Parliament building and had sealed off the airport in the capital.

The news reached the 47-year-old prince, who had dominated his kingdom's politics for more than 20 years, while he was in Moscow en route home from Paris. He left later in the day for Peking.

The cause of the crisis was violent demonstrations last week against the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodian border regions. During the demonstrations, Cambodians sacked the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong embassies in Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian radio said the reigns of power as chief of state were turned over to Cheng Heng, president of the National Assembly. The assembly, the lower house of Parliament, met in joint session with the Royal Cambodian Council, the upper house, and voted no confidence in Sihanouk.

A report received by the government in Saigon said the real power rested with two men— Gen. Lon Nol, premier and chief of the military forces, and Sirik Matak, a top government minister.

The two men are known to share doubts about the mercurial Sihanouk's neutralist policy, and were opposed to the 40,000,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops using border sanctuaries for forays into South Vietnam.

Nol, a conservative, was credited by some sources in Saigon with organizing the demonstrations against the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops. Others noted Sihanouk's grip on the country and believed he himself possibly orchestrated them from Paris.

An unofficial translation of the Phnom Penh broadcast, as heard in Saigon, said:

"Following the political crisis provoked by Prince Norodom Sihanouk in the past days, the National Assembly and the Royal Council in joint session, conforming to the constitution of the kingdom, unanimously withdrew their confidence in Prince Norodom Sihanouk. From this day, 18 March 1970 at 1300 (1 p.m.) the Prince Norodom Sihanouk ceases to be the chief of state of Cambodia and will be replaced by Cheng Heng, the president of the National Assembly, who will assume the function of the chief of state until election of a new chief of state in accordance with the text of the nation's constitution."

The Cambodian Embassy in Singapore said the Phnom Penh radio said later: "The new head of state said Cambodia will follow the same policies of independence, neutrality, territorial integrity and will respect all international treaties signed by her."

The radio called on the people of Cambodia to remain calm.

Earlier in the evening aides of President Nguyen Van Thieu handed him a message at a reception saying Sihanouk had been overthrown.

"I just don't believe it yet," said Thieu, who received the report at a reception. But he handed the message to an aide, who read newsmen this version in English:

"After a meeting between the Royal Cambodian Council and the Cambodian National Assembly, it was decided to overthrow Chief of State Sihanouk. The group named Cheng Heng, president of the National Assembly, as acting chief of state until new elections are held.

"Real power remains in the hands of Gen. Lon Nol and Sirik Matak."

Gen. Lon Nol is prime minister of Cambodia and chief of the country's 49,000-man armed forces. Sirik Matak is a top minister in the government, and he and the general are known to share doubts about Sihanouk's attempts to keep his country neutral in the Vietnam war.

Aides of Thieu indicated that the message came from Radio Phnom Penh.

Sihanouk left Paris last Friday, after the demonstration started, announcing he would stop in Moscow and Peking seeking help in getting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops out of his country. But his embassy in Moscow said today that the prince's plans to leave the Soviet capital still were indefinite.

Later, after the report from Saigon of the coup, a spokesman for the prince in Moscow said he had no advance warning.

Cambodian forces were reported to have made several attacks Sunday on some of the intruders in the western Mekong Delta but there has been no evidence of any mass exodus by the troops back into South Vietnam. Meanwhile, representatives of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have been meeting daily with Cambodian officials in Phnom Penh.

Keller Urges Zoning Group To Develop Growth Projects

Chairman Ira Keller told planning and zoning commision members Tuesday night they should began development of projects that would benefit Sikeston growth.

He said the commission up to now primarily has been concerned with zoning matters but has an obligation to do more.

Keller said: "We should dream, imagine and think of things" to improve the city.

City Manager W. Raymert Miller agreed a plan for capital improvements would be beneficial and it is commission's duty to recommend these things. Miller suggested creating a citizen's advisory group to assist in the development of plans.

The commission recommended two ordinances to the city council. One would prohibit the sale of undeveloped land until it is subdivided. City Attorney Manuel Drumm recommended the commission amend the resolution to allow for the sale of undeveloped land without subdividing under certain circumstances not harmful to the city's planning.

The other recommendatio would require building movers or owners to complete renovation of structures within four months after they are moved from one location to another. The mover or owners would also be required to post a $500 bond to be forfeited if the renovation work is not completed within the alloted time. There have been complaints about people moving rundown houses to new locations and letting them set for months without improvements. An example pointed out is a house moved last year to the corner of Murray Lane and Dempster street.

Drumm warned such an ordinance may not be legal and added the city probably could rid itself of such eyesores through condemnation procedures.

A rezoning request from a group of homeowners on Edwards street in the Felker-Sharp Addition was tabled for study. The residents object to rezoning to allow house trailers to be located immediately adjacent to their property.

The commission approved a plat of a Mc-Mar subdivision located west of Deavis boulevard submitted by John W. Marshall and Robert McCord.

Approved also was a request for rezoning the south part of lot 24, Lillian A. Smith addition, from single family to commercial. The request was made by Bob Nowell and Walter Carr.

Military Panel Urges Revamped Inquiry Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army investigative panel that charged two generals and 12 lower ranking officers with violating military regulations involving the alleged My Lai massacre has called for increased troop indoctrination against mistreatment of civilians and prisoners.

The special panel also urged revamping reporting procedures to ensure that inquiries into any future incidents will flow up the chain of command and not be blocked at company or battalion levels.

The recommendations were included in a report made public Tuesday that resulted in charges of dereliction of duty and failure to obey regulations against 10 field grade officers and three captains in the alleged massacre.

A 1969 Chevrolet pickup truck stopped for a right turn, when a 1970 Dodge tractor trailer behind him, driven by Roy Massey, 28, Maiden, tried to stop suddenly. A 1965 Ford, driven by Lauretta Wright, 55, Pulaski, Ill., pulled in the other lane quickly and ran headon into a westbound 1970 GMC pickup truck driven by James Stumbaugh, 51, Grand Rivers, Ky., the state patrol said all vehicles collided.

689 Died in Tornado 45 Years Ago Today

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Forty five years ago today the most violent and destructive tornado in the history of the United States swept out of cloud-laden skies over Ellington, Mo., and killed 689 persons.

No tornado nor group of tornadoes has matched that twister in the number of fatalities. It seldom has been equalled in size, width, speed and length of track on the ground.

Fat, black and ugly, almost obscured in the heavy cloud layer surrounding it, the tornado darted at speeds up to 70 miles an hour from Ellington in southeastern Missouri across southern Illinois, and finally lifted 219 miles to the northeast at Princeton, Ind.

Allen D. Pearson, director, and L.A. Joos, climatologist of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center, recalled the killer tornado in an interview.

"This was one of the fastest moving tornadoes ever known," Pearson said. "In a 3½-hour period, from 1 p.m. to about 4:30 p.m., the twister covered the area from Ellington to Princeton, leaving virtually total destruction in its path. It traveled from 60 to 70 miles an hour and never left the ground. Its average speed was 62 miles an hour."

"The twister injured some 2,000 persons," Joos said, "and caused damage which amounted to $16.5 million—around $80 million in today's money."

"It didn't look like a tortornado," Joos said. "This, along with its speed and tremendous size, are what made it so deadly. There are no known pictures of the tornado. But witnesses say you couldn't see a funnel in the traditional form. Instead, it looked liv si,o)uoilection of low, black thunderstorm clouds. It was extremely wide and the dark clouds surrounding it were unusually low."

Thirteen persons died in Missouri before the tornado spun across the Mississippi River. It killed 606 in Illinois, making that state No. 1 in the nation in tornado fatalities to this day with a total of 1,030. The highest death toll for a single city came next at Murphysboro, Ill., where 234 persons—7 per cent of the population — lost their lives.

Another 148 were killed at West Frankfort as the twister sped through clusters of small communities in the agricultural and coal mining region of southern Illinois.

It then crossed the Wabash River into Indiana, killing 25 persons at Griffin and another 45 at Princeton, where the twister finally left the ground.

The killer ranged from onefourth of a mile to nearly a mile wide, compared with an average tornado width of 400 to 1,300 yards. It covered a total area of 154 square mmiles.

"The exceptionally high speed was the reason for many of the deaths—along with the fact that the Weather Bureau didn't forecast tornadoes in those days and there weren't enough radios to provide a warning," Joos said.

"Imagine you're standing on a railroad track and try to jump out of the way of a train going 70 miles an hour when it's right on top of you. That's the way it was with this tornado. People didn't run to basements. There weren't many basements in the area and there wasn't time."

"But God forbid, ever, another one like that."

Airliner Survives Gunplay

BOSTON (AP) — A pilot shot in both arms landed an airliner with 73 persons aboard after a mile high cockpit struggle Tuesday night which left the copilot dead and a passenger seriously wounded. The passenger was charged with murder.

East Boston Municipal Court issued a murder complaint today against John J. DiVivo, 27, of West New York, N.J., in connection with the death of James E. Hartley, 31, of Fort Lee, N.J., the slain copilot.

DiVivo was reported in satisfactory condition at Massachusetts General Hospital, where he underwent emergency surgery for bullet wounds in the arm and abdomen. He was under police guard.

Passengers reported there was no panic aboard the plane after the shots were fired.

An Eastern Airlines spokesman said a struggle for the gun broke out after the passenger told the pilot, Capt. Robert Wilbur Jr., 35, of Fairlawn, N.J.: "Take me east."

The plane was then a mile high over the town of Franklin, about 30 miles south of Boston, making its final approach to Logan International Airport after a flight from Newark, N.J.

When the airliner landed a stewardess went to the cockpit, where she saw the copilot slumped in his seat, the passenger lying on the floor and Wilbur axing the plane toward the airport terminal buildings.

"My pilot is shot—shot," Wilbur radioed the control tower. "Where the hell do you want me to park this thing!"

At Massachusetts General Hospital both DiVivo and Wilbur were said to be in satisfactory condition.

An airline spokesman said the passenger had told the senior stewardess Christine Peterson, that he had no money to pay his fare—normally fgected in the air on such shuttle flights—and wanted to see the pilot.

Miss Petersen said the man drew a pistol and she led him to the cockpit door and told Wilbur the man wanted to see him.

"I'm busy," said Wilbur.

"You don't understand, he has a gun," Miss Petersen said.

She said the pilot then told her to bring the man in and to go back and tell the passengers everything was all right.

The struggle for the gun, the airline spokesman said, broke out after Miss Petersen left the cockpit.

In West New York, police said DiVivo had been working as a short order cook and had been living with his mother and sister.

Rush on in Congress for Restrictions on Explosives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alarmed by the lack of federal laws dealing with the rising tide of bomb violence, congressmen are rushing to propose legislation restricting current easy access to explosive materials.

Not only must the lawmakers grapple with the problem of actual bombings like those that have rocked New York offices and claimed the lives of two young blacks in Maryland recently, but they also must deal with threatened bomb assaults —threats that cannot be ignored.

A sample of the latter was disclosed Tuesday by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, who reported evacuation only minutes before of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving due to a bomb threat.

Scott, at a press conference at the White House, also said President Nixon had asked his staff to draw up recommendations for laws to protect federal property against bombings and bombing threats.

The spate of bombings and bomb threats also has stirred action in state capitals.

Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel has urged his state's legislature to restrict sales of explosives and provide life imprisonment for convicted bombers. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has said his state's laws also must be strengthened.

In Congress, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, has a bill making possession untaxed explosive materials a federal crime. The measure would levy a tax on transfer of blasting material and require registration of parties to such a transaction.

His bill also would make persons convicted of—or under indictment for—a felony, aliens or mentally ill persons ineligible to purchase explosives.

Scott said the President had asked his aides last Friday to prepare legislation that "would deal with bombings and with conspiracies to commit that act."

Despite the current rush to get new laws on the books, one Capitol Hill expert on weapons regulations says an obscure provision of the gun control law permits federal authorities to stop bomb carriers simply by nailing them for having an unregistered "destructive device."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We are a great admirer of Governor Hearnes, and if he says we need the income tax revision we guess we do.

But for a certain reason we are not going to vote for it on April the 7th, and our reason for not voting for it will make many vote for it.

Since we are not one of the majority who will get a reduction in our state income tax we are going to vote against the change.

But since Governor Hearnes says we need the money we are in favor of a 1 cent increase in the Sales tax. It is the fairest of all taxes, paid by everyone who spends any money, and that's what we want and probably won't get.

NEW THREAT TO MALL BUSINESS

A double- edged threat has appeared on the business scene - the one- bank holding company and its entry into other avenues of monetary gain. With a forward sweep of their financial sword these conglomerates slash at independent bankers and with a backward stroke they maim independent businessmen.

Thus far, the activities of these financial giants are still on a limited scale. But certain economic sectors have already begun to feel the effects, such as in the trucking industry and other small business.

Expanding into the trucking business, some one- bank holding companies have offered and provided "free" pick up and delivery service to trap correspondent deposits and other business from smaller banks and commercial accounts. They offer freight forwarding services tied in with bank services at combined reduced rates to obtain new accounts. At the same time, they extend preferred financial treatment in banking matters to the companies using their trucking services, thereby assuring retention of the shipments.

The result is the independent trucker is forced out of business because he does not have the enormous financial backing to lower rates or tie in banking services to compete with the business - owned service. When the independent trucker goes out of business, the small bank loses its freedom of choice in the selection of transportation methods and correspondent banks with which to transact business.

Both the independent banker and local businessmen who do not use the big bank's financial and trucking facilities are placed at an unfair disadvantage. They cannot compete in a market where preferred financial considerations are given to the competition.

No one seeks to condemn one- bank holding companies as such. In many instances their sound financial procedures have revived and stimulated firms faced with economic disaster.

It seems obvious, however, that these financial giants should be prevented from using their trucking facilities to induce potential customers to use their banking services or to tie these services together with the result that competition by independent trucking companies is eliminated.

Although there is no legislation to govern the extra-banking activities of one- bank holding companies at present, a House- passed bill- H. R. 6778 - is currently under review by the Sneate Banking and Currency Committee. Senate amendments to this bill could define and limit the activities of one- bank conglomerates- a necessary legislative move if the small businessman is to survive.

LIBERALIZING TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS

The pilgrimage of some 900 Americans to cut sugar cane for Fidel Castro has resulted in a flood of calls from irate Congressmen to the State Department demanding to know what can be done to punish them. The department's answer has been short and simple: Nothing. The Supreme Court ruled unanimously on Jan. 10, 1967, that persons with valid U.S. passports cannot be criminally prosecuted for visiting countries where travel is restricted by the federal government. A federal appeals court also ruled that a passport cannot be refused a travel ban violator.

But the restrictions remain in effect against travel in four countries – Cuba, mainland, China, North Korea and North Viet Nam. On Sunday, March 15, the current six-month extension of the curbs will expire. There have been eports that he administration is anxious to ease, or even abolish, the bans.

Easing of travel curbs to Red China was announced on July 21, 1969, for special categories of persons such as journalists and scientists. A limited relaxation of the trade embargo with Red China was announced at the same time. Now it is thought that an easing of the curb on business travel to the mainland will follow. The progress of the ambassadorial - level talks in Warsaw between the United States and Red China is being watched closely for clues.

The Cold War led to temporary bans on travel to certain countries. By May 1952, passports had been stamped not valid for travel to eight Communist nations: Albania, Bulgaria, Red China, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Rumania and the Soviet Union. Exceptions were made by specific endorsement for news correspondents. Three years later, restrictions on all but Albania and Red China were removed, but North Korea and North Viet Nam were added to the list. Cuba joined them on Jan. 16, 1961. Albania was removed on March 15, 1967.

Even if the United States were to immediately drop all restrictions on travel to the four countries, their doors probably would not swing open immediately. All have tight restrictions on who may enter their frontiers. Back in August 1957, the State Department drew up a list of 24 news organizations – later expanded to 35– that would be allowed to send representatives to Red China. But the Chinese never gave them visas.

OIL AND POLITICS

Probably no industry better represents the American ideal of competitive free enterprise than oil, with its glamorous tradition of the freewheeling wildcatter. Yet, few industries rely so heavily on government favors and interference with the open market. Such subsidies have "cost the American public $40 to $70 billion in the last ten years," estimates Dr. John M. Blair, chief economist of the Senate subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly.

These favors include the oil depletion allowance permitting producers to exempt sizeable portions of their income from taxes. The depletion allowance was cut from 27.5 per cent to 22 per cent by Congress last year. But the industry still sets production ceilings to maintain prices. And import quotas restrict foreign competition.

Oil men defend their privileges on the ground of national security. They say a strong domestic oil industry is mandatory if the United States, the world's largest consumer of energy, is to remain independent of foreign supplies in periods of international crisis. But Mr. Milton S. Friedman, the conservative economist, has written: The political power of the oil industry, not national security, is the reason for the present subsidies for the industry."

Many of the Industry's old spokesmen on Capitol Hill are gone, but its political clout has not been depleted. The drawn- out battle within the Nixon administration over oil import quotas is a sign of the undiminished strength of the oil industry. The 11- year- old system restricts the entry of cheaper foreign crude oil to 12.2 per cent of domestic production in states east of the Rockies.

The Senate antitrust subcommittee was told last year that a barrel of Middle Eastern oil can be unloaded in New York for about $1.50 less than a barrel of domestic oil of the same quality. American consumers are estimated to pay from $4 billion to $5 billion a year in added fuel costs because of limitations on the cheaper foreign oil.

President Nixon sent the problem to a special cabinet-level Task Force on Oil Import Control, headed by Labor Secretary George P. Shultz, in March, 1969. Most observers looked upon the action as a victory for the petroleum industry. In the face of considerable pressure, however, the task force began taking on some of the aspects of a runaway grand jury.

In its final report, released Feb. 20, the task force said the present import control program was not adequately responsive to "present and future security considerations." The report added that the present system had "spawned a host of special arrangements and exceptions for purposes essentially unrelated to national security..." It recommended that quotas be phased out and replaced by a tariff that would produce about $700 million yearly in new revenues while reducing prices to the consumer. Five of the seven members of the task force supported the report.

President Nixon thanked the task force members-- and appointed still another investigatory committee. Concern that oil and politics wouldn't mix in the 1970 congressional elections was said to be a prime reason for Nixon's decision to do little about import quotas at this time. "Republicans in the Northeast are pledged to lower consumer prices for gasoline and heating oil, while those from the West and Southwest are pulling the opposite way for crude producers," noted The Wall Street Journal. To consumers, the President seemed to be telling the oil industry to continue to "fill 'er up" at their expense.

The total national health bill for 1968 reached $51 billion – including everything connected with health from doctors' fees to private health insurance premiums and accounting for 6 per cent of the nation's total gross product.

NEW YORK (AP) — The human mind is the most tremendous theater on earth.

On its inner stage great dramas of memory and fantasy are endlessly played ... days of ordeal and glory ... moments magical ... times palled by tragedy or made luminous by love.

Even in sleep that stage is never quite empty. For even in dreams we still imagine and remember. No manmade theater, however vast, could hold the actors and scenic backgrounds that flit second by second through the three-pound human brain.

Your own inner stage is well supplied with memories of places and faces if you can look back and remember when—

If an old-timer complained he wasn't feeling up to snuff, he didn't have to explain to the youngsters what snuff was.

A child's first reaction to a parental order was to obey it, not challenge it.

More Americans were awakened by the cock-a-doodle-doo of a rooster than the ring-a-ling-aling of an alarm clock.

It was a rare week that went by without a fellow seeing at least one dog fight in the streets. The usual way to break it up was to throw water on them and dampen their battle ardor.

You could buy a pound of hamburger for a dime and a bottle of milk or loaf of bread for a nickel.

The German Kaiser Wilhelm was regarded as mankind's worst villain—until Adolf Hitler came along and made him look like a philanthropist.

One of earth's greatest certainties in a good Catholic family was that, whatever might be set on the table on Friday, it wouldn't be meat.

A plumber had a hard time making a living.

If you asked a stranger what time it was, he reached for his watch pocket instead of glancing at his wrist.

It was taken for granted in a small town that if a girl went away to college she must have felt she was too homely to win a husband and had decided to become a schoolteacher.

A harried housewife could call up an employment agency and hire a good reliable maid—just like that.

If a fellow had trouble with his eyeglasses, he could go to the dime store and pick out a pair that didn't make him squint.

A man's word or his handshake was as good as his signature . . . the railroads ran on time . . . and nobody tried to sell America short.

Federal Buying Scheme for Cities, States Dropped

The General Services Administration has dropped its controversial program to establish central Federal purchasing for state and local government agencies following protests from Sen Joseph M. Montoya (D-N.M.) and the National Association of Manufacturers.

An official of the Budget Bureau says the GSA had misinterpreted legislation enacted last year. Final regulations to be published in the Federal Register will delete the GSA proposal.

Senator Montoya charged that the GSA purchasing program would bypass small businessmen and "put them out in the streets." He commented that "this would be the height of socialism."

In a letter to NAM President W.P. Gullander, Senator Montoya thanked the NAM for its support in opposing the GSA program. "I certainly appreciate the support you and your organization have given me in this endeavor, and I want you to know that without such support it would have been much more difficult, and a favorable decision could not have been reached as quickly," he wrote.

Mr. Gullander had voiced NAM's concern over the GSA move, noting that "the open interpretation of GSA is far afield, indeed, from the restricted concept of lending professional and technical people" to undermanned state and local governments.

TOP PRIORITY

When passage of governmental medical programs such as medicare and medicaid opened the way for assumption by taxpayers of the cost of care for large groups of citizens, many felt the millennium had been reached. But they were wrong. It takes more than the pouring out of billions of tax dollars to provide adequate medical care. It takes doctors, health personnel and facilities to complete the job.

The director of the American Medical Association's Division of Medical Education, in testifying before a congressional subcommittee, has pointed out that a special need now exists for more physicians, and appropriations for medical school aid should be given first priority. He said, "It is the strong conviction of the AMA that medical education should be supported financially as fully as possible to meet the pressing need which exists today for an increased number of physicians." Today, thousands of doctors are working unconscionably long hours to fulfill the high obligations they assumed upon achieving the eminence of medical practitioners in the most advanced medical system in the world.

To add to the rolls of the medical profession within this system is more than an overnight job. As long as the system exists, U.S. medical men will fight to preserve its high standards and the concept of personal attention to which they feel U.S. citizens are entitled. They are endeavoring to make government medical programs workable realities. In return, they ask that priority be given to the necessary congressional appropriations for expansion of medical training facilities so that in the years to come there will be enough qualified doctors to meet the growing demands for medical services.

How Good Is Driver's-Ed?

Driver education courses aren't what they are cracked up to be. So charges McCall's magazine, pointing out that the traffic carnage is getting worse, particularly among the youngest drivers.

Despite the doubling of driver education during the past decade, the number of 16- and 17-year-old drivers involved in accidents resulting in death or injury shot up 50 per cent between 1964 and 1968. This is precisely the age group which is taking driver education courses in school.

Three-quarters of all high school programs offer 30 hours of classroom lectures and six hours' experience behind the wheel, a combination considered "much too thin" by the National Safety Council. Recent studies in Mississippi and California comparing the safety records of driver-ed graduates and drivers who didn't take a course showed almost identical results for both groups.

The article broaches the heresy that perhaps dad is not the worst driving teacher a young person could have, although this has long been an axiom among educators. It recommends that parents consider a driver-ed course as only the beginning of a teen-ager's training and that they be prepared to devote 20 hours of their own time to hiving him supplemental instruction.

It also suggests that parents keep a young driver on probation for his first two years behind the wheel and that he is probably safer if he does not have his own car during that time.

WHY SUBSIDIZE REVOLUTIONARIES?

The Chicago Tribune recently disclosed that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has given more than $1 million during the past two years to the revolutionary Student Health Organization (SHO).

This same newsletter contained a story entitled "Castro's Revolutionary Medicine" and quotations from Mao Tse-tung. In another newsletter, SHO stated: "We should try to understand, relate to, and work with other revolutionary groups . . . we should start working closer with the largest of these organizations, the Students for a Democratic Society."

The HEW grants were given to the group for the supposed purpose of conducting "health surveys." Instead, several of the SHO members who received the money organized demonstrations during the 1968 Democratic National Convention. Another, who received a salary of $120 a week from HEW to act as an "area coordinator", is under indictment for mob action and aggravated battery.

Another "coordinator" on the HEW payroll has stated: "We must prepare ourselves and the masses for armed struggle. People in our organization should be prepared to defend themselves and to use all the weapons necessary for revolutionary struggle."

Senator Strom Thurmond expressed the views of many citizens when he said: "This is a gross distortion of HEW's mission and a preversion of our responsibility to the taxpayers."

This subsidy benefitted no one except the destructive elements in our society. We cannot help those in need by giving money to groups who aim to destroy our Republic. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- Going all the way back to 1899, the Army Engineers have had a powerful legal weapon to prevent polluters from dumping garbage into America's streams and harbors.

Yet more often than not, they have catered to the politicians and the polluters. The results are seen in the nation's spoiled rivers and beaches.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., sometimes gets so angry with the nature spoilers that his words come with a splutter. But there is a bellclear tone in the outrage of his House Conservation Subcommittee over the Army Engineers' failure to enforce the 1899 Reuse Act all these years.

The love affair between Congress and the Engineers Corps has been an open secret. Together they have created pork-barrel projects, so dear to the hearts of Congressmen, on the streams and in the harbors of every congressional district.

But Reuss is ready to break off the long romance over the Corps' failure to protect the public from pollution. In a confidential staff report, his subcommittee blasts the Army Engineers for letting American waterlands turn into refuse dumps and instructs them to get busy cleaning up.

PROMISES VS. PERFORMANCE

The 1899 law gives the Corps power to ban from all navigable waters and tributaries "any refuse matter of any kind" except liquid sewerage. Lately, the Corps has made some noises about carrying out the law, but the report complains: "There have been recent instances where there appeared to be a substantial gap between promises and performances."

Adds the Reuss committee: "The Corps of Engineers must make an about-face in handing applications for new landfills, dredging and other work in navigable waters."

Incredibly, the Corps has compelled the conservationaists to prove their complaint against the polluters but hasn't required the purveyors of sludge and garbage to show their dumping is harmless.

In submerged lands and tidelands, the Corps has carefully ignored the fish and wildlife service which might have opposed despoiling the breeding places of ducks, sea life and many small mammals.

In fact, the committee reports "questions whether the Corps' practice of allowing anyone to fill or construct structures landward or harbor lines without a permit has been valid since 1899.

The Corps emphasized navigation and port uses, and gave little or no attention to such matters as fish and wildlife, air and water pollution control ..."

SEWAGE NOT REGULATED

All along, the Corps could also have made developers and others give data on the "effluent to be discharged from the proposed sewer outfall," but didn't bother.

The 1899 act, concludes the report, has been used against ships which dump garbage but only "sporadically."

The staff report demands that the Corps "arrest and take into custody" offenders.

"Both the Corps of Engineers and the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration should request the Attorney General to institute injunction suits," it urges.

If the Army Engineers take the Committee's advice, instead of listening to the siren song of sewerage from the special interests, maybe the 1899 statute can bring some cleanliness to America before another 75 years go by.

EX-CONVICTS SELL GUNS

The Internal Revenue Service is quietly licensing ex-convicts as gun dealers. Even though a Federal law bars felons from selling guns, licenses have been granted to men convicted of housebreaking, bootlegging, forging, sex offenses and other crimes.

But at second look, it may be on the up and up. The law has a clause that permits IRS Commissioner Randolph Thrower to grant exemptions if the convicted men have been rehabilitated.

Perhaps the best known of the 130 gun licensees with criminal records is the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., convicted in 1965 fo conspiring to defraud the government. The chemical giant, now called Olin Corp., makes Winchster-Western arms and ammunition. Without the exemption, it couldn't move its guns out of the factory.

Less famous felons, now licensed to sell guns, include men convicted of draft dodging in 1952, sending an obscene letter in 1963, carrying a concealed weapon in 1954, committing perjury in 1963 and carnal knowledge in 1941. In each case, rehabilitation was reported.

Most of those seeking exemptions own or work in rural stores of sporting goods firms that sell firearms.

Additional data on the convicts was hushed up by Thrower, casting a pall of suspicion on his whole exemption proceedings. But after two weeks, the IRS Commissioner grudgingly recognized that the Freedom of Information Act applies to his office along with the rest of the federal government, and he released some details to this column.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Playing with cash: Seek to protect $80 billion pension funds from Mafiosi and high-living trustees and officials

Washington, D.C.: -- Some years ago a Frank Amato, allegedly La Cosa Nostra's account executive in charge of southwest Pennsylvania, held court. Literally. He was assigned a jurisdictional dispute between the New York Three-Finger Brown (Luchese) "family" and the Detroit "borgata."

The issue was simple. He was to decide which mob would loot the Teamsters Central States, Southeast and Southwest Area Pension Fund. He ruled for the Detroiters.

That fund now has some $700 million, of which, according to the usual authoritative sources, some $125 million is our on "tainted" loan.

But this is pin money compared with the funds President Nixon's new pension-welfare protection bills would cover.

In all, there now are upward (much upward) of $214 billion in pension pools -- private and public sector funds. Covering some 40 million Americans now are plans totaling over $80 billions. No one really knows just how much of this money mound is in private self-insured (as compared with funds handled by big insurance companies) operations. Some say $20 billion; some estimate $35 billion. Some put it much higher. Some say that these funds grow at the rate of $9 billion annually.

Point is there is virtually no law which gives the Secretary of Labor, or any other federal agency the power to force certain reporting. Or to police this fantastic cash cache.

Under the current laws, theft, embezzlement, kickbacks and bribery involving employe benefit plans are federal crimes. Thus these are mostly in Justice Dept., and therefore FBE, jurisdiction.

But a long string of brutal abuses and breaches of fiduciary relationships and simple decency still are behind the law.

The word "brutal" is justified. After all, pension funds are the monies for the physical, economic and mental security of the older folks, and yes, widows and children. Those who steal or mishandle this cash steal from the aged, the helpless and from men and women who have worked from 20 to 30 years believing they'll be no one's burden.

Thus, now President Nixon wants to give the Secretary of Labor new powers -- to investigate, monitor and mentor the gargantuan funds.

And time it is, too. There is no law now which prevents a convicted thief, Mafiosi or ex-Murder, Inc., goon from being put in as administrator of a pension fund though the law says he cannot hold union office for five years after he is released from prison.

There is no law preventing pension fund administrators to concentrate on their problems in long and expensive "conferences" in Acapulco, Hawaii, Miami, Vancouver (for Esterners) and the Bahamas for Westerners.

There are organizations which make it possible for pension fund trustees to draw from $1.500 to $2,000 for expenses for three or five-day conferences -- and add the price of first-class fares to the tab. Some conference leaders live in expensive suites filled with cases of whiskey, a beauty or two, and handsome gifts from travel agents who want the booking business.

Some trustees spend as much as 25 days to a month each year at such conferences. And of course there are always side excursions.

And then there are the payroll padders – the labor and management trustees and administrators who put their kin on the account as lawyers, accountants, etc., at high fees. Many trustees serve at good pay for their occasional meetings.

No less avaricious are the men who deal in swinging loans. Not all of them are Mafiosi. Some are legitimate lawyers. Some have moved in the very highest government and Congressional circles. They get finders fees for making the "connection" on a loan. They go to banks and make "points" -- meaning they get a cut on the money swing-in.

It's nothing for small locals to have $8 or $10 million in a fund and use some of it to push up a stock , buy in personally, dump it but "get out" (sell) before the market slides off on the security. Nor is it uncommon for money to be made on the purchasing of pension fund financed developments – commercial buildings, residential complexes and health resorts.

There are independent unions run by mobsters -- and run legitimately. Why run a crooked local, or network of locals using names similar to those of legitimate unions, when one can roll up a multimillion-dollar pension fund and swing it? It's not only big business – it's massive business.

A new law is as long overdue as a cure for cancer. In 10 years this money will be racing up to the trillion mark. That's a lot of cash to be lying around loose. There are a lot of itchy fingers reaching for it before it can get to the old folks. Now let's see who in Congress delays the making of a new law.

Father's Family in Nudist Camp Does Not Re-create Denmark or Japan

Dear Ann Landers: In August while driving cross-country on our vacation, my husband said he had a surprise for us -- two days in a nudist camp. Before I had a chance to think about it, we were there.

I was deeply concerned about the effect it would have on our 14-year-old daughter, and our son, age 12. To my surprise, the kids were all for it.

When we undressed at the camp my main worry was the boy's reaction to seeing his mother naked. But that didn't seem to make an impression. He was much more interested in his sister's body. Our daughter, I noticed, took a good look at her father and he took a good look at her. They whole thing made me very uncomfortable.

Within minutes the children were romping off making friends with other children their age. We stayed two days and I did not care for the experience.

Since we've been home the kids have been walking around the house nude. They have also become much friendlier with one another. I'M ashamed to say this, but I worry about leaving them home alone together. My husband says it is "healthy." What do you think? -- Bare Facts

Dear Facts: The authorities with whom I consult agree that nudity is healthy -- in a society where it is part of the culture. But the United States IS not Japan and it isn't Denmark, either.

A 14-year-old girl should not suddenly see her father nude, and he shouldn't be looking at her either. The same goes for a mother and her 12-year-old son. Ditto the brother and sister. My advice is to consult a counselor and ask him to help get the kids back on the track and into clothes again.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Mother of Two and a Half" struck a responsive chord in my heart. The woman who wrote was expecting a third, unplanned child. Her husband insisted that she give the baby away or he would leave. You said, "invariably, these kooks change their minds and I'll bet yours will, too."

I faced the same situation 20 years ago and believe me, Ann, these kooks don't always change their minds. My kook even had adoption papers drawn up but I refused to sign. When he said, "It's me or the kid --" thank God I had the guts to say, "Sorry, but it has to be the kid."

These 20 years have been rough with no help from him -- financial or otherwise -- but I've never regretted my decision. Today I have a beautiful girl in college. The kook is bumming around the country -- and no one cares what happens to him. I've told myself a hundred times -- a man who would ask his wife to make such a choice isn't worth the powder to blow him off this earth. She's better off without him. -- California Kate

Dear Kate: Well said. Thanks for saying it.

Confidential to Mystified Mom of Memphis: Any child who is old enough to write is old enough to drop a line saying, "thanks for the gift." Yes, this goes for boys as well as girls. Good manners is not a matter of gender. You're nudging that kid of yours about 8 years too late.

THE GREAT ESCAPE and MAGNIFICENT SEVEN, both Steve McQueen classics, are being shown as a double feature at Malone Theatre today through Saturday. Both are in color, blood and all. The promise of these two films is exciting action... a lot of it!

ESCAPE takes place in Germany, and involves American prisoners of war... and the escape of our hero, McQueen, on a motorcycle stolen from a German soldier. Beautiful bike riding, if motorcycles move you at all! And some humor.

SEVEN is about a group of gun- fighters who answer a plea for help, and try to save a village of Mexican farmers from a Mexican bandit. McQueen shares the hero spot with Yul Brenner, but I watched Charles Bronson more closely than I watched the leads. Too much blood, but then, all war must be terrible or we might become too fond of it.

ROMEO AND JULIET and STERILE CUCKOO both playing second week at Malco Twin.

END TO COLD FEET

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) Fifty-year-old John Kennedy solved his chronic problem of cold feet by inventing a pair of electric shoes. Tired of trying to stamp warmth back into his toes he decided to put his army training as an engineer and his experience as an electrician to work.

The result electrically heated inner soles for his shoes and boots which look like mini electric blankets.

A wire runs from the shoes up John's trouser leg to a battery in his pocket. An effective gadget. John says, but not for the ladies unless they wear slacks.

Youth Conference Set

JEFFERSON CITY — After wading through he dense thicket of environmental confusion, a group of Missouri young people has scheduled an ambitious August 21-23 conference on environmental quality at Camp Windemere, near Roach, Missouri.

The full meeting will be called the Governor's Youth Conference on Environmental Quality.

The steering committee met at Department of Conservation headquarters on February 28 and worked out a program for the full conference which will attract some 300 youngsters from 15-20 years.

The full group will discuss in order: ecology, population, pollution (water, air and so- called "eye" or esthetic) and finally conservation education iaction -- what the youngsters can do in their home communities.

Representatives of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Campus Y, CYC, 4-H, Future Farmers and Future Homemakers of America, Red Cross Youth and the YWCA set up the program.

A Rare Find

HANNIBAL — Pheasants are rare in Marion County and one hunter wishes they were one rarer. Conservation agent Harold White arrested the man for taking a pheasant out of season.

"During court the judge asked me how many pheasants were in this area," White says. "I told him that over the year I've been in the county I doubted I'd seen over a dozen. The defendant interrupted and said he'd lived here all his life and that was the first one he'd ever seen and hoped it was the last.

"Judge Ogle smiled and said, 'Fifty dollars and costs."

WON WIDENER AT EIGHT

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — Primordial II, an 8-year-old Argentinian-bred, became the oldest horse to win the Widener Handicap at Hialeah Park when he scored in 1965. However, in 1969 the Chilean-bred Yumble matched that record. He also was eight.

A STRONG KICKER

DENVER (AP) — Bobby Howfield, British soccer kicker for the Denver Broncos, led the American Football League in the 1969 season by booting 43 of 64 kickoffs over the end zone so they could not be run back. He also kicked 69 of 70 points after touchdown in the last two seasons. His only miss was on a block.

Al Faces Legal Hurdles

By MIKE RATHET Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The American League was headed for court today, trying to clear three legal hurdles blocking transfer of the Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee—or face the possible alternative of operating as an 11-team league this season.

That possibility existed following Tuesday's developments in which:

—The reported transfer of the Pilots to Milwaukee was blocked by a restraining order obtained in Tampa and papers served by the State of Washington, both prohibiting the American League temporarily from moving the financially plagued club.

—The American League adopted a resolution in which it said, "There are ... reasons why the American League ... cannot continue financial support of the Pilots beyond the amount already committed."

"Our hands are tied right now," said American League President Joe Cronin after the day-long session, during which the owners were served papers by deputy sheriffs from Tampa and a representative of the attorney general's office in the State of Washington.

Cronin also said, "It's almost impossible to operate with 11 clubs," but the league's attorney, Sandy Hadden, admitted it's a "theoretical possibility."

The possibility could arise if the legal restraints cannot be removed in time for the opening of the season less than three weeks away and the Pilots' current owners, apparently running out of money, are forced to continue operation.

They, naturally, could only do that as long as their funds held out.

American League owners already have given the Pilots a loan of $650,000 to tide them through spring training. As for the possibility of the American League coming up with more money, the resolution seemed to rule that out.

Neither of the two most interested parties, meanwhile, had much to say after the latest developments in the muddled situation.

Bud Selig, president of Milwaukee Brewers Inc., a 14-man group seeking to acquire the Pilots, said, "There's not much I can say at this time." Max Soriano, representing the Pilots, said, "I have no reaction."

The rug was pulled out from under Al owners just before the start of their meeting, supposedly called to officially sanction a move from Seattle to Milwaukee, when Tampa deputy sheriffs appeared on the scene with temporary injunctions forbidding the move.

The injunction was sought by Alfred Schweppe, a Seattle attorney and season ticket-holder, who has paid $775 for tickets and parking for the next four seasons.

At the same time, the State of Washington appeared on the scene through an attorney who served papers in an $80 million suit brought Monday to stop the transfer or sale of the Pilots. Schweppe also has a suit pending in Seattle.

Those are the three legal hurdles that have to be cleared before the American League can make a move. It is apparent that, barring the restraining order, they would have moved — to Milwaukee. They all but said so in the resolution, pointing out:

"But for that restraint at this meeting it (the American League) would have given consideration to a transfer."

They still can do that if the legal restraints are removed in time.

Shannon May Be Phils Pick

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies may have their eye on Mike Shannon, St. Louis third baseman, as a replacement for Curt Flood in the seven-player deal that sent Richie Allen to the Cardinals.

Flood is suing organized baseball over the reserve clause and has said he will not report to the Phils while his suit is pending.

Writing from St. Petersburg, Fla., where the Phils walloped the Cards 14-2 Monday, Sports Editor Bob Broeg of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said today no one in an official capacity would comment on the players the Phils prefer to complete the off-season trade.

But, Broeg said, it is believed Philadelphia would like Shannon, a right-handed hitter, with the view of returning him to his regular position, right field. Shannon was shifted to third base to make room in the outfield when Roger Maris was acquired from New York in 1967.

Broeg wrote that "the suggestion was made, entirely unofficially, that if the Redbirds were reluctant to short themselves at third base, the Phillies would make available 35year-old Tony Taylor, either with or without further consideration."

HUNTING ACCIDENTS DECLINE

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Hunting accidents in New York state in 1969 declined for the fourth straight year, reports the Conservation Department.

There were eight fatal and 95 non-fatal accidents during 1969. This compares with nine fatal and 121 non-fatal mishaps in 1968.

Statistics compiled by the Bureau of Law Enforcement show that of the total number of accidents, 47 were self-inflicted, 49 hunters were shot by companions and seven were caused by unknown hunters.

Shotguns were involved in 56 accidents, rifles 38, other firearms seven and unknown two.

Moberly Advances In NJCAA Tourney

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Four-time champion Moberly, Mo., was one of six victors in first-round play in the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament Tuesday.

The Greyhounds, 29-7, nipped a tough Tyler, Tex., crew 95-94 as Andy Knowles scored 28 points and Virgil Tucker added 20. Tyler, 33-6, was sparked by Bobby Thompson's 26 points.

In other games Tuesday, North Dakota School of Science defeated Gadsden, Ala., 103-99, Grandview of Des Moines, Iowa, slipped past Broome Tech of Binghamton, N.Y. 99-93 in overtime, Northeastern of Miami, Okla., tripped Ephriam, Utah, 89-86, Lake City, Fla., dumped Kennedy-King of Chicago 72-63 and Casper, Who., blasted Christian College of Dallas, Tex., 83-69.

Today, Twin Falls, Idaho, tackles Ferrum, Va., and Vincennes, Ind., meets Bloomington, Del., to complete the first round.

There will be one consolation game and two second round contests in the evening.

The Wahpeton, N.D., club withstood Gadsden's late surge as Paul Hanson scored 30 points and Jim Jenkins added 29. Scoring honors went to Gadsden's Larry Ginn who had 31.

Grandview never headed Broome Tech until the teams went into overtime. Bob Hansen scored eight of his 34 points in the extra stanza to pace the winners. James Brodie had 22 for Binghampton.

Northeastern staged a late rally to gain its victory as Larry Brown scored 25 points and Corum Turner 20. Richard Kemp had 20 points for Snow.

Lake City was in control throughout with Larry Quarrels hitting for 24 points and Bernard Coller for 23. Sam Allen had 21 for Kennedy-King.

Casper blitzed the Texans by a 21-8 margin in the last six minutes to claim victory. Abe Steward had 22 points for the Wyoming team and Steve Davidson scored 18 for Dallas.

UCLA Prepaired To Defend Title

By TOM SEPPY Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach John Wooden says his UCLA team is physically and mentally prepared to defend its NCAA basketball championship titlebut he expects quite a battle from New Mexico State.

Wooden also disputes State coach Lou Henson who says the Amazin' Aggies are as physically strong as UCLA but lack the Bruins' speed and quickness.

"I've never run across two players more agile than Collins and Criss," said Wooden Thursday night after his team held a one hour workout at Georgetown University after arriving from the West Coast.

He referred to New Mexico State senior guards Jimmy Collins and Charley Criss.

UCLA, winner of 26 and loser of 2, was the first team to arrive for the finals at the University of Maryland this week. The others, New Mexico State, Jacksonville and St. Bonaventure, arrive today.

All but State work out at College Park today. The Aggies will hold a session Thursday morning.

Wooden said he brought his team in a day ahead of the others because he wanted the players to adjust to the time difference between the west and east coasts.

UCLA meets State, 25-2 for the Western championship Thursday night after Jacksonville, 26-1, plays St. Bonaventure, 25-1, for the Eastern title.

The winners of the two games play for the NCAA championship Saturday at 4:00 p.m. EST on national television (NBC).

Henson had nothing but accolades for the UCLA squad in a telephone news conference Tuesday afternoon for local writers covering the championship.

He said he believed the current UCLA team is as good as the three containing Lew Alcindor that won the NCAA championship the past three years.

Fans Get To Vote On All-Star Teams

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is a friend of the fan.

He proved that Tuesday in announcing that voting for the All-Star teams is shifting from the players to the fans.

The fans lost the ballots after the 1966 game at Washington, when exuberant Cincinnati fans stuffed the ballot box in favor of Reds' players.

"We had a very fine team of Cincinnati Reds that year for the National League," Kuhn joked. He made the announcement in St. Petersburg, Fla., with telephone hookups to New York and Fort Lauderdale.

The All-Star managers will continue their traditional selection of the starting pitchers and the reserves.

Under the new arrangement, Kuhn said the Gillette Company will print and distribute computerized style ballots to 75,000 voting outlets. These, plus voting outlets in major and minor league ball parks will provide a tremendous voting outlet, Kuhn said.

The voting will begin on May 30 and continue until June 28. During that time, the ballots will be regularly counted by a computer. The All-Star Game is scheduled for July 14 in Cincinnati.

There'll be only one vote per person. The voter will be required to fill in his name and address on the ballot.

The votes will be reviewed by a committee of "baseball and sports media experts" to be named by Kuhn. If the panel disputes a selection, the position will be voted on by the 12 managers and 12 players representatives from the league in question.

Giants Head For Japan

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

The Seattle Pilots aren't going to Milwaukee just yet, but at least one major league baseball team is on the move this week. The San Francisco Giants leave today for a nine-game tour of Japan, the first time a big league club has made the trip before the season.

The entire squad is making the trip, including slugging first baseman Willie McCovey, whose inflaoed right eye has been diagnosed as a side effect of a drug prescribed for arthritis in his right arm.

Dr. San Kimura of the University of California Medical School prescribed new medication and said McCovey's trouble should disappear before the Gians return to the States March 31, one week before the start of the season.

The Giants prepped for their trip by dropping an 8-6 exhibition contest Tuesday to the Chicago Cubs. The winners snapped a 6-all tie on eighth-inning singles by Cleo James and Paul Popovich.

Most of the baseball news, though, was made off the field.

—All sorts of papers were served on American League owners meeting in Tampa, Fla., preventing transfer of the Seattle franchise Milwaukee for the time being.

IPitcher Steve Carlton, the St. Louis Cardinals' last holdout, signed a two-year contract and said he was "completely satisfied." The Cards had ordered him to report under a section of baseball's reserve clause.

—Commissioner Bowie Kuhn disclosed that voting for the allstar teams is being given back to the fans.

The Grapefruit League highlight was Minnesota's first exhibition victory after nine defeats, a 5-2 triumph over the Cardinals. Jim Kaat hurled six strong innings, Tony Oliva drove in three runs and manager Bill Rigney had a ball — the game ball.

"Leo Cardenas came up to me after the game," Rigney reported, "and said, 'We waited a long time for this; you should have the ball.'"

While the Twins were breaking the ice, the Detroit Tigers continued to be beset by problems. They committed eight errors and the Kansas City Royals clobbered Mike Kilkenny, Fred Scherman and Dennis Saunders for 19 hits in a 12-4 rout.

Kilkenny took the loss, one of the few Irishmen who wasn't whooping it up on St. Patrick's Day.

Slick-fielding Ron Woods continued to wield a hot bat in his bid to crack the New York Yankees' outfield. Woods hammered a two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning, capping a huge rally — the Yanks trailed 8-0 after three innings — that climaxed in a 9-8 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. It was the third consecutive game Woods won with his bat. He hit .181 last season.

Gary Nolan pitched five scoreless innings and Johnny Bench and Ted Savage homered as the Cincinnati Reds tripped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2. Claude Osteen of the Los Angeles Dodgers worked a similar shutout span and rookie Steve Garvey slammed a three-run homer in a 5-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tryouts For Big Red Open

ST. LOUIS — The Football Cardinals will have their "spring weekend" for rookies again this year, with draft choices and free agents visiting here April 3-5.

The weekend workout also will be open to anyone who is interested in a tryout with the Big Red. The only prerequisite is that a candidate must contact Head Coach Charley Winner in writing in advance of the clinic. Winner will isaue invitations.

This will be the third year of the weekend clinic, when Cardinal rookies get acquainted with the coaching staff and start on some football work. About 40 players are expected.

Players will arrive here Friday, April 3, take physicals Saturday morning and will work out Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning, returning to their homes Sunday afternoon.

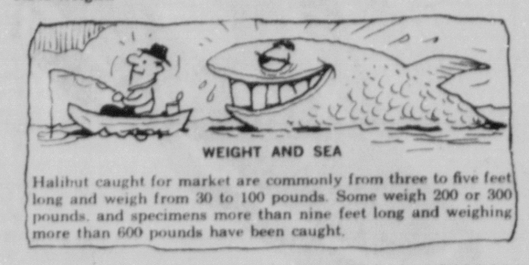

"The program has been a good one," Winner said. "It serves several purposes, beneficial to the players and to the coaches. We get a chance to do a little evaluation, like finding out which ones need to work on specific exercise programs, which ones need to gain or lose weight, and so on.

"We also check each boy's physical condition, and run them for time and in agility drills. We get a good general impression, and the boy gets a chance to learn what he must do to be ready for training camp in July."

Last season, nine Big Red rookies saw action during the season, a group which included offensive linemen Vern Emerson and Wayne Mulligan; defensive linemen Rolf Krueger and Cal Snowden; linebacker Chip Healy and defensive backs Roger Wehrli, Terry Brown, Mike Wilson and Nate Wright.

PAUL BUNYAN'S BOOTS? No, it's a photographic illusion of the mythical giant woodsman. The legs belong to a forester straddling a newly planted seedling fir in Canada. It's part of MacMillan Bloedel's forestry program aimed at planting 100 million trees by 1975.

WEIGHT AND SEA

Halibut caught for market are commonly from three to five feet long and weigh from 30 to 100 pounds. Some weigh 200 or 300 pounds, and specimens more than nine feet long and weighing more than 600 pounds have been caught.

WHO WAS "THE FATHER OF AMERICAN FOOTBALL"?

The late Walter Camp was called the "father of American football" and is credited with doing more for the intercollegiate game than any other man.

NEW MADRID high school basketball Coach Carroll Compton holds the Number One team trophy and Coach of the Year plaque presented by the Daily Standard's Sports Editor Ron Jaynes at an assembly. The Indians basketball team were voted by the Sports Panel of Coaches as the Number One team in the final poll and coach Compton was named as coach of the year.

Newspaper Honors 25 Athletes, 2 Coaches And New Madrid Indians Cage Team

Four big reasons why New Madrid finished with the best record (25-1) of any Southeast Missouri basketball team this season is spelled out today as the Daily Standard announces its All- Star All- Academic and coaches of the year as selected by the sports panel of coaches at its annual meeting last week.

Of course it takes a team effort, but the four mentioned spearheaded the drive.

Heading up the Indians big four honorees is coach Carroll Compton, who in 13 years of coaching led his team into the schools first state tournament and was voted the district's coach of the Year over Dexter's Jim Hart and Cape Central's Howard Garrett.

Compton's team was also picked as the "Number One" squad in Southeast Missouri for the 1969- 70 season in the final poll, racking up nine of a possible 15 first place votes for 141 points over runner- up Dexter's 131 points and four first place votes.

Two Indian players were selected to the 15- player Daily Standard "dream team." They were 6- foot- 3 James "Red" Tucker and 5- foot- 7 George "June Bug" Ross.

The fourth honoree of the Indians squad this season was reserve- starter Mark Baker, who with his defensive work and outstanding work in school earned him a place on the paper's 15- player All- Academic squad.

Headling up the teams which honor 25 cage players. is 6- foot- 6 scoring star Ken Andrews of Puxico, who was named to his third straight All- Academic team and to his first All- Star team as selected by the paper.

The little man shared the spotlight with he big boys on the Dream team as four players chosen for one of the 15 spots were under six- feet tall.

The All- Star teams only underclassman was 6- foot- 4 Steve Bock of Delta, who also was named to the Academic squad alcng with Advance's Tony Jenkins; Neelyville's Larry Wills and Don Botsch of Bernie, who were members of both squads along with Andrews.

Selected for "Rookie Coach of the Year" honors was David Bone of Oran, who faced a rebuilding year after four veterans graduated off the Class M state runners- up a year ago. Also mentioned for the honor was Randy Benson of Risco and Allen Pritchard of Oak Ridge.

Panel members selected Carl "Goober" Townsend and Bob "STP" Johnson as referees of the year for the second straight year in a row.

Two fo the players will be furthered honored tomorrow when the All-State team is announced.

A total of 25 basketballers, were selected to the teams as five players were chosen both ways.

All- Academic repeaters are Tony Jenkins of Advance and Puxico's Andrews.

Dexter tied New Madrid with placing the most players on the All- Star squad, landing its one- two scoring punch of Lloyd Hyten and Mick Lynch among the top 15.

Six of the top 15 led their teams to regional championships and into the state tournament of their respective class.

Andrews (6-6) was the biggest player selected to either team while Ross was the smallest 5-7).

Maffeo, Cool Apprentice Rider, Is a Hot Jockey at Hialeah

MIAMI (AP) — On the first Saturday of May of 1967, Charlie Maffeo made the 80-mile trip from Lexington, Ky., where he worked on a horse farm, to see the Kentucky Derby. He found a place near the quarter pole.

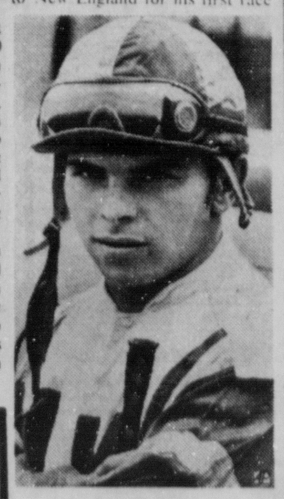

"I could watch the riders making their moves in the stretch and saw Bob Ussery come on with Proud Clarion," he recalled at Hialeah Park recently. "I was a great thrill to me. I want to be there on a Derby horse some day, and I want to win it."

Currently a top apprentice at Hialeah, Maffeo is farther than 80 miles from the Derby but much closer in stature. In 1965 he emigrated from his native Avelino, Italy, to Boston, having never seen a horse race. This year he came to Hialeah's mid-January opening fresh from setting a riding record at nearby Tropical Park, where he had 66 winners to be leading jockey.

"I couldn't speak English when I came over," the 22-year-old rider said, of his early days as an auto mechanic in Boston. "No one spoke Italian. Not being able to explain to anyone what was needed or what was wrong with the cars made it tough.

"Finally the boss politely suggested it might be best if I went to school and learned English, but I put it off. Friends got me interested in the race track, and an aunt introduced me to trainer Dick DeStasio after an open house at Suffolk Downs. I went to work for him as a groom."

Maffeo, who now speaks perfectly acceptable English, also had the experience of breaking yearlings in Kentucky, then returned to New England for his first race

last April. Some 30 races later he got both his first and second winners by wrapping up the daily double at Rockingham Park on July 15.

By the end of 1969 the 5-foot-1 apprentice of 108 pounds had 210 victories.

The competition is tough at Hialeah, especially with Sandy Hawley, a 20-year-old Canadian apprentice, off to a strong start the first few weeks.

"Maffeo has the greatest communication with a horse I've ever seen," says trainer Vinnie Blengs, who took Maffeo to Florida with DeStasio's blessing. "He's the coolest kid in the world — nothing bothers him. Horses really run for him."

THE GOOD OLD DAYS in farming may bring back fond memories. But, they might not all be pleasant as, remember the farm machinery seat at left? It calls to mind jouncing, bouncing rides on a horse- drawn cultivator; a spine- wrenching jolt when the wheel of a hay rake hit a woodchuck hole; the searing hot mteal of a grain binder blistered by a July sun, and long cold days riding a plow behind horses. The modern tractor seat used today, at right, might be a symbol of farm progress, certainly in the comfort department. Seats were among University of Missouri- Columbia College of Agriculture Centennial displays shown on the UMC campus.

Coffee Corner

—by Cherie—

I've always heard that "fact is stranger than fiction," and so it is!

Haven't you ever heard the story of the dog who followed its former owners from New York to California, without ever having any idea where they'd gone and taking 3 years to do so? Well, the only thing I can figure out is that dogs must have a built-in radar system, else how could they possibly do these things.

You're all familiear with our twelve- year old poodle Coquette de Viverette, better known among her everyday circle of friends as Coco that fat blonde. Anyway, about a week and a half ago she was riding in the car with me when I stopped by someone's house for about 3 minutes. While visiting at the door her poodle, a gorgeous chocolate male went prancing out to my car and spoke, (I should have been listening more carefully to their conversation), sweetly to my Coco. He was taken in the house and we left. Now, the windows of the car were up so scent can have nothing to do with this strange tale. About four days ago, Coco suddenly became to the neighborhood not just any fat old blonde, but that luscious fat French blonde Coquette and popularity was the price we paid. Night before last we arrived home at midnight, let Coco out for a minute while I told the babysitter good night, turned back to the dog and she had vanished! Well, I searched and called and got madder and madder and finally informed Charles (who was quite amused that she had put one over on me), that I was to old for this sort of nonsense and so was she and I was going to bed and forget her! Sure I did. At one I got in the car and rode up and down the streets just dreading what I might find lying in a ditch as she never goes out of her yard and only knows a car as something to go riding in. No luck, I was frozen and returned home to warm my feet on Charles back and go on to sleep. Sure I did. At two I again arose, this time I found a golf sock to cover one foot and a bobby sock on the other to keep me warm and sallied forth again, and who do you think I saw peeking around the corner of the house. One little black nose topped by a blonde fluff of puff, and one little black nose topped by a brown fluff of puff. Now you tell me how that old dog had found her way to that male Romeo poodles home and lured him back with her. She was so pleased, she came huffing and puffing up the steps and him right behind her and me ready for wholesale murder. No wonder it took her two hours, I'll bet she had to stop every ten feet and rest, I haven't seen her make it to the end of the driveway without resting at least once in years. Now men of science explain that one. I will say one thing for her, she does have marvelous taste, I couldn't have picked a prettier fellow myself; see there, she may be fat, but she's still got class!!!

Broseley Man Beaten, Robbed

BROSELEY - Doyle F. Smith, 22, Broseley, reported to the highway patrol that three men beat and robbed him of $30 about 12:30 a.m. Sunday as he was hitchhiking along highway AA about a half-mile south of highway 60.

Smith told Cpl. Robert Mouser of the patrol that he flagged down a car, believed to be a 1960 model Ford, and the three occupants jumped out, beat him, and robbed him. Smith said the men were Negroes.

True seaweeds do not flower. They have sex, but not flowers or anything comparable to them.

Banquet Circuit Grows For Coleene McCollum

WEST POINT, Miss - After flame-haired Colleene McCollum got the ax from her controversial television show, it didn't take her long to tire of bridge clubs and the relaxed social life of the Golden Triangle.

In fact, being fired from her 12-year-old TV show may have been a blessing. She is now one of West Point's most traveled women. She scoots from coast to coast giving lectures on sex and marriage to rollicking audiences. She spoke last year at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet in Sikeston, Mo. Her fees range from $200 to $600 per engagement

"There's a tremendous demand for a good woman speaker - especially on a provocative subject," she says.

Although her bouncing effervescence has been tempered somewhat by being on the same platform with such luminaries as Hubert Humphrey and Shirley Temple Black, she is quick to chuckle about the one time she was left speechless.

"I was on a flight to speak before a convention and this man sitting next to me asked what I did. I told him I lectured on sex and marriage. He paused, looked at me searchingly and asked "which do you prefer?"

Mrs. McCollum says she looks forward to a time when her two children finish school and her agents in Montreal, Dallas nd Chicago no longer have to turn down requests for appearances. So far she has lectured in 36 states and two foreign countries.

After college at Blue Mountain, Miss., Mrs. McCollum studied opera and theater at Juilliard School of Music in New York and worked with experimental television in the early 1950s.

"While in New Pork I auditioned for a Eugene O'Neill play on Broadway and lost the part of a Maine lady ot Patricia Neal who became an instant star," she laughs.

Although her Mississippi drawl lost her the part, it helped her to make her niche in New York.

"I had to go to work and ended up the only gentile in an orthodox Jewish clothing firm in Manhattan. They hired me because they thought my southern accent would help to draw curious Yiddish-speaking customers," she said.

Progressing from theater auditions and radio and television commercials she ended up in Northeast Mississippi not far from her childhood home of Tupelo and married a softspoken West Point pharmacist, H. Owens McCollum.

She got her own hourly TV show entitled Something for the Girls on a regional station in the mid-1950x. "But," she said, "after 12 years I was fired because the program became too controversial."

"We talked about birth control, the seamy side of politics, religious phonies and spiritualism. The FCC was leaning on controversial shows so off the air I went."

Helping bounce her off the airwaves, she recalls, included guests weird to the area such as a Nazi and even "a Cajun commedian who later bombed on the Ed Sullivan Show."

She is not likely to win many points with women's club members.

"One thing I preach to women is to not get involved in lots of things. There's nothing mind expanding about playing bridge or going to club meetings that don't accomplish anything.

"There's too damn many things going on like the PTA and garden clubs that sap a woman's time, and before she knows it she has nothing left for herself or her family."

After being bounced off the air and quickly finding herself bored with the club life she preaches against, she consulted with friends and put together an address on sex and marriage.

She is now writing a book entitled "How to Have an Affair With Your Husband."

Although sex and marriage is her theme for nearly every address, she alters the format to "bear the traffic."

"If I speak to young sophisticated women I let all the stops out, but my talks toned down for chamber of commerce-type mixed gourps."

April 2 Date for Delivery

BENTON - Holders of 1969 stored corn on their farms should remember the date of April 2, Kenneth Vowels, office manager of Agricultural Stablization Conservation Services, said today.

All who have farm stored corn are being notified to deliver the grain by this date, because of general storage conditions in the area. The office manager said all postcards must be completed by producers and returned to the county office prior to April 2.

These farmers who stored corn may either repay the loan, deliver the commodity to Commodity Credit Corporation or request to hold the grain until July 31. The latter request is for producers, who have permanent storage and are equipped to safely store corn through the period.

In the event the storage is extended, written applications must be filed with the county office and approved by the state committee. The grain must be sampled by the county office and graded No. 3 or better and must contain no more than 14.5 per cent moisture. If approved for the extended storage the producer must retain the quality and quantity throughout.

Vowels reminded producers that grain stored on the farm cannot be sold, fed to livestock, or moved from the storage structure without approval of the county committee. This applies to corn, soybeans, wheat, and grain sorghum in storage structures. Holders of the loans need only to visit or telephone the county ASC office to obtain release of the grain.

Balloting Slated at 4,646 Precincts

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— Missourians will be voting in 4,646 precincts at the April 7 referendum on the income tax revision bill.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick released the county-bycounty precinct list today. It compares with 4,705 precincts in the November 1968 general election.

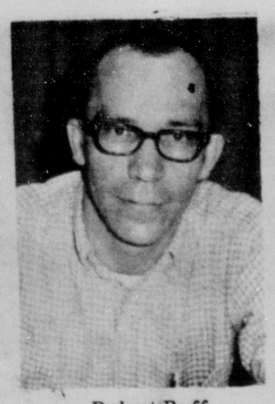

This time, for the first time, citizens will vote on all subjects — school boards, city officials, the income tax and local issues — at the same polling place. The change was made by the 1969 legislature in an effort to modernize Missouri election laws.

The result was that some precincts had to be re-aligned, and some consolidated.

State Capitol Occupants Honor Wearing of Green

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — William E. Robinson, Missouri state treasurer, showed up at his office Tuesday with his normally snowy hair dyed kelly green.

A reporter made a doublecheck to assure himself that it wasn't money green. It wasn't. It's definitely the green of "the ould sod."

Robinson's office is in the southeastern corner of the capitol. In the northwestern corner are the offices of a man who is Irish 365 days of the year.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick doesn't have enough thatch on his head to dye, green or any other color. But he more than made up for it.

Normally his office is replete with green—rugs, furniture, ink pens...

Tuesday, all his staff wore green-dyed carnations. The men wore green suits if possible and all wore green ties of various shades. Kirkpatrick served rolls with green dyed fruit centers and green fruit punch to visitors.

The women wore green dresses or suits and green carnations. Kirkpatrick issued a county by county list of precincts for the April 7 referendum election on the income tax revision — typed with a green ribbon, of course.

Someone sent him a green loaf of bread and he also got a big badge making him an "official shamrock inspector."

Kirkpatrick said Robinson stopped by and he admired the treasurer's slick green hairdo. Then he said with a gleam in his eyes:

"Wouldn't it be awful if it didn't wash out like the barber said it would?"

Bernie Native Named to Wisconsin Historical Post

MADISON, WIS. - Judge Thomas H. Barland, Eau Claire, president of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, today announced the appointment of Dr. James Morton Smith as the new director of the Society effective July 1.

Dr. Smith, a noted historian of colonial America, author of many scholarly historical works and now a professor of history at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., was a visiting professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, in 1964-65.

A former editor of publications and acting director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, an organization sponsored by Colonial Williamsburg, Inc. and the College of William and Mary, and director of the Coe Foundation Institute in American Studies at Hampton Institute, Smith will assume the director's position vacated by Dr. Leslie H. Fishel, jr., now president of Heidelberg College' at Tiffin, Ohio. He will succeed Dr. Richard A. Erney, Madison, who has been acting director since June, 1969. Dr. Erney will resume the position of associate director of the Society.

Judge Barland said:

"The Society's selection committee searched widely to bring to Wisconsin the best talent to be found for this important job. In Dr. Smith we have found scholarly eminence, administrative ability and exceptional potential for this most demanding position, and we are indeed fortunate to obtain his services."

Born in Bernie, Mo., May 28, 1919, Smith is married to the former Kathryn Hegler of Benton, Ill., they have two children, Melissa Jane, 18, and James Morton, Jr., 13.

Dr. Smith graduated from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, in 1941, and holds a master of arts degree from the University of Oaklahoma, Norman. He received his doctorate from Cornell University in 1951. He has taught at Butler University, Indianapolis, Ohio State University, Columbus, the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va.; and Duke University, Durham, N.D. In 1966 he joined the faculty at Cornel University.

Author of articles and scholarly reviews, and recipient of many fellowships and awards, Smith has written four books on history and has contributed to history textbooks. Among the titles he has authored are: "Freedom's Fetters: The Alien and Sedition Laws and American Civil Liberties"; "Liberty and Justice: A Historical Record of American Constitutional Development''; "Seventeenth-Century America: Essays in Colonial History"; and "George Washington: A Profile". He is now completing a three-volume work on the correspondence of Jefferson and Madison.

Noting Smith's extensive academic experience, Judge Barland commented: "In addition to Dr. Smith's imposing scholarly achievements, he brings to Wisconsin a deep interest and conviction of the need for popular presentation of history."

Smith has served on the board of editors of the Journal of Southern History, the Editorial Committee of the Papers of John Marshall and as the chairman of the Editorial Board of the George Mason Papers.

Smith, a member of the Organization of American Historians, American Historical Association, the Southern Historical Association, Historic Ithaca, and the International Commission for the History of Representative and Parliamentary Institutions, served in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve in World War II attaining the rank of lieutenant.

Danforth Rules Teacher Insurance Part of Compensation

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth Monday clarified the duties of school boards which buy insurance for their teachers.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, asked for the opinion last November and a week ago criticized Danforth for delay in answering his request.

Danforth held that if a school board buys insurance for its teachers, the premiums must be considered as part of the teachers' compensation. Therefore the total amount is subject to deductions for the withholding of state income tax and for contributions to the teachers' retirement system.

He said insurance premiums must come from the teachers' fund.

Municipal League Endorses Tax Plan

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Directors of the Missouri Municipal League voted unanimously Monday to endorse the state income tax revision proposal. The public will vote on the proposal April 7.

Jaems Egan, Florissant mayor, urged the organization to become active in supporting the tax. He said the league represents about 75 per cent of the Missouri population and 357 cities.

Each year consumers spend an increasingly large amount of their income for services ranging from major repairs, to minor adjustments. Buying services is different from buying goods, which a consumer can examine, touch and see before purchasing. When buying services the consumer places his trust in the person performing the service.

Your Better Business Bureau suggests you know the firm's reputation before you engage his services. Although most service firms are honest, there are a few which cause a majority of the complaints. Be careful when a concern offers service at an extremely low price. Reputable firms will provide written estimates and give approximate cost of their services before contracting to do the work, and a full itemized statement when the service is completed.

Your best assurance is to deal only with a service firm you know is reliable. When in doubt, check the experience of other customers or contact your Better Business Bureau.

Eastland Fears Indoctrination Of Cane Cutters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1,000 Americans who recently journeyed to Cuba to harvest sugar cane are "being indoctrinated and trained to attack and destroy our government and institutions," Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., charged Monday.

The young Americans sailed from Canada last month with the announced purpose of harvesting the sugar cane. But Eastland said they would be of little or no help in that job.

"It is not a likelihood but a very clear and present danger that these militant revolutionaries will return to the United States to impiement the Communist purpose of causing chaos, confusion, and outright revolution in our institutions of higher learning, in the streets of our cities, and across our nation," Eastland told the Senate.

He said his internal security subcommittee would soon begin hearings into the matter.

Meanwhile, the State Department announced it would ease restrictions for travel to mainland China for anybody with a "legitimate purpose."

Restrictions, however, would remain in force for Americans wanting their passports validated for travel to Cuba, North Vietnam and North Korea.

Bloomfield Man Burned In Explosion

BLOOMFIELD — Forrest Jones, 71, of Route two, suffered severe burns of the face when an LP gas tank exploded at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Jones had started a heater in a camper on his pick up truck shortly before 5 p.m., and then went back to his house. When he returned to he camper, which was parked in a garage, and opened the door, the explosion occurred. It is believed that a small LP tank attached to the heater exploded

Neighbors took Jones to the Dexter Memorial hospital, where he was found to have suffered second and third degree burns of the face area. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harold Jones of Bloomfield, reported that he is improving.

Blaze Destroys Caruthersville Drug Store

CARUTHERSVILLE

Prescription Drug Store was destroyed by fire Tuesday according to the Pemiscot County Sheriff's Department. The building and its contents were lost.

The Hayti fire department was called to assist in fighting the blaze at 3 a.m., and helped keep the fire from spreading to other buildings. Firemen believe the fire started upstairs in an apartment, although no official word has been received as to how the fire started.

Jerry Dudley of Caruthersville was the store's owner.

Einstein's theory of relativity said that time would pass more slowly aboard a space ship going at extremely high speed than it does on earth. The World Almanac notes. Showing how at least one aspect of time's relativity is common experience. Einstein said; "When you sit with a nice girl for two hours you think it's only a minute. But when you sit on a hot stove for a minute you think it's two hours. That's relativity."

Hand-Operated Bakery at No Loss for Customers

FRONTENAC, Kan. (AP) — It is 3 o'clock on a Sunday afternoon. The bread is out of the oven. Its aroma fills the air. Customers, who have been waiting, begin picking up the loaves while they are still hot.

This is the Frontenac Bakery, in a small building two blocks off Frontenac's main street. Frontenac is just north of Pittsburg.

Buying bread here is not merely a matter of stocking the larder. It is an excursion into the past.

The bakery disdains automation. It makes bread as it was made years ago. In this place the human hand is still much in use.

The Italian-born Vacca founded the bakery Feb. 14, 1900.

"We make only 300 to 500 loaves a day in the week," Mike Spritzer said. "On Sunday we make more. Sunday is our big retail day. We're closed on Tuesdays and Saturdays."

The bakery's long, hard-crusted Italian loaf is its No. 1 product.

"It is cooked on the bricks in the oven," Spritzer said. "We make what we call Frenchbread from the same dough. It is cooked in pans and the crust is softer."

Except for the work of an old electric mixer and slicer, everything is done by hand.

Spritzer gets up early to fire the furnace. Until six or seven years ago it was fired with wood. "Wood got expensive and we converted to gas," he said.

After the old Dutchess oven reaches 600 degrees the heat is turned off. Baking begins at about 400 degrees. The bread is cooked with the retained heat.

About 1 p.m. on weekdays the bread starts coming out of the oven and customers begin picking it up. Some of it is sliced, but most isn't. Sacking is by hand.

Work is done with a small staff. Martin Spritzer still helps out part time. So does Mike's wife, Irene, and Mrs. Mary Konek. Mrs. Zola Davis works full time.

The fixture around the place in Geno Giacometti, an employe 41 years. His fingers, working in dough, seem to have eyes. How many loaves of bread does he guess he has handled.

"About 15 million," he said.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Trailer Camper Devises His Own Radio Antenna

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I have good news for those owners of campers and travel trailers who cannot get radio reception. We used our camper for three years without a radio before we discovered how to get up to 15 different stations. Take approximately 25 feet of insulated wire, loop the center six or seven times to about 12 inches in diameter and lay the looped portion on your transistor radio. Run the ends outside through a hole drilled near where the radio sets. Attach one end of the wire to the camper or trailer and ground the other end to a six- or eight-inch piece of metal (a screwdriver will do) stuck in the ground. I tell all my traveling friends about this and all say it has worked for them.—EARL

DEAR EARL—I do very much the same thing with a radio that plugs into an electric socket and did not have very good reception. A key tied to the end of the wire which hangs out the window did the trick for me.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am a skier who usually must wear glasses. I do not wear them when I ski but do when riding the chair lift back to the top of the slope to enjoy the scenery. I would appreciate hearing of a clever way to carry my glasses when I am not wearing them. Surely I am not the only skier with this problem.—D. M.

DEAR POLLY—I was always forgetting which clothes had stains on them until the laundry was washed and hung on the line and I would see them. Now I clothespin each stain before the clothes go into the hamper. These pins are a reminder to treat the spots before laundering.—MRS. J. M.

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Over Teased whose synthetic hair pieces are looking dull and lifeless. She should wash them as usual, rinse in clear water and then rinse in a warm water solution with about ¼-cup of fabric softener. The pieces come out soft and manageable.—SALLIE

DEAR GIRLS—A gentleman whose business is the grooming of wigs told me that using a mild shampoo and rinsing would make synthetic hair pieces easy to brush out but he had known of those who added the softener. The piece can be dried naturally or under a warm (not hot) air dryer.—POLLY

A GLANCE AT POETRY

BY CHARLES FRANCIS BRADY

NOTHING GOLD CAN STAY
By Robert Frost

Nature's first green is gold,
Her harvest hue to hold.
Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.
Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden Sank to grief,
So dawn goes down to day.
Nothing gold can stay.

Nature was frequently the theme for Robert Frost (1874-1963), one of America's best known poets. In today's column, amateur poets express their thoughts on nature.

REMEMBER?

The wind blows the morning
by
And clouds are set beneath
the sun,
Nothing left but to laugh or cry,
Then look for a mirror - a
magic one.

A tall tree stands alone
A bird sings on a hill,
Whispering grasses green and unproven,
Day lies dying in the chill.

A million years, by day and night
The mourning bell does rest
and sigh,
Only their sun shines so bright,
Who will remember- today I die!

NATURE'S ACROBATS
Old leaves..
Dry leaves.
Skittering across a bench
of winter - dead lawn,
Refugees clinging tightly
To a woven- wire fence
as if to a freedom wall,
Acrobats soaring through Cold air as only birds should do...
Oaks and sycamores lose
leaves,
Flat and curved,
each taking its own path
Away from the mother branch
To make room for new buds and spring.

—Sami,
Sikeston, Mo.

AUGUST TRIOLOGY: 1967
(p3)

A cool autumn day
the brisk winds of change pull leaves from indifferent trees like aged hairs,
baldness slipping in,
I button up my coat a little more;
do I dread the day

me and not the air.
—TLORM,
Ark.

AND THE LEAF FALLS

See the little leaf floating
through the air.
The day is fair but there's no
one to care
or to wonder.

Winding and weaving while
gracing the sky.
It's free to fly but first it had to die
and I shudder.

I walk alone through that dream
down the footpaths of my mind with my footsteps keeping time to a melody laced with rhyme
and I'm wondering
just where I am going.

You're not alone my pretty
one.
The blinding sun is shadowing my run
from man's blunder.

Balloting Slated at 4,646 Precincts

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— Missourians will be voting in 4,646 precincts at the April 7 referendum on the income tax revision bill.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick released the county-bycounty precinct list today. It compares with 4,705 precincts in the November 1968 general election.

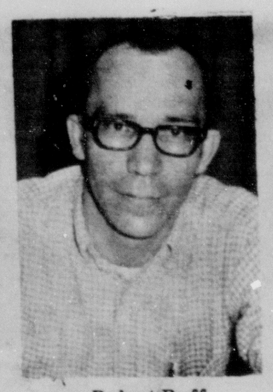

This time, for the first time, citizens will vote on all subjects — school boards, city officials, the income tax and local issues — at the same polling place. The change was made by the 1969 legislature in an effort to modernize Missouri election laws.

The result was that some precincts had to be re-aligned, and some consolidated.

State Capitol Occupants

Honor Wearing of Green

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — William E. Robinson, Missouri state treasurer, showed up at his office Tuesday with his normally snowy hair dyed kelly green.

A reporter made a doublecheck to assure himself that it wasn't money green. It wasn't. It's definitely the green of "the ould sod."

Robinson's office is in the southeastern corner of the capitol. In the northwestern corner are the offices of a man who is Irish 365 days of the year.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick doesn't have enough thatch on his head to dye, green or any other color. But he more than made up for it.

Normally his office is replete with green—rugs, furniture, ink pens...

Tuesday, all his staff wore green-dyed carnations. The men wore green suits if possible and all wore green ties of various shades. Kirkpatrick served rolls with green dyed fruit centers and green fruit punch to visitors.

The women wore green dresses or suits and green carnations. Kirkpatrick issued a county by county list of precincts for the April 7 referendum election on the income tax revision — typed with a green ribbon, of course.

Someone sent him a green loaf of bread and he also got a big badge making him an "official shamrock inspector."

Kirkpatrick said Robinson stopped by and he admired the treasurer's slick green hairdo. Then he said with a gleam in his eyes:

"Wouldn't it be awful if it didn't wash out like the barber said it would?"

Hijacked Plane Pilot Nephew Of Mrs. Poage

Captain R. M. Wilbur Jr., whose Eastern Airliner was hijacked Tuesday night, is a nephew of Mrs. Elmer Poage, 313 East Kathleen St. He is a son of Bob Wilbur, who formerly lived in Sikeston.

The hijacker commanded Captain Wilbur, who was bound for New York, to fly east toward the Atlantic Ocean. The man shot and killed the co- pilot, wounded Captain Wilbur in both arms and then shot himself. The hijacker is reported in a critical condition.

Bernie Native Named to Wisconsin Historical Post

MADISON, WIS. - Judge Thomas H. Barland, Eau Claire, president of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, today announced the appointment of Dr. James Morton Smith as the new director of the Society effective July 1.

Dr. Smith, a noted historian of colonial America, author of many scholarly historical works and now a professor of history at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., was a visiting professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, in 1964-65.

A former editor of publications and acting director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, an organization sponsored by Colonial Williamsburg, Inc. and the College of William and Mary, and director of the Coe Foundation Institute in American Studies at Hampton Institute, Smith will assume the director's position vacated by Dr. Leslie H. Fishel, jr., now president of Heidelberg College at Tiffin, Ohio. He will succeed Dr. Richard A. Erney, Madison, who has been acting director since June, 1969. Dr. Erney will resume the position of associate director of the Society.

Judge Barland said:

"The Society's selection committee searched widely to bring to Wisconsin the best talent to be found for this important job. In Dr. Smith we have found scholarly eminence, administrative ability and exceptional potential for this most demanding position, and we are indeed fortunate to obtain his services."

Born in Bernie, Mo., May 28, 1919, Smith is married to the former Kathryn Hegler of Benton, Ill., they have two children, Melissa Jane, 18, and James Morton, Jr., 13.

Dr. Smith graduated from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, in 1941, and holds a master of arts degree from the University of Oaklahoma, Norman. He received his doctorate from Cornell University in 1951. He has taught at Butler University, Indianapolis, Ohio State University, Columbus, the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va.; and Duke University, Durham, N.D. In 1966 he joined the faculty at Cornel University.

Author of articles and scholarly reviews, and recipient of many fellowships and awards, Smith has written four books on history and has contributed to history textbooks. Among the titles he has authored are: "Freedom's Fetters: The Alien and Sedition Laws and American Civil Liberties"; "Liberty and Justice: A Historical Record of American Constitutional Development"; "Seventeenth-Century America: Essays in Colonial History"; and "George Washington: A Profile". He is now completing a three-volume work on the correspondence of Jefferson and Madison.

Noting Smith's extensive academic experience, Judge Barland commented: "In addition to Dr. Smith's imposing scholarly achievements, he brings to Wisconsin a deep interest and conviction of the need for popular presentation of history."

Smith has served on the board of editors of the Journal of Southern History, the Editorial Committee of the Papers of John Marshall and as the chairman of the Editorial Board of the George Mason Papers.

Smith, a member of the Organization of American Historians, American Historical Association, the Southern Historical Association, Historic Ithaca, and the International Commission for the History of Representative and Parliamentary Institutions, served in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve in World War II attaining the rank of lieutenant.

Danforth Rules Teacher Insurance Part of Compensation

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth Monday clarified the duties of school boards which buy insurance for their teachers.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, asked for the opinion last November and a week ago criticized Danforth for delay in answering his request.

Danforth held that if a school board buys insurance for its teachers, the premiums must be considered as part of the teachers' compensation. Therefore the total amount is subject to deductions for the withholding of state income tax and for contributions to the teachers' retirement system.

He said insurance premiums must come from the teachers' fund.

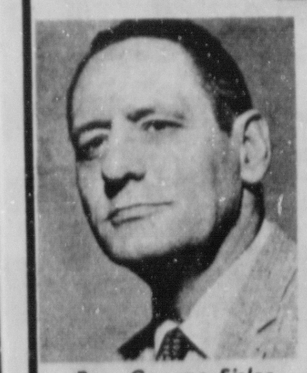

Municipal League Endorses Tax Plan

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Directors of the Missouri Municipal League voted unanimously Monday to endorse the state income tax revision proposal. The public will vote on the proposal April 7.

Jaems Egan, Florissant mayor, urged the organization to become active in supporting the tax. He said the league represents about 75 per cent of the Missouri population and 357 cities.

Frankly Speaking

By
THOMAS F. EAGLETON
U.S. Senator—Missouri

WASHINGTON IN BRIEF — Department of Labor acceptable Laos. Some of the facts with to President Nixon, Congress respect to American military passed a new, less expensive participation in Laos are slowly emerging. The truth is that we are significantly engaged in Laos — in a way strikingly reminiscent of our early involvement in Vietnam back in the 1950s.

If there is one thing on which services for some 6,000 children all Americans agree, it is that we don't want no more Vietnams. Senator Symington has held extensive cutters must have looked hard to hearings on the subject of Laos, pick out this computer study and he has been leading the fight against a in 19 billion dollar to have the full nature of our bill participation there made known to the American public. President still plans to spend "The public has the right to know what is going on," he says. I agree. The public owes Senator Symington a great debt of gratitude for his thorough analysis of the escalating American role in Laos and for much his diligence in pressing the Administration to make the facts— all the facts— publicly available.

DENTAL CARE FOR POOR CHILDREN. Well, not this year, is a perfect example of wasteful appropriations bill for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the

No one disputes that our current best field tank is better than any tank any other nation has or is developing. The MBT-70 was to be a "dream tank." Yet after hundreds of millions of dollars and seven years, the Army still can't make its "dream tank" work.

Last year the Senate accepted my amendment to cut $10 million from the tank's appropriation.

Now the Army has announced that the MBT-70 will be no more. Unfortunately they're not dropping the project; they're just changing the name. Hence forth the MBT-70 will be known as "Tank, Combat, Full Tracked: 152MM Gun-Launcher XM803." For short, I assume.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT. I would like to close with this item from a recent newsletter written by Senator Stephen M. Young of Ohio:

"We Senators could take a tip from this: The Lord's Prayer has 56 words; Lincoln's Gettysburg Address 266; the Ten Commandments 297; the Declaration of Independence 300. A recent government ordin on the price of cabbage ha 26,911 words!"

Bloomfield Man Burned In Explosion

BLOOMFIELD — Forrest Jones, 71, of Route two, suffered severe burns of the face when an LP gas tank exploded at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Jones had started a heater in a camper on his pick- up truck shortly before 5 p.m., and then went back to his house. When he returned to he camper, which was parked in a garage, and opened the door, the explosion occurred. It is believed that a small LP tank attached to the heater exploded.

Neighbors took Jones to the Dexter Memorial hospital, where he was found to have suffered second and third degree burns of the face area. His daughter- in- law, Mrs. Harold Jones of Bloomfield, reported that he is improving.

Blaze Destroys Caruthersville Drug Store

CARUTHERSVILLE — Prescription Drug Store was destroyed by fire Tuesday according to the Pemiscot County Sheriff's Department. The building and its contents were lost.

The Hayti fire department was called to assist in fighting the blaze at 3 a.m., and helped keep the fire from spreading to other buildings. Firemen believe the fire started upstairs in an apartment, although no official report has been received as to how the fire started.

Jerry Dudley of Caruthersville was the store's owner.

Einstein's theory of relativity said that time would pass more slowly aboard a space ship going at extremely high speed than it does on earth, The World Almanac notes. Showing how at least one aspect of time's relativity is common experience, Einstein said: "When you sit with a nice girl for two hours you think it's only a minute. But when you sit on a hot stove for a minute you think it's two hours. That's relativity."

Eastland Fears Indoctrination Of Cane Cutters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1,00 Americans who recently journeyed to Cuba to harvest sugar cane are "being indoctrinated and trained to attack and destroy our government and institutions," Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., charged Monday.

The young Americans sailed from Canada last month with the announced purpose of harvesting the sugar cane. But Eastland said they would be of little or no help in that job.

"It is not a likelihood but a very clear and present danger that these militant revolutionaries will return to the United States to implement the Communist purpose of causing chaos, confusion, and outright revolution in our institutions of higher learning, in the streets of our cities, and across our nation," Eastland told the Senate.

He said his internal security subcommittee would soon begin hearings into the matter.

Meanwhile, the State Department announced it would ease restrictions for travel to mainland China for anybody with a "legitimate purpose."

Restrictions, however, would remain in force for Americans wanting their passports validated for travel to Cuba, North Vietnam and North Korea.

Each year consumers spend an increasingly large amount of their income for services ranging from major items, to minor adjustments. Buying services is identical from buying goods, which a consumer can examine, touch and see before purchasing. When buying services the consumer places his trust in the person performing the service.

Your Better Business Bureau suggests you know the firm's reputation before you engage his services. Although most service firms are honest, there are a few which cause a majority of the complaints. Be careful when a concern offers service at an extremely low price. Reputable firms will provide written estimates and give approximate cost of their services before contracting to do the work, and a full itemized statement when the service is completed.

Your best assurance is to deal only with a service firm you know is reliable. When in doubt, check the experience of other customers or contact your Better Business Bureau.

Hand-Operated Bakery at No Loss for Customers

FRONTENAC, Kan. (AP) — It is 3 o'clock on a Sunday afternoon. The bread is out of the oven. Its aroma fills the air. Customers, who have been waiting, begin picking up the loaves while they are still hot.

This is the Frontenac Bakery, in a small building two blocks off Frontenac's main street. Frontenac is just north of Pittsburg.

Buying bread here is not merely a matter of stocking the larder. It is an excursion into the past.

"The bakery disdains automation. It makes bread as it was made years ago. In this place the human hand is still much in use.

Mike Spritzer is the proprietor. He is a young man, but tradition-minded. Before him his father, Martin Spritzer, ran the bakery, and before that his maternal grandfather, the late George Vacca.

The Italian-born Vacca founded the bakery Feb. 14, 1905.

"We make only 300 to 500 loaves a day in the week," Mike Spritzer said. "On Sunday we make more. Sunday is our big retail day. We're closed on Tuesdays and Saturdays."

The bakery's long, hard-crusted Italian loaf is its

No. 1 product.

"It is cooked on the bricks in the oven," Spritzer said. "We make what we call Preachbread from the same dough. It is cooked in pans and the crust is softer."

Except for the work of an old electric mixer and slicer, everything is done by hand.

Spritzer gets up early to fire the furnace. Until six or seven years ago it was fired with wood. "Wood got expensive and we converted to gas," he said.

After the old Dutchess oven reaches 600 degrees the heat is turned off. Baking begins at about 400 degrees. The bread is cooked with the retained heat.

About 1 p.m. on weekdays the bread starts coming out of the oven and customers begin picking it up. Some of it is sliced, but most isn't. Sacking is by hand.

Work is done with a small staff. Martin Spritzer still helps out part time. So does Mike's wife, Irene, and Mrs. Mary Konek. Mrs. Zola Davis works full time.

The fixture around the place in Geno Giacomotti, an employe 41 years. His fingers, working in dough, seem to have eyes. How many loaves of bread does he guess he has handled.

"About 15 million," he said.

POLLY'S POINTERS

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I have good news for those owners of campers and travel trailers who cannot get radio reception. We used our camper for three years without a radio before we discovered how to get up to 15 different stations. Take approximately 25 feet of insulated wire, loop the center six or seven times to about 12 inches in diameter and lay the looped portion on your transistor radio. Run the ends outside, through a hole drilled near where the radio sets. Attach one end of the wire to the camper or trailer and ground the other end to a six- or eight-inch piece of metal (a screwdriver will do) stuck in the ground. I tell all my traveling friends about this and all say it has worked for them.—EARL

DEAR EARL—I do very much the same thing with a radio that plugs into an electric socket and did not have very good reception. A key tied to the end of the wire which hangs out the window did the trick for me.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am a skier who usually must wear glasses. I do not wear them when I ski but do when riding the chair lift back to the top of the slope to enjoy the scenery. I would appreciate hearing of a clever way to carry my glasses when I am not wearing them. Surely I am not the only skier with this problem.—D. M.

DEAR POLLY—I was always forgetting which clothes had stains on them until the laundry was washed and hung on the line and I would see them. Now I clothespin each stain before the clothes go into the hamper. These pins are a reminder to treat the spots before laundering.—MRS. J. M.

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Over Teased whose synthetic hair pieces are looking dull and lifeless. She should wash them as usual, rinse in clear water and then rinse in a warm water solution with about ½ cup of fabric softener. The pieces come out soft and manageable.—SALLIE

DEAR GIRLS—A gentleman whose business is the grooming of wigs told me that using a dry shampoo and rinsing would make synthetic hair pieces easy to brush out but he had known of those who added the softener. The piece can be dried naturally or under a warm (not hot) air dryer.—POLLY

BY CHARLES FRANCIS BRADY

NOTHING GOLD CAN STAY
By Robert Frost
Nature's first green is gold,
Her hardest hue to hold.
Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.
Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden sank to grief,
So dawn goes down to day.
Nothing gold can stay.

Nature was frequently the theme for Robert Frost (1874-1963), one of America's best known poets. In today's Column, amateur poets express their thoughts on nature.

REMEMBER?
The wind blows the morning
by
And clouds are set beneath
the sun.
Nothing left but to laugh or
cry,
magic one.

A tall tree stands alone
A bird sings on a hill,
Whispering grasses green and
unproven,
Day lies dying in the chill.

A million years, by day and night
The mourning bell does rest
and sigh,
Only their sun shines so bright,
Who will remember- today I die!

NATURE'S ACROBATS
Old leaves..
Dry leaves.
Skittering across a beach
of winter - dead lawn,
Refugees clinging tightly
To a woven- wire fence
as if to a freedom wall,
Acrobats soaring through Cold air as only
birds should do...
Oaks and sycamores lose
leaves,
Flat and curved,
each taking its own path
Away from the mother
branch
To make room for new buds and spring.

—Sami,
Sikeston, Mo.

AUGUST TRIOLOGY: 1967
(pi)
A cool autumn day
the brisk winds of change
pull leaves from indifferent
trees like aged hairs,
baldness slipping in,
more;
do I dread the day

me and not the air.
—TLORM,
Farmington, Ark.

AND THE LEAF FALLS
See the little leaf floating through the wind.
The day is fair but there's no
one to care
or to wonder.

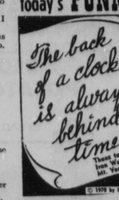

Winding and weaving while
gracing the sky.
It's free to fly but first it had
to die
and I shudder.

dream
down the footpaths of my mind
with my footsteps keeping time
rhyme
and I'm wondering
just where I am going.

You're not alone my pretty
one,
The blinding sun is shadowing my run
from man's blunder.

ARMED FORCES

CHARLESTON, S. C. – Sergeant James E. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cook of Morley, Mo., is a member of a unit that has earned the U. S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

Sergeant Cook, a jet engine mechanic in the 437th Military Airlift Wing, Charleston, AFB, S. C., will wear the distinctive service ribbon to mark his affiliation with the unit.

The wing was cited for meritorious service in support of military operations from July 1968 to July 1969. It is part of the Military Airlift Command which provides global airlift for U. S. military forces.

Sergeant Cook is a 1966 graduate of Scott County Central High School. His wife, Rose, is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothey Herring of Centralia, Ill.

Pfc. John A. Worley, St. Louis and formerly of Sikeston serving in South Vietnam with the Fourth division, with a dog, went ahead of his troop to scout the enemy.

He said the dog saved his life on two occasions. The third time the dog was shot, but when he went back to bury the animal, the enemy had taken the carcass and left the fur.

Worley attended high school here through the junior year. He graduated from Beaumont high. He is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Masters, 214 Watson; brother of Helen Worley, 502 W. Gladys, and Shirley Hopper, Morley; and a nephew of Everett Masters Jr., Lonnie Masters, and Roland Stout, all of Sikeston.

His mother, wife and two daughters, live at 2010 E. O'Bear, St. Louis.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 2 MAR 1970 – The 97th Services Squadron ceased to be a squadron Sunday. The unit will be reorganized as a division as a result of current economy measures.

Command-wide, 98 manpower spaces will be saved because of the move. Locally, there will be four manpower space changes. The first sergeant, orderly room clerk, and training man will be used by other base activities, and the services supervisor slot will be delted altogether.

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (FHTNC) March 11-- Marine Sergeant William T. Pearce, husband of the former Miss Christine M. Patterson of Essex, Mo., was awarded the Good Conduct Medal while serving with Second Marine Air Wing, Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C.

He earned the medal for three consecutive years of honorable service with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Fellow down the way dashed home because he heard on the radio that total demand for credit this year will be $67-billion and he wanted to make sure his wife was at home.

Renaissance of Jerusalem

RENAISSANCE OF JERUSALEM is bringing new vitality to Israel's capital city. Famed walls of the Old City are getting a face-lifting and landscaped gardens are planned for extensive adjacent area.

CLEARING RUBBLE is prime part of rebuilding Jewish quarter of Old City. Ancient synagogues are common in the area. Damaged in fighting of 1948 and 1967, they are only now being restored as part of the over-all development plan and renaissance of the city.

GREEK ORTHODOX monk supervises while workmen carve ornate Byzantine designs into a frieze that will decorate a section of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. Work on church will continue at least another year.

Surrounded by conflict, Israel continues to build and rebuild, looking hopefully to a future when tensions will abate. Jerusalem, the capital, is embarked on a revitalization that may rival the historic works of Solomon and Herod. These photos capture some of the flavor of renaissance Jerusalem, where the people attempt to come to terms in a clash of diverse religions, cultures and economies.

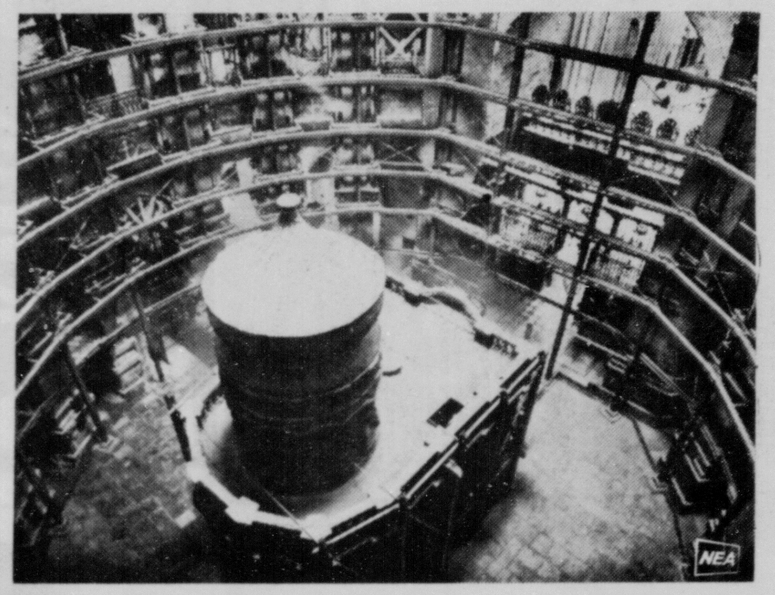

"To really understand this you have to go through a war yourself . . . God forbid!"

JERUSALEM WORKMEN painstakingly form building blocks out of native stone. By law, all construction in the city must be of stone. While it adds to building costs, the practice is partly responsible for giving Jerusalem its unique-looking character.

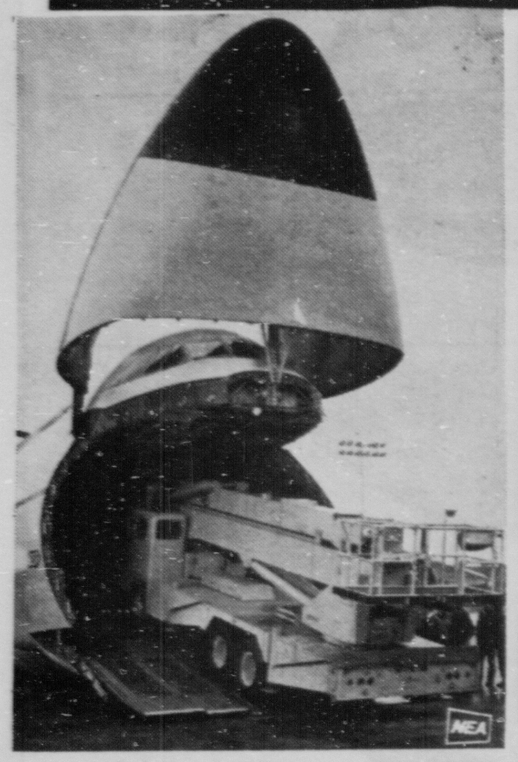

LAND IS CLEARED for dormitory construction on Mt. Scopus. The mountain will accommodate an estimated 1,000 students as well as science departments of Hebrew University. Prior to June, 1967, access to Mt. Scopus was limited and university staff members could not make use of its facilities.

HOLIEST AND MOST IMPORTANT part of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where tomb of Jesus is located, may never see repair. Behind the "temporary" retaining walls and buttresses are cubicles claimed by rival religions. To repair this section would be to destroy the tiny part of the church which is theirs.

SHADE GRABBER — A radio-telephone operator cools it by grabbing a little shade while calling his base camp in the A Shau Valley, Republic of Vietnam. The soldier is a member of the 3d Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry, 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile).

JUST A BITE for the world's largest aircraft, the Air Force's C-5 Galaxy. A 23-ton "cherry-picker" personnel hoist drives into the Lockheed plane and is swallowed up in the cavernous opening. After loading, the landing gear, which had been "kneeled," was raised 34 inches to put the plane at its regular height for take-off.

EARLY MORNING in Okinawa. All is quiet as day breaks over a small fishing village. A quarter of a century has passed since American forces stormed the shores of the Pacific island in the last days of World War II. There are indications that the island may be returned to Japanese control with the United States retaining bases there.

FIRST WATER enters the Kualapuu Reservoir at Molokai, Hawaii. When filled to capacity in a few years, the reservoir will hold nearly a billion and a half gallons of water with a level of 50 feet. A nylon-reinforced butyl rubber lining is just 1/32-inch thick, but will give without tearing under tremendous water weight.

Holly Schmidt, national poster child for Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, demonstrates her gift for establishing instant rapport when she visits U. S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch. Now in her second term as MDAA's "ambassador," the little girl from Saginaw, Michigan, is travelling around the country to win support for the March Against Muscular Dystrophy, now under way in this community. The annual drive raises funds for the massive research sponsored by the Association, as well as for the extensive services it makes available to patients and their families.

A lovely new morning glory with bright rose petals and white throat is named Early Call for its extra-early blooming time, up to a month earlier than other similar kinds.

Two colors, deep rose and white, in a new morning glory call you to witness their early appearance — early for morning glory flowers, that is. Even though they're as large — 4 inches across — as blossoms of those well known varieties, Heavenly Blue and Pearly Gates, they start appearing weeks, sometimes a month, earlier.

These extra-early yet large sized flowers are the chief advantages of the new variety, Early Call by name. Others are its vigorous growth, to 7 feet, and its free flower production.

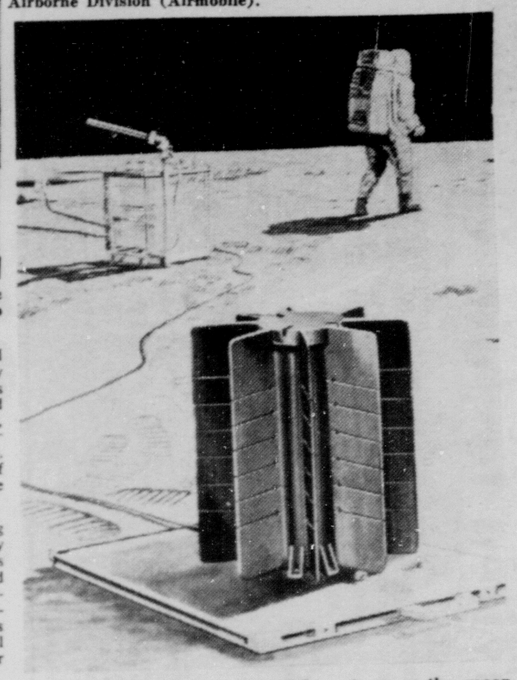

The flower petals are rose, the throats are white for contrast and the big flowers stay open well past their allotted time of high noon.

The vines will not climb by themselves but need help in getting started up a support. Left alone they sprawl on the ground and, surprisingly, make a handsome ground cover — an idea you might be able to use.

Like all morning glories Early Call should be planted in a sunny spot, near a support, if you expect vines to climb. It puts on a better show of bloom if seeds are sown where plants are to flower.

The other way of handling morning glories, especially where the growing season is short, is to plant a single seed in a 2-inch pot filled with ordinary garden soil. Grow indoors, in a sunny window, as many pots as you wish until frost free time arrives in your area.

Then transplant seedlings without breaking the earth ball around their roots, for morning glories resent root disturbance. Or use compressed peat pots and plant pot and all, first soaking the pot in water so the roots can grow through it.

ATOMIC POWER PLANT will be set up on the moon by Apollo 12 astronauts to power five surface experiments for at least a year, day and night. The nuclear generator, shown in foreground, will use eight pounds of man-made plutonium worth $1 million. Developed by GE for the Atomic Energy Commission, the unit weighs only 45 pounds with fuel and has no moving parts.

REMARKABLE RECOVERY — Sfc Harrison C. V. Bell looks into his past as portrayed by the Feb. 11, 1966 edition of LIFE magazine. Sergeant Bell, bottom left on the magazine cover, recovered from a head wound received during a combat operation with the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) in the Republic of Vietnam. He was awarded the Bronze Star with "V" device for valor for his part in the operation. Now a special instructor at Ft. McClellan, Ala., Sergeant Bell is teaching young infantrymen undergoing advanced individual training how to stay alive in Vietnam.

BRINGING UP FATHERS. These smiling dads are part of a new program which allows fathers to tend their babies at Long Island (N.Y.) Jewish Medical Center. Officials say it gives the newborn infant the affection and attention it needs from both parents.

Partner Can't Collect For Bank Mistake

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Pincus was a partner in a firm that had become so successful that every time Pincus opened his mouth he put his feats in it. Proud of the firm's accomplishments, he'd continuously bust loose the buttons of his shirt with pride.

Then one day his pride was shattered. The partnership gave out a sizeable check which its bank erroneously marked with those despicable works know to all businessmen, "Insufficient Funds." It was then returned to the depositor.

When Pincus hears about the bank's error, it was as if someone had stabbed him in the back. In fact, he developed an ulcer and sued the bank for causing it.

"By carelessly dishonoring the partnership check," he complained in court, "the bank made me sick at the thought that the partnership's reputation would go down the drain. It struck me like a catastro-stroke."

"If any injury was caused by our error," responded a bank official, "it was to the partnership and not to Pincus. Therefore, while we might be responsible if the partnership got an ulcer, we're not responsible because Pincus got one."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the bank pay for Pincus's ulcer?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the bank's customer was the partnership and not the individual partners. Consequently, while the bank may have breaced an obligation to the partnership by wrongfully dishonoring its check, it did not breach any obligation to Pincus so as to entitle him to collect for his ulcer. (Based upon a 1966 New Mexico Supreme Court decision)

U.S. Casts Veto

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After 24 years, the United States cast its first Security Council veto Tuesday night in rejection of an African-Asian demand for complete isolation of Rhodesia and its white government.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost voted with British Ambassador Lord Caradon to kill a resolution sponsored by African and Asian countries condemning Britain's refusal to use force against the government of its former African colony and calling on all nations to sever all relations and means of communication with Rhodesia.

Yost said the United States had closed its consulate in Rhodesia, but the resolution "would amount to barring American citizens in Rhodesia from contact with the outside world and this we cannot support. "We cannot agree now not only to cut off all their communications with the rest of the world, but even to cut off all means by which they might leave Rhodesia."

Yost also said his government opposed the condemnation of Britain for not using force. There was speculation that the American veto was cast so that Britain would not have to stand alone, but a spokesman for the U.S. delegation refused to say whether the British had asked for such support.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik told the council the U.S. vote was "a dark page in the annals of the United Nations" because the veto had been used "to protect ... racist countries."

Yost replied that the Soviet Union had "exercised the veto more than 100 times, the last time to prevent council action over the Soviet invasion of a small country in Central Europe."

Malik admitted that he had vetoed a 1968 resolution condemning the invasion of Czechoslovakia but said he did so to protect that country from imperialism.

Since the council first met on Jan. 17, 1946, the Soviet Union has used the veto 105 times, Britain and France four times each, Nationalist China once and now the United States once.

The vote on the African-Asian resolution was nine in favor, Britain and the United States opposed, and four abstaining. The nine votes would have been enough to pass it had Britain and the United States not used the veto which the five permanent members of the council have.

School Levy Hike Approved

DEXTER - Voters in the Dexter school district yesterday approved a 20-cent tax levy increase 493 to 147.

The passage of the proposal means an increase from $3.65 tax levy to $3.85 per $100 assessed valuation.

The $3.85 levy, broken down, is $1.70 for the teachers fund, 50 cents for the building fund, $1.25 for an incidental fund and 40 cents for the debt service fund.

Superintendent T. S. Hill said the tax rate of $3.85 will make it possible for the Dexter district to qualify for additional state aid of $14 per pupil, which comes to approximately $28,000.

This is required because the assessment ratio in Stoddard county has been set at 27.28 per cent, short of the required 30 per cent.

Fourth Ft.Wood Soldier Dies Of Meningitis

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP) — Pvt. Don A. Denton, 18, of Amarillo, Tex., died of meningitis Tuesday, the fourth man to die of the disease in the current outbreak at this army post.

Denton was assigned to a basic combat training brigade. He was admitted to the base hospital March 12, and placed on the "very seriously ill list" a spokesman said.

Fort officials said there have been 50 meningitis cases since Oct. 1.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo. called for an investigation of training practices and conditions at the installation after the first three deaths and cited letters he said he had received from parents which indicated trainees were driven past their endurance and discouraged from seeking medical attention.

A three- man House subcommittee headed by Rep. Richard Ichord, D- Mo., conducted a one- day investigation March 6 and reported it was satisfied the Army was taking efficient measures to combat the outbreak.

Eagleton said he would continue to conduct his own investigation.

Cambodia Overthrows Sihanouk

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodia's Parliament overthrew Prince Norodom Sihanouk today, charging the chief of state provoked the political political crisis gripping the nation, Radio Phnom Penh announced.

Asian diplomats in Saigon received reports that Cambodian troops surrounded the Parliament building and had sealed off the airport in the capital.

The news reached the 47year-old prince, who had dominated his kingdom's politics for more than 20 years, while he was in Moscow en route home from Paris. He left later in the day for Peking.

The cause of the crisis was violent demonstrations last week against the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodian border regions. During the demonstrations, Cambodians sacked the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong embassies in Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian radio said the reigns of power as chief of state were turned over to Cheng Heng, president of the National Assembly. The assembly, the lower house of Parliament, met in joint session with the Royal Cambodian Council, the upper house, and voted no confidence in Sihanouk.

A report received by the government in Saigon said the real power rested with two men— Gen. Lon Nol, premier and chief of the military forces, and Sirik Matak, a top government minister.

The two men are known to share doubts about the mercurial Sihanouk's neutralist policy, and were opposed to the 40,000,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops using border sanctuaries for forays into South Vietnam.

Nol, a conservative, was credited by some sources in Saigon with organizing the demonstrations against the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops. Others noted Sihanouk's grip on the country and believed he himself possibly orchestrated them from Paris.

An unofficial translation of the Phnom Penh broadcast, as heard in Saigon, said:

"Following the political crisis provoked by Prince Norodom Sihanouk in the past days, the National Assembly and the Royal Council in joint session, conforming to the constitution of the kingdom, unanimously withdrew their confidence in Prince Norodom Sihanouk. From this day, 18 March 1970 at 1300 (1 p.m.) the Prince Norodom Sihanouk ceases to be the chief of state of Cambodia and will be replaced by Cheng Heng, the president of the National Assembly, who will assume the function of the chief of state until election of a new chief of state in accordance with the text of the nation's constitution."

The Cambodian Embassy in Singapore said the Phnom Penh radio said later: "The new head of state said Cambodia will follow the same policies of independence, neutrality, territorial integrity and will respect all international treaties signed by her."

The radio called on the people of Cambodia to remain calm.

Earlier in the evening aides of President Nguyen Van Thieu handed him a message at a reception saying Sihanouk had been overthrown.

"I just don't believe it yet," said Thieu, who received the report at a reception. But he handed the message to an aide, who read newsmen this version in English:

"After a meeting between the Royal Cambodian Council and the Cambodian National Assembly, it was decided to overthrow Chief of State Sihanouk. The group named Cheng Heng, president of the National Assembly, as acting chief of state until new elections are held.

"Real power remains in the hands of Gen. Lon Nol and Sirik Matak."

Gen. Lon Nol is prime minister of Cambodia and chief of the country's 40,000man armed forces. Sirik Matak is a top minister in the government, and he and the general are known to share doubts about Sihanouk's attempts to keep his country neutral in the Vietnam war.

Aides of Thieu indicated that the message came from Radio Phnom Penh.

Sihanouk left Paris last Friday, after the demonstration started, announcing he would stop in Moscow and Peking seeking help in getting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops out of his country. But his embassy in Moscow said today that the prince's plans to leave the Soviet capital still were indefinite.

Later, after the report from Saigon of the coup, a spokesman for the prince in Moscow said he had no advance warning.

Cambodian forces were reported to have made several attacks Sunday on some of the intruders in the western Mekong Delta but there has been no evidence of any mass exodus by the troops back into South Vietnam. Meanwhile, representatives of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have been meeting daily with Cambodian officials in Phnom Penh.

Keller Urges Zoning Group To Develop Growth Projects

Chairman Ira Keller told planning and zoning commision members Tuesday night they should began development of projects that would benefit Sikeston growth.

He said the commission up to now primarily has been concerned with zoning matters but has an obligation to do more.

Keller said: "We should dream, imagine and think of things" to improve the city.

City Manager W. Raymert Miller agreed a plan for capital improvements would be beneficial and it is commission's duty to recommend these things. Miller suggested creating a citizen's advisory group to assist in the development of plans.

The commission recommended two ordinances to the city council. One would prohibit the sale of undeveloped land until it is subdivided. City Attorney Manuel Drumm recommended the commission amend the resolution to allow for the sale of undeveloped land without subdividing under certain circumstances not harmful to the city's planning.

The other recommendatio would require building movers or owners to complete renovation of structures within four months after they are moved from one location to another. The mover or owners would also be required to post a $500 bond to be forfeited if the renovation work is not completed within the alloted time. There have been complaints about people moving rundown houses to new locations and letting them set for months without improvements. An example pointed out is a house moved last year to the corner of Murray Lane and Dempster street.

Drumm warned such an ordinance may not be legal and added the city probably could rid itself of such eyesores through condemnation procedures.

A rezoning request from a group of homeowners on Edwards street in the Felker-Sharp Addition was tabled for study. The residents object to rezoning to allow house trailers to be located immediately adjacent to their property.

The commission approved a plat of a Mc-Mar subdivision located west of Deavis boulevard submitted by John W. Marshall and Robert McCord.

Approved also was a request for rezoning the south part of lot 24, Lillian A. Smith addition, from single family to commercial. The request was made by Bob Nowell and Walter Carr.

Military Panel Urges Revamped Inquiry Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army investigative panel that charged two generals and 12 lower ranking officers with violating military regulations involving the alleged My Lai massacre has called for increased troop indoctrination against mistreatment of civilians and prisoners.

The special panel also urged revamping reporting procedures to ensure that inquiries into any future incidents will flow up the chain of command and not be blocked at company or battalion levels.

The recommendations were included in a report made public Tuesday that resulted in charges of dereliction of duty and failure to obey regulations against 10 field grade officers and three captains in the alleged massacre.

Lt. Gen. William R. Peers, who headed the Army investigation, refused to characterize the original field probe—which produced negative results—as a cover-up of the alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians March 16, 1968.

Two of the children were taken to a doctor for observation, and released.

The driver of the bus told investigating officers that a wheel of the bus went on a shoulder, causing the bus to slide into the ditch and overturn.

A 1969 Chevrolet pickup truck stopped for a right turn, when a 1970 Dodge tractor trailer behind him, driven by Roy Massey, 28, Maiden, tried to stop suddenly. A 1965 Ford, driven by Lauretta Wright, 55, Pulaski, Ill., pulled in the other lane quickly and ran headon into a westbound 1970 GMC pickup truck driven by James Stumbaugh, 51, Grand Rivers, Ky., the state patrol said all vehicles collided.

Airliner Survives Gunplay

BOSTON (AP) — A pilot shot in both arms landed an airliner with 73 persons aboard after a mile high cockpit struggle Tuesday night which left the copilot dead and a passenger seriously wounded. The passenger was charged with murder.

East Boston Municipal Court issued a murder complaint today against John J. DiVivo, 27, of West New York, N.J., in connection with the death of James E. Hartley, 31, of Fort Lee, N.J., the slain copilot.

DiVivo was reported in satisfactory condition at Massachusetts General Hospital, where he underwent emergency surgery for bullet wounds in the arm and abdomen. He was under police guard.

Passengers reported there was no panic aboard the plane after the shots were fired.

An Eastern Airlines spokesman said a struggle for the gun broke out after the passenger told the pilot, Capt. Robert Wilbur Jr., 35, of Fairlawn, N.J.: "Take me east."

The plane was then a mile high over the town of Franklin, about 30 miles south of Boston, making its final approach to Logan International Airport after a flight from Newark, N.J.

When the airliner landed a stewardess went to the cockpit, where she saw the copilot slumped in his seat, the passenger lying on the floor and Wilbur axing the plane toward the airport terminal buildings.

"My pilot is shot—shot," Wilbur radioed the control tower. "Where the hell do you want me to park this thing!"

At Massachusetts General Hospital both DiVivo and Wilbur were said to be in satisfactory condition.

An airline spokesman said the passenger had told the senior stewardess Christine Peterson, that he had no money to pay his fare—normally fgected in the air on such shuttle flights—and wanted to see the pilot.

Miss Petersen said the man drew a pistol and she led him to the cockpit door and told Wilbur the man wanted to see him.

"I'm busy," said Wilbur.

"You don't understand, he has a gun," Miss Petersen said.

She said the pilot then told her to bring the man in and to go back and tell the passengers everything was all right.

The struggle for the gun, the airline spokesman said, broke out after Miss Petersen left the cockpit.

In West New York, police said DiVivo had been working as a short order cook and had been living with his mother and sister.

Viet Forces Overrun Another Base in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Another major Laotian government position fell to the Communists today with little or no resistance as North Vietnamese troops overran the supply base at Sam Thong and burned the adjoining village and the hospital the Americans operated. "This may signal the initial thrust southward," a source in Vientiane commented after the North Vietnamese victory 90 miles north of the capital.

As the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao drew close to Sam Thong Tuesday, the CIA's Air America charter line flew out the 15 to 20 Americans stationed there along with more than 2,000 Meo tribesmen and Laotian peasants. Another 4,000 fled earlier in the week as the Communist troops moved down from the Plain of Jars, 15 miles to the northeast.

The Laotian government's chief military hope, Gen. Vang Pao, reportedly had a force of about 7,000 Meo tribesmen in the area from Sam Thong to Vang Pao's headquarters at Long Cheng, 10 miles to the southeast. But the casualty report from the defenders at Sam Thong—three wounded—indicated resistance was negligible, as it has been since the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao began their offensive northeast o fthe Plain of Jars nearly five weeks ago.

There were unconfirmed reports of North Vietnamese military activity today in the vicinity of Long Cheng. Meanwhile, bombers from either the Laotian or U.S. air forces attacked an estimated 2,000 North Vietnamese troops reported on high ground overlooking Sam Thong, according to informed sources.

Sam Thong was a supply base for both Van Pao's army and an estimated 10,000 refugees from areas taken over by the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao. The base included an airstrip, a U.S. aid warehouse and hangars for Air America planes, as well as the hospital.

Sources in Vientiane said the attack on Sam Thong was the first since the base was built in 1968. It was not threatened when the North Vietnamese and the Pathet Lao occupied the Plain of Jars before being driven out by Vang Pao's forces last summer.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command said an Air Force F105 jet fighter was hit by enemy ground fire while on a combat mission over Laos Monday. The plane crashed in Thailand, and the pilot was rescued with no injuries, a spokesman said.

It was the fourth American warplane reported downed by enemy ground fire in Laos since the U.S. Command started announcing losses there on March 10. A fifth plane crashed due to unknown causes, the spokesman said. The crewmen aboard all the planes were rescued, he added.

689 Died in Tornado 45 Years Ago Today

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Forty five years ago today the most violent and destructive tornado in the history of the United States swept out of cloud-laden skies over Ellington, Mo., and killed 689 persons.

No tornado nor group of tornadoes has matched that twister in the number of fatalities. It seldom has been equalled in size, width, speed and length of track on the ground.

Fat, black and ugly, almost obscured in the heavy cloud layer surrounding it, the tornado darted at speeds up to 70 miles an hour from Ellington in southeastern Missouri across southern Illinois, and finally lifted 219 miles to the northeast at Princeton, Ind.

Allen D. Pearson, director, and L.A. Joos, climatologist of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center, recalled the killer tornado in an interview.

"This was one of the fastest moving tornadoes ever known," Pearson said. "In a 3½-hour period, from 1 p.m. to about 4:30 p.m., the twister covered the area from Ellington to Princeton, leaving virtually total destruction in its path. It traveled from 60 to 70 miles an hour and never left the ground. Its average speed was 62 miles an hour."

"The twister injured some 2,000 persons," Joos said, "and caused damage which amounted to $16.5 million—around $80 million in today's money."

"It didn't look like a tortornado," Joos said. "This, along with its speed and tremendous size, are what made it so deadly. There are no known pictures of the tornado. But witnesses say you couldn't see a funnel in the traditional form. Instead, it looked livsi,o)uoilection of low, black thunderstorm clouds. It was extremely wide and the dark clouds surrounding it were unusually low."

Thirteen persons died in Missouri before the tornado spun across the Mississippi River. It killed 606 in Illinois, making that state No. 1 in the nation in tornado fatalities to this day with a total of 1,000. The highest death toll for a single city came next at Murphysboro, Ill., where 284 persons—7 per cent of the population — lost their lives.

Another 148 were killed at West Frankfort as the twister sped through clusters of small communities in the agricultural and coal mining region of southern Illinois.

It then crossed the Wabash River into Indiana, killing 25 persons at Griffin and another 45 at Princeton, where the twister finally left the ground.

The killer ranged from onefourth of a mile to nearly a mile wide, compared with an average tornado width of 400 to 1,300 yards. It covered a total area of 154 square mmiles.

"The exceptionally high speed was the reason for many of the deaths—along with the fact that the Weather Bureau didn't forecast tornadoes in those days and there weren't enough radios to provide a warning," Joos said.

"Imagine you're standing on a railroad track and try to jump out of the way of a train going 70 miles an hour when it's right on top of you. That's the way it was with this tornado. People didn't run to basements. There weren't many basements in the area and there wasn't time."

"But God forbid, ever, another one like that."

Rush on in Congress for Restrictions on Explosives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alarmed by the lack of federal laws dealing with the rising tide of bomb violence, congressmen are rushing to propose legislation restricting current easy access to explosive materials.

Not only must the lawmakers grapple with the problem of actual bombings like those that have rocked New York offices and claimed the lives of two young blacks in Maryland recently, but they also must deal with threatened bomb assaults —threats that cannot be ignored.

A sample of the latter was disclosed Tuesday by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, who reported evacuation only minutes before of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving due to a bomb threat.

Scott, at a press conference at the White House, also said President Nixon had asked his staff to draw up recommendations for laws to protect federal property against bombings and bombing threats.

The spate of bombings and bomb threats also has stirred action in state capitals.

Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel has urged his state's legislature to restrict sales of explosives and provide life imprisonment for convicted bombers. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has said his state's laws also must be strengthened.

In Congress, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, has a bill making possession untaxed explosive materials a federal crime. The measure would levy a tax on transfer of blasting material and require registration of parties to such a transaction.

His bill also would make persons convicted of—or under indictment for—a felony, aliens or mentally ill persons ineligible to purchase explosives.

Scott said the President had asked his aides last Friday to prepare legislation that "would deal with bombings and with conspiracies to commit that act."

Despite the current rush to get new laws on the books, one Capitol Hill expert on weapons regulations says an obscure provision of the gun control law permits federal authorities to stop bomb carriers simply by nailing them for having an unregistered "destructive device."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We are a great admirer of Governor Hearnes, and if he says we need the income tax revision we guess we do.

But for a certain reason we are not going to vote for it on April the 7th, and our reason for not voting for it will make many vote for it.

Since we are not one of the majority who will get a reduction in our state income tax we are going to vote against the change.

But since Governor Hearnes says we need the money we are in favor of a 1 cent increase in the Sales tax. It is the fairest of all taxes, paid by everyone who spends any money, and that's what we want and probably won't get.

NEW THREAT TO MALL BUSINESS

A double- edged threat has appeared on the business scene - the one- bank holding company and its entry into other avenues of monetary gain. With a forward sweep of their financial sword these conglomerates slash at independent bankers and with a backward stroke they maim independent businessmen.

Thus far, the activities of these financial giants are still on a limited scale. But certain economic sectors have already begun to feel the effects, such as in the trucking industry and other small business.

Expanding into the trucking business, some one- bank holding companies have offered and provided "free" pick up and delivery service to trap correspondent deposits and other business from smaller banks and commercial accounts. They offer freight forwarding services tied in with bank services at combined reduced rates to obtain new accounts. At the same time, they extend preferred financial treatment in banking matters to the companies using their trucking services, thereby assuring retention of the shipments.

The result is the independent trucker is forced out of business because he does not have the enormous financial backing to lower rates or tie in banking services to compete with the business - owned service. When the independent trucker goes out of business, the small bank loses its freedom of choice in the selection of transportation methods and correspondent banks with which to transact business.

Both the independent banker and local businessmen who do not use the big bank's financial and trucking facilities are placed at an unfair disadvantage. They cannot compete in a market where preferred financial considerations are given to the competition.

No one seeks to condemn one- bank holding companies as such. In many instances their sound financial procedures have revived and stimulated firms faced with economic disaster.

It seems obvious, however, that these financial giants should be prevented from using their trucking facilities to induce potential customers to use their banking services or to tie these services together with the result that competition by independent trucking companies is eliminated.

Although there is no legislation to govern the extra-banking activities of one- bank holding companies at present, a House- passed bill- H. R. 6778 - is currently under review by the Sneate Banking and Currency Committee. Senate amendments to this bill could define and limit the activities of one- bank conglomerates- a necessary legislative move if the small businessman is to survive.

LIBERALIZING TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS

The pilgrimage of some 900 Americans to cut sugar cane for Fidel Castro has resulted in a flood of calls from irate Congressmen to the State Department demanding to know what can be done to punish them. The department's answer has been short and simple: Nothing. The Supreme Court ruled unanimously on Jan. 10, 1967, that persons with valid U.S. passports cannot be criminally prosecuted for visiting countries where travel is restricted by the federal government. A federal appeals court also ruled that a passport cannot be refused a travel ban violator.

But the restrictions remain in effect against travel in four countries – Cuba, mainland, China, North Korea and North Viet Nam. On Sunday, March 15, the current six-month extension of the curbs will expire. There have been eports that he administration is anxious to ease, or even abolish, the bans.

Easing of travel curbs to Red China was announced on July 21, 1969, for special categories of persons such as journalists and scientists. A limited relaxation of the trade embargo with Red China was announced at the same time. Now it is thought that an easing of the curb on business travel to the mainland will follow. The progress of the ambassadorial - level talks in Warsaw between the United States and Red China is being watched closely for clues.

The Cold War led to temporary bans on travel to certain countries. By May 1952, passports had been stamped not valid for travel to eight Communist nations: Albania, Bulgaria, Red China, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Rumania and the Soviet Union. Exceptions were made by specific endorsement for news correspondents. Three years later, restrictions on all but Albania and Red China were removed, but North Korea and North Viet Nam were added to the list. Cuba joined them on Jan. 16, 1961. Albania was removed on March 15, 1967.

Even if the United States were to immediately drop all restrictions on travel to the four countries, their doors probably would not swing open immediately. All have tight restrictions on who may enter their frontiers. Back in August 1957, the State Department drew up a list of 24 news organizations – later expanded to 35– that would be allowed to send representatives to Red China. But the Chinese never gave them visas.

OIL AND POLITICS

Probably no industry better represents the American ideal of competitive free enterprise than oil, with its glamorous tradition of the freewheeling wildcatter. Yet, few industries rely so heavily on government favors and interference with the open market. Such subsidies have "cost the American public $40 to $70 billion in the last ten years," estimates Dr. John M. Blair, chief economist of the Senate subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly.

These favors include the oil depletion allowance permitting producers to exempt sizeable portions of their income from taxes. The depletion allowance was cut from 27.5 per cent to 22 per cent by Congress last year. But the industry still sets production ceilings to maintain prices. And import quotas restrict foreign competition.

Oil men defend their privileges on the ground of national security. They say a strong domestic oil industry is mandatory if the United States, the world's largest consumer of energy, is to remain independent of foreign supplies in periods of international crisis. But Mr. Milton S. Friedman, the conservative economist, has written: The political power of the oil industry, not national security, is the reason for the present subsidies for the industry."

Many of the Industry's old spokesmen on Capitol Hill are gone, but its political clout has not been depleted. The drawn- out battle within the Nixon administration over oil import quotas is a sign of the undiminished strength of the oil industry. The 11- year- old system restricts the entry of cheaper foreign crude oil to 12.2 per cent of domestic production in states east of the Rockies.

The Senate antitrust subcommittee was told last year that a barrel of Middle Eastern oil can be unloaded in New York for about $1.50 less than a barrel of domestic oil of the same quality. American consumers are estimated to pay from $4 billion to $5 billion a year in added fuel costs because of limitations on the cheaper foreign oil.

President Nixon sent the problem to a special cabinet-level Task Force on Oil Import Control, headed by Labor Secretary George P. Shultz, in March, 1969. Most observers looked upon the action as a victory for the petroleum industry. In the face of considerable pressure, however, the task force began taking on some of the aspects of a runaway grand jury.

In its final report, released Feb. 20, the task force said the present import control program was not adequately responsive to "present and future security considerations." The report added that the present system had "spawned a host of special arrangements and exceptions for purposes essentially unrelated to national security..." It recommended that quotas be phased out and replaced by a tariff that would produce about $700 million yearly in new revenues while reducing prices to the consumer. Five of the seven members of the task force supported the report.

President Nixon thanked the task force members-- and appointed still another investigatory committee. Concern that oil and politics wouldn't mix in the 1970 congressional elections was said to be a prime reason for Nixon's decision to do little about import quotas at this time. "Republicans in the Northeast are pledged to lower consumer prices for gasoline and heating oil, while those from the West and Southwest are pulling the opposite way for crude producers," noted The Wall Street Journal. To consumers, the President seemed to be telling the oil industry to continue to "fill 'er up" at their expense.

The Health Insurance Institute has predicted that health care will become the nation's largest "industry" by 1975. Figures released in TRIAL Magazine reveal that the national health bill will reach $94 billion, and there will be about 5.3 million persons working in this field by that time. The total national health bill for 1968 reached $51 billion – including everything connected with health from doctors' fees to private health insurance premiums and accounting for 6 per cent of the nation's total gross product.

NEW YORK (AP) — The human mind is the most tremendous theater on earth.

On its inner stage great dramas of memory and fantasy are endlessly played ... days of ordeal and glory ... moments magical ... times palled by tragedy or made luminous by love.

Even in sleep that stage is never quite empty. For even in dreams we still imagine and remember. No manmade theater, however vast, could hold the actors and scenic backgrounds that flit second by second through the three-pound human brain.

Your own inner stage is well supplied with memories of places and faces if you can look back and remember when—

If an old-timer complained he wasn't feeling up to snuff, he didn't have to explain to the youngsters what snuff was.

A child's first reaction to a parental order was to obey it, not challenge it.

More Americans were awakened by the cock-a-doodle-doo of a rooster than the ring-a-ling-aling of an alarm clock.

It was a rare week that went by without a fellow seeing at least one dog fight in the streets. The usual way to break it up was to throw water on them and dampen their battle ardor.

You could buy a pound of hamburger for a dime and a bottle of milk or loaf of bread for a nickel.

The German Kaiser Wilhelm was regarded as mankind's worst villain—until Adolf Hitler came along and made him look like a philanthropist.

One of earth's greatest certainties in a good Catholic family was that, whatever might be set on the table on Friday, it wouldn't be meat.

A plumber had a hard time making a living.

If you asked a stranger what time it was, he reached for his watch pocket instead of glancing at his wrist.

It was taken for granted in a small town that if a girl went away to college she must have felt she was too homely to win a husband and had decided to become a schoolteacher.

A harried housewife could call up an employment agency and hire a good reliable maid—just like that.

If a fellow had trouble with his eyeglasses, he could go to the dime store and pick out a pair that didn't make him squint.

A man's word or his handshake was as good as his signature . . . the railroads ran on time . . . and nobody tried to sell America short.

Those were the days. Remember?

Federal Buying Scheme for Cities, States Dropped

The General Services Administration has dropped its controversial program to establish central Federal purchasing for state and local government agencies following protests from Sen Joseph M. Montoya (D-N.M.) and the National Association of Manufacturers.

An official of the Budget Bureau says the GSA had misinterpreted legislation enacted last year. Final regulations to be published in the Federal Register will delete the GSA proposal.

Senator Montoya charged that the GSA purchasing program would bypass small businessmen and "put them out in the streets." He commented that "this would be the height of socialism."

In a letter to NAM President W.P. Gullander, Senator Montoya thanked the NAM for its support in opposing the GSA program. "I certainly appreciate the support you and your organization have given me in this endeavor, and I want you to know that without such support it would have been much more difficult, and a favorable decision could not have been reached as quickly," he wrote.

Mr. Gullander had voiced NAM's concern over the GSA move, noting that "the open interpretation of GSA is far afield, indeed, from the restricted concept of lending professional and technical people" to undermanned state and local governments.

TOP PRIORITY

When passage of governmental medical programs such as medicare and medicaid opened the way for assumption by taxpayers of the cost of care for large groups of citizens, many felt the millennium had been reached. But they were wrong. It takes more than the pouring out of billions of tax dollars to provide adequate medical care. It takes doctors, health personnel and facilities to complete the job.

The director of the American Medical Association's Division of Medical Education, in testifying before a congressional subcommittee, has pointed out that a special need now exists for more physicians, and appropriations for medical school aid should be given first priority. He said, "It is the strong conviction of the AMA that medical education should be supported financially as fully as possible to meet the pressing need which exists today for an increased number of physicians." Today, thousands of doctors are working unconscionably long hours to fulfill the high obligations they assumed upon achieving the eminence of medical practitioners in the most advanced medical system in the world.

To add to the rolls of the medical profession within this system is more than an overnight job. As long as the system exists, U.S. medical men will fight to preserve its high standards and the concept of personal attention to which they feel U.S. citizens are entitled. They are endeavoring to make government medical programs workable realities. In return, they ask that priority be given to the necessary congressional appropriations for expansion of medical training facilities so that in the years to come there will be enough qualified doctors to meet the growing demands for medical services.

How Good Is Driver's-Ed?

Driver education courses aren't what they are cracked up to be. So charges McCall's magazine, pointing out that the traffic carnage is getting worse, particularly among the youngest drivers.

Despite the doubling of driver education during the past decade, the number of 16- and 17-year-old drivers involved in accidents resulting in death or injury shot up 50 per cent between 1964 and 1968. This is precisely the age group which is taking driver education courses in school.

Three-quarters of all high school programs offer 30 hours of classroom lectures and six hours' experience behind the wheel, a combination considered "much too thin" by the National Safety Council. Recent studies in Mississippi and California comparing the safety records of driver-ed graduates and drivers who didn't take a course showed almost identical results for both groups.

The article broaches the heresy that perhaps dad is not the worst driving teacher a young person could have, although this has long been an axiom among educators. It recommends that parents consider a driver-ed course as only the beginning of a teen-ager's training and that they be prepared to devote 20 hours of their own time to hiving him supplemental instruction.

It also suggests that parents keep a young driver on probation for his first two years behind the wheel and that he is probably safer if he does not have his own car during that time.

WHY SUBSIDIZE REVOLUTIONARIES?

The Chicago Tribune recently disclosed that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has given more than $1 million during the past two years to the revolutionary Student Health Organization (SHO).

This same newsletter contained a story entitled "Castro's Revolutionary Medicine" and quotations from Mao Tse-tung. In another newsletter, SHO stated: "We should try to understand, relate to, and work with other revolutionary groups . . . we should start working closer with the largest of these organizations, the Students for a Democratic Society."

The HEW grants were given to the group for the supposed purpose of conducting "health surveys." Instead, several of the SHO members who received the money organized demonstrations during the 1968 Democratic National Convention. Another, who received a salary of $120 a week from HEW to act as an "area coordinator", is under indictment for mob action and aggravated battery.

Another "coordinator" on the HEW payroll has stated: "We must prepare ourselves and the masses for armed struggle. People in our organization should be prepared to defend themselves and to use all the weapons necessary for revolutionary struggle."

Senator Strom Thurmond expressed the views of many citizens when he said: "This is a gross diztortion of HEW's mission and a preversion of our responsibility to the taxpayers."

This subsidy benefitted no one except the destructive elements in our society. We cannot help those in need by giving money to groups who aim to destroy our Republic. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- Going all the way back to 1899, the Army Engineers have had a powerful legal weapon to prevent polluters from dumping garbage into America's streams and harbors.

Yet more often than not, they have catered to the politicians and the polluters. The results are seen in the nation's spoiled rivers and beaches.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., sometimes gets so angry with the nature spoilers that his words come with a splutter. But there is a bellclear tone in the outrage of his House Conservation Subcommittee over the Army Engineers' failure to enforce the 1899 Reuse Act all these years.

The love affair between Congress and the Engineers Corps has been an open secret. Together they have created pork-barrel projects, so dear to the hearts of Congressmen, on the streams and in the harbors of every congressional district.

But Reuss is ready to break off the long romance over the Corps' failure to protect the public from pollution. In a confidential staff report, his subcommittee blasts the Army Engineers for letting American waterlands turn into refuse dumps and instructs them to get busy cleaning up.

PROMISES VS. PERFORMANCE

The 1899 law gives the Corps power to ban from all navigable waters and tributaries "any refuse matter of any kind" except liquid sewerage. Lately, the Corps has made some noises about carrying out the law, but the report complains: "There have been recent instances where there appeared to be a substantial gap between promises and performances."

Adds the Reuss committee: "The Corps of Engineers must make an about-face in handing applications for new landfills, dredging and other work in navigable waters."

Incredibly, the Corps has compelled the conservationists to prove their complaint against the polluters but hasn't required the purveyors of sludge and garbage to show their dumping is harmless.

In submerged lands and tidelands, the Corps has carefully ignored the fish and wildlife service which might have opposed despoiling the breeding places of ducks, sea life and many small mammals.

In fact, the committee reports "questions whether the Corps' practice of allowing anyone to fill or construct structures landward or harbor lines without a permit has been valid since 1899.

The Corps emphasized navigation and port uses, and gave little or no attention to such matters as fish and wildlife, air and water pollution control ..."

SEWAGE NOT REGULATED

All along, the Corps could also have made developers and others give data on the "effluent to be discharged from the proposed sewer outfall," but didn't bother.

The 1899 act, concludes the report, has been used against ships which dump garbage but only "sporadically."

The staff report demands that the Corps "arrest and take into custody" offenders.

"Both the Corps of Engineers and the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration should request the Attorney General to institute injunction suits," it urges.

If the Army Engineers take the Committee's advice, instead of listening to the siren song of sewerage from the special interests, maybe the 1899 statute can bring some cleanliness to America before another 75 years go by.

EX-CONVICTS SELL GUNS

The Internal Revenue Service is quietly licensing ex-convicts as gun dealers. Even though a Federal law bars felons from selling guns, licenses have been granted to men convicted of housebreaking, bootlegging, forging, sex offenses and other crimes.

But at second look, it may be on the up and up. The law has a clause that permits IRS Commissioner Randolph Thrower to grant exemptions if the convicted men have been rehabilitated.

Perhaps the best known of the 130 gun licensees with criminal records is the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., convicted in 1965 fo conspiring to defraud the government. The chemical giant, now called Olin Corp., makes Winchster-Western arms and ammunition. Without the exemption, it couldn't move its guns out of the factory.

Less famous felons, now licensed to sell guns, include men convicted of draft dodging in 1952, sending an obscene letter in 1963, carrying a concealed weapon in 1954, committing perjury in 1963 and carnal knowledge in 1941. In each case, rehabilitation was reported.

Most of those seeking exemptions own or work in rural stores of sporting goods firms that sell firearms.

Additional data on the convicts was hushed up by Thrower, casting a pall of suspicion on his whole exemption proceedings. But after two weeks, the IRS Commissioner grudgingly recognized that the Freedom of Information Act applies to his office along with the rest of the federal government, and he released some details to this column.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Playing with cash: Seek to protect $80 billion pension funds from Mafiosi and high-living trustees and officials

Washington, D.C.: -- Some years ago a Frank Amato, allegedly La Cosa Nostra's account executive in charge of southwest Pennsylvania, held court. Literally. He was assigned a jurisdictional dispute between the New York Three-Finger Brown (Luchese) "family" and the Detroit "borgata."

The issue was simple. He was to decide which mob would loot the Teamsters Central States, Southeast and Southwest Area Pension Fund. He ruled for the Detroiters.

That fund now has some $700 million, of which, according to the usual authoritative sources, some $125 million is our on "tainted" loan.

But this is pin money compared with the funds President Nixon's new pension-welfare protection bills would cover.

In all, there now are upward (much upward) of $214 billion in pension pools -- private and public sector funds. Covering some 40 million Americans now are plans totaling over $80 billions. No one really knows just how much of this money mound is in private self-insured (as compared with funds handled by big insurance companies) operations. Some say $20 billion; some estimate $35 billion. Some put it much higher. Some say that these funds grow at the rate of $9 billion annually.

Point is there is virtually no law which gives the Secretary of Labor, or any other federal agency the power to force certain reporting. Or to police this fantastic cash cache.

Under the current laws, theft, embezzlement, kickbacks and bribery involving employe benefit plans are federal crimes. Thus these are mostly in Justice Dept., and therefore FBE, jurisdiction.

But a long string of brutal abuses and breaches of fiduciary relationships and simple decency still are behind the law.

The word "brutal" is justified. After all, pension funds are the monies for the physical, economic and mental security of the older folks, and yes, widows and children. Those who steal or mishandle this cash steal from the aged, the helpless and from men and women who have worked from 20 to 30 years believing they'll be no one's burden.

Thus, now President Nixon wants to give the Secretary of Labor new powers -- to investigate, monitor and mentor the gargantuan funds.

And time it is, too. There is no law now which prevents a convicted thief, Mafiosi or ex-Murder, Inc., goon from being put in as administrator of a pension fund though the law says he cannot hold union office for five years after he is released from prison.

There is no law preventing pension fund administrators to concentrate on their problems in long and expensive "conferences" in Acapulco, Hawaii, Miami, Vancouver (for Esterners) and the Bahamas for Westerners.

There are organizations which make it possible for pension fund trustees to draw from $1.500 to $2,000 for expenses for three or five-day conferences – and add the price of first-class fares to the tab. Some conference leaders live in expensive suites filled with cases of whiskey, a beauty or two, and handsome gifts from travel agents who want the booking business.

Some trustees spend as much as 25 days to a month each year at such conferences. And of course there are always side excursions.

And then there are the payroll padders – the labor and management trustees and administrators who put their kin on the account as lawyers, accountants, etc., at high fees. Many trustees serve at good pay for their occasional meetings.

No less avaricious are the men who deal in swinging loans. Not all of them are Mafiosi. Some are legitimate lawyers. Some have moved in the very highest government and Congressional circles. They get finders fees for making the "connection" on a loan. They go to banks and make "points" -- meaning they get a cut on the money swing-in.

It's nothing for small locals to have $8 or $10 million in a fund and use some of it to push up a stock , buy in personally, dump it but "get out" (sell) before the market slides off on the security. Nor is it uncommon for money to be made on the purchasing of pension fund financed developments – commercial buildings, residential complexes and health resorts.

There are independent unions run by mobsters -- and run legitimately. Why run a crooked local, or network of locals using names similar to those of legitimate unions, when one can roll up a multimillion-dollar pension fund and swing it? It's not only big business – it's massive business.

A new law is as long overdue as a cure for cancer. In 10 years this money will be racing up to the trillion mark. That's a lot of cash to be lying around loose. There are a lot of itchy fingers reaching for it before it can get to the old folks. Now let's cue who in Congress delays the making of a new law.

Father's Family in Nudist Camp Does Not Re-create Denmark or Japan

Dear Ann Landers: In August while driving cross-country on our vacation, my husband said he had a surprise for us -- two days in a nudist camp. Before I had a chance to think about it, we were there.

I was deeply concerned about the effect it would have on our 14-year-old daughter, and our son, age 12. To my surprise, the kids were all for it.

When we undressed at the camp my main worry was the boy's reaction to seeing his mother naked. But that didn't seem to make an impression. He was much more interested in his sister's body. Our daughter, I noticed, took a good look at her father and he took a good look at her. They whole thing made me very uncomfortable.

Within minutes the children were romping off making friends with other children their age. We stayed two days and I did not care for the experience.

Since we've been home the kids have been walking around the house nude. They have also become much friendlier with one another. I'M ashamed to say this, but I worry about leaving them home alone together. My husband says it is "healthy." What do you think? -- Bare Facts

Dear Facts: The authorities with whom I consult agree that nudity is healthy -- in a society where it is part of the culture. But the United States IS not Japan and it isn't Denmark, either.

A 14-year-old girl should not suddenly see her father nude, and he shouldn't be looking at her either. The same goes for a mother and her 12-year-old son. Ditto the brother and sister. My advice is to consult a counselor and ask him to help get the kids back on the track and into clothes again.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Mother of Two and a Half" struck a responsive chord in my heart. The woman who wrote was expecting a third, unplanned child. Her husband insisted that she give the baby away or he would leave. You said, "invariably, these kooks change their minds and I'll bet yours will, too."

I faced the same situation 20 years ago and believe me, Ann, these kooks don't always change their minds. My kook even had adoption papers drawn up but I refused to sign. When he said, "It's me or the kid --" thank God I had the guts to say, "Sorry, but it has to be the kid."

These 20 years have been rough with no help from him -- financial or otherwise -- but I've never regretted my decision. Today I have a beautiful girl in college. The kook is bumming around the country -- and no one cares what happens to him. I've told myself a hundred times -- a man who would ask his wife to make such a choice isn't worth the powder to blow him off this earth. She's better off without him. -- California Kate

Dear Kate: Well said. Thanks for saying it.

Confidential to Mystified Mom of Memphis: Any child who is old enough to write is old enough to drop a line saying, "thanks for the gift." Yes, this goes for boys as well as girls. Good manners is not a matter of gender. You're nudging that kid of yours about 8 years too late.

THE GREAT ESCAPE and MAGNIFICENT SEVEN, both Steve McQueen classics, are being shown as a double feature at Malone Theatre today through Saturday. Both are in color, blood and all. The promise of these two films is exciting action... a lot of it!

ESCAPE takes place in Germany, and involves American prisoners of war... and the escape of our hero, McQueen, on a motorcycle stolen from a German soldier. Beautiful bike riding, if motorcycles move you at all! And some humor.

SEVEN is about a group of gun- fighters who answer a plea for help, and try to save a village of Mexican farmers from a Mexican bandit. McQueen shares the hero spot with Yul Brenner, but I watched Charles Bronson more closely than I watched the leads. Too much blood, but then, all war must be terrible or we might become too fond of it.

END TO COLD FEET
EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) Fifty-year-old John Kennedy solved his chronic problem of cold feet by inventing a pair of electric shoes. Tired of trying to stamp warmth back into his toes he decided to put his army training as an engineer and his experience as an electrician to work.

The result electrically heated inner soles for his shoes and boots which look like mini electric blankets.

A wire runs from the shoes up John's trouser leg to a battery in his pocket. An effective gadget, John says, but not for the ladies unless they wear slacks.

Youth Conference Set

JEFFERSON CITY — After wading through he dense thicket of environmental confusion, a group of Missouri young people has scheduled an ambitious August 21-23 conference on environmental quality at Camp Windemere, near Roach, Missouri.

The full meeting will be called the Governor's Youth Conference on Environmental Quality.

The steering committee met at Department of Conservation headquarters on February 28 and worked out a program for the full conference which will attract some 300 youngsters from 15-20 years.

The full group will discuss in order: ecology, population, pollution (water, air and so- called "eye" or esthetic) and finally conservation education iaction -- what the youngsters can do in their home communities.

Representatives of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Campus Y, CYC, 4-H, Future Farmers and Future Homemakers of America, Red Cross Youth and the YWCA set up the program.

A Rare Find

WON WIDENER AT EIGHT

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — Primordial II, an 8-year-old Argentinian-bred, became the oldest horse to win the Widener Handicap at Hialeah Park when he scored in 1965. However, in 1969 the Chilean-bred Yumble matched that record. He also was eight.

A STRONG KICKER

DENVER (AP) — Bobby Howfield, British soccer kicker for the Denver Broncos, led the American Football League in the 1969 season by booting 43 of 64 kickoffs over the end zone so they could not be run back. He also kicked 69 of 70 points after touchdown in the last two seasons. His only miss was on a block.

Al Faces Legal Hurdles

By MIKE RATHET Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The American League was headed for court today, trying to clear three legal hurdles blocking transfer of the Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee—or face the possible alternative of operating as an 11-team league this season.

That possibility existed following Tuesday's developments in which:

—The reported transfer of the Pilots to Milwaukee was blocked by a restraining order obtained in Tampa and papers served by the State of Washington, both prohibiting the American League temporarily from moving the financially plagued club.

—The American League adopted a resolution in which it said, "There are ... reasons why the American League ... cannot continue financial support of the Pilots beyond the amount already committed."

"Our hands are tied right now," said American League President Joe Cronin after the day-long session, during which the owners were served papers by deputy sheriffs from Tampa and a representative of the attorney general's office in the State of Washington.

Cronin also said, "It's almost impossible to operate with 11 clubs," but the league's attorney, Sandy Hadden, admitted it's a "theoretical possibility."

The possibility could arise if the legal restraints cannot be removed in time for the opening of the season less than three weeks away and the Pilots' current owners, apparently running out of money, are forced to continue operation.

They, naturally, could only do that as long as their funds held out.

American League owners already have given the Pilots a loan of $650,000 to tide them through spring training. As for the possibility of the American League coming up with more money, the resolution seemed to rule that out.

Neither of the two most interested parties, meanwhile, had much to say after the latest developments in the muddled situation.

Bud Selig, president of Milwaukee Brewers Inc., a 14-man group seeking to acquire the Pilots, said, "There's not much I can say at this time." Max Soriano, representing the Pilots, said, "I have no reaction."

The rug was pulled out from under Al owners just before the start of their meeting, supposedly called to officially sanction a move from Seattle to Milwaukee, when Tampa deputy sheriffs appeared on the scene with temporary injunctions forbidding the move.

The injunction was sought by Alfred Schweppe, a Seattle attorney and season ticket-holder, who has paid $775 for tickets and parking for the next four seasons.

At the same time, the State of Washington appeared on the scene through an attorney who served papers in an $80 million suit brought Monday to stop the transfer or sale of the Pilots. Schweppe also has a suit pending in Seattle.

Those are the three legal hurdles that have to be cleared before the American League can make a move. It is apparent that, barring the restraining order, they would have moved — to Milwaukee. They all but said so in the resolution, pointing out:

"But for that restraint at this meeting it (the American League) would have given consideration to a transfer."

They still can do that if the legal restraints are removed in time.

Shannon May Be Phils Pick

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies may have their eye on Mike Shannon, St. Louis third baseman, as a replacement for Curt Flood in the seven-player deal that sent Richie Allen to the Cardinals.

Flood is suing organized baseball over the reserve clause and has said he will not report to the Phils while his suit is pending.

Writing from St. Petersburg, Fla., where the Phils walloped the Cards 14-2 Monday, Sports Editor Bob Broeg of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said today no one in an official capacity would comment on the players the Phils prefer to complete the off-season trade.

But, Broeg said, it is believed Philadelphia would like Shannon, a right-handed hitter, with the view of returning him to his regular position, right field. Shannon was shifted to third base to make room in the outfield when Roger Maris was acquired from New York in 1967.

HUNTING ACCIDENTS DECLINE

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Hunting accidents in New York state in 1969 declined for the fourth straight year, reports the Conservation Department.

There were eight fatal and 95 non-fatal accidents during 1969. This compares with nine fatal and 121 non-fatal mishaps in 1968.

Statistics compiled by the Bureau of Law Enforcement show that of the total number of accidents, 47 were self-inflicted, 49 hunters were shot by companions and seven were caused by unknown hunters.

Shotguns were involved in 56 accidents, rifles 38, other firearms seven and unknown two.

Moberly Advances In NJCAA Tourney

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Four-time champion Moberly, Mo., was one of six victors in first-round play in the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament Tuesday.

The Greyhounds, 29-7, nipped a tough Tyler, Tex., crew 95-94 as Andy Knowles scored 28 points and Virgil Tucker added 20. Tyler, 33-6, was sparked by Bobby Thompson's 26 points.

In other games Tuesday, North Dakota School of Science defeated Gadsden, Ala., 103-99, Grandview of Des Moines, Iowa, slipped past Broome Tech of Binghamton, N.Y. 99-93 in overtime, Northeastern of Miami, Okla., tripped Ephriam, Utah, 89-86, Lake City, Fla., dumped Kennedy-King of Chicago 72-63 and Casper, Who., blasted Christian College of Dallas, Tex., 83-69.

Today, Twin Falls, Idaho, tackles Ferrum, Va., and Vincennes, Ind., meets Bloomington, Del., to complete the first round.

There will be one consolation game and two second round contests in the evening.

The Wahpeton, N.D., club withstood Gadsden's late surge as Paul Hanson scored 30 points and Jim Jenkins added 29. Scoring honors went to Gadsden's Larry Ginn who had 31.

Grandview never headed Broome Tech until the teams went into overtime. Bob Hansen scored eight of his 34 points in the extra stanza to pace the winners. James Brodie had 22 for Binghampton.

Northeastern staged a late rally to gain its victory as Larry Brown scored 25 points and Corum Turner 20. Richard Kemp had 20 points for Snow.

Lake City was in control throughout with Larry Quarrels hitting for 24 points and Bernard Coller for 23. Sam Allen had 21 for Kennedy-King.

Casper blitzed the Texans by a 21-8 margin in the last six minutes to claim victory. Abe Steward had 22 points for the Wyoming team and Steve Davidson scored 18 for Dallas.

UCLA Prepaired To Defend Title

By TOM SEPPY Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach John Wooden says his UCLA team is physically and mentally prepared to defend its NCAA basketball championship titlebut he expects quite a battle from New Mexico State.

Wooden also disputes State coach Lou Henson who says the Amazin' Aggies are as physically strong as UCLA but lack the Bruins' speed and quickness.

"I've never run across two players more agile than Collins and Criss," said Wooden Thursday night after his team held a one hour workout at Georgetown University after arriving from the West Coast.

He referred to New Mexico State senior guards Jimmy Collins and Charley Criss.

UCLA, winner of 26 and loser of 2, was the first team to arrive for the finals at the University of Maryland this week. The others, New Mexico State, Jacksonville and St. Bonaventure, arrive today.

All but State work out at College Park today. The Aggies will hold a session Thursday morning.

Wooden said he brought his team in a day ahead of the others because he wanted the players to adjust to the time difference between the west and east coasts.

UCLA meets State, 25-2 for the Western championship Thursday night after Jacksonville, 26-1, plays St. Bonaventure, 25-1, for the Eastern title.

The winners of the two games play for the NCAA championship Saturday at 4:00 p.m. EST on national television (NBC).

Henson had nothing but accolades for the UCLA squad in a telephone news conference Tuesday afternoon for local writers covering the championship.

He said he believed the current UCLA team is as good as the three containing Lew Alcindor that won the NCAA championship the past three years.

Fans Get To Vote On All-Star Teams

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is a friend of the fan.

He proved that Tuesday in announcing that voting for the All-Star teams is shifting from the players to the fans.

The fans lost the ballots after the 1966 game at Washington, when exuberant Cincinnati fans stuffed the ballot box in favor of Reds' players.

"We had a very fine team of Cincinnati Reds that year for the National League," Kuhn joked. He made the announcement in St. Petersburg, Fla., with telephone hookups to New York and Fort Lauderdale.

The All-Star managers will continue their traditional selection of the starting pitchers and the reserves.

Under the new arrangement, Kuhn said the Gillette Company will print and distribute computerized style ballots to 75,000 voting outlets. These, plus voting outlets in major and minor league ball parks will provide a tremendous voting outlet, Kuhn said.

The voting will begin on May 30 and continue until June 28. During that time, the ballots will be regularly counted by a computer. The All-Star Game is scheduled for July 14 in Cincinnati.

There'll be only one vote per person. The voter will be required to fill in his name and address on the ballot.

The votes will be reviewed by a committee of "baseball and sports media experts" to be named by Kuhn. If the panel disputes a selection, the position will be voted on by the 12 managers and 12 players representatives from the league in question.

Giants Head For Japan

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

The Seattle Pilots aren't going to Milwaukee just yet, but at least one major league baseball team is on the move this week. The San Francisco Giants leave today for a nine-game tour of Japan, the first time a big league club has made the trip before the season.

The entire squad is making the trip, including slugging first baseman Willie McCovey, whose inflaoed right eye has been diagnosed as a side effect of a drug prescribed for arthritis in his right arm.

Dr. San Kimura of the University of California Medical School prescribed new medication and said McCovey's trouble should disappear before the Gians return to the States March 31, one week before the start of the season.

The Giants prepped for their trip by dropping an 8-6 exhibition contest Tuesday to the Chicago Cubs. The winners snapped a 6-all tie on eighth-inning singles by Cleo James and Paul Popovich.

Most of the baseball news, though, was made off the field.

—All sorts of papers were served on American League owners meeting in Tampa, Fla., preventing transfer of the Seattle franchise Milwaukee for the time being.

Pitcher Steve Carlton, the St. Louis Cardinals' last holdout, signed a two-year contract and said he was "completely satisfied." The Cards had ordered him to report under a section of baseball's reserve clause.

—Commissioner Bowie Kuhn disclosed that voting for the allstar teams is being given back to the fans.

The Grapefruit League highlight was Minnesota's first exhibition victory after nine defeats, a 5-2 triumph over the Cardinals. Jim Kaat hurled six strong innings, Tony Oliva drove in three runs and manager Bill Rigney had a ball — the game ball.

"Leo Cardenas came up to me after the game," Rigney reported, "and said, 'We waited a long time for this; you should have the ball.'"

While the Twins were breaking the ice, the Detroit Tigers continued to be beset by problems. They committed eight errors and the Kansas City Royals clobbered Mike Kilkenny, Fred Scherman and Dennis Saunders for 19 hits in a 12-4 rout.

Kilkenny took the loss, one of the few Irishmen who wasn't whooping it up on St. Patrick's Day.

Slick-fielding Ron Woods continued to wield a hot bat in his bid to crack the New York Yankees' outfield. Woods hammered a two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning, capping a huge rally — the Yanks trailed 8-0 after three innings — that climaxed in a 9-8 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. It was the third consecutive game Woods won with his bat. He hit .181 last season.

Gary Nolan pitched five scoreless innings and Johnny Bench and Ted Savage homered as the Cincinnati Reds tripped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2. Claude Osteen of the Los Angeles Dodgers worked a similar shutout span and rookie Steve Garvey slammed a three-run homer in a 5-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tryouts For Big Red Open

ST. LOUIS — The Football Cardinals will have their "spring weekend" for rookies again this year, with draft choices and free agents visiting here April 3-5.

The weekend workout also will be open to anyone who is interested in a tryout with the Big Red. The only prerequisite is that a candidate must contact Head Coach Charley Winner in writing in advance of the clinic. Winner will issue invitations.

This will be the third year of the weekend clinic, when Cardinal rookies get acquainted with the coaching staff and start on some football work. About 40 players are expected.

Players will arrive here Friday, April 3, take physicals Saturday morning and will work out Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning, returning to their homes Surday afternoon.

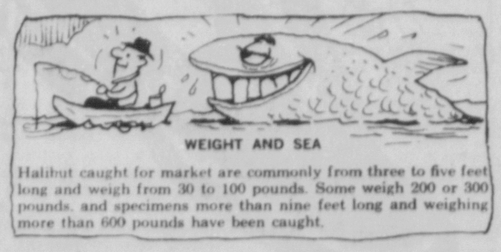

"The program has been a good one," Winner said. "It serves several purposes, beneficial to the players and to the coaches. We get a chance to do a little evaluation, like finding out which ones need to work on specific exercise programs, which ones need to gain or lose weight, and so on.

"We also check each boy's physical condition, and run them for time and in agility drills. We get a good general impression, and the boy gets a chance to learn what he must do to be ready for training camp in July."

Last season, nine Big Red rookies saw action during the season, a group which included offensive linemen Vern Emerson and Wayne Mulligan; defensive linemen Rolf Krueger and Cal Snowden; linebacker Chip Healy and defensive backs Roger Wehrli, Terry Brown, Mike Wilson and Nate Wright.

PAUL BUNYAN'S BOOTS? No, it's a photographic illusion of the mythical giant woodsman. The legs belong to a forester straddling a newly planted seedling fir in Canada. It's part of MacMillan Bloedel's forestry program aimed at planting 100 million trees by 1975.

WEIGHT AND SEA

Halibut caught for market are commonly from three to five feet long and weigh from 30 to 100 pounds. Some weigh 200 or 300 pounds, and specimens more than nine feet long and weighing more than 600 pounds have been caught.

WHO WAS "THE FATHER OF AMERICAN FOOTBALL"?

The late Walter Camp was called the "father of American football" and is credited with doing more for the intercollegiate game than any other man.

NEW MADRID high school basketball Coach Carroll Compton holds the Number One team trophy and Coach of the Year plaque presented by the Daily Standard's Sports Editor Ron Jaynes at an assembly. The Indians basketball team were voted by the Sports Panel of Coaches as the Number One team in the final poll and coach Compton was named as coach of the year.

Newspaper Honors 25 Athletes, 2 Coaches And New Madrid Indians Cage Team

Four big reasons why New Madrid finished with the best record (25-1) of any Southeast Missouri basketball team this season is spelled out today as the Daily Standard announces its All- Star All- Academic and coaches of the year as selected by the sports panel of coaches at its annual meeting last week.

Of course it takes a team effort, but the four mentioned spearheaded the drive.

Heading up the Indians big four honorees is coach Carroll Compton, who in 13 years of coaching led his team into the schools first state tournament and was voted the district's coach of the Year over Dexter's Jim Hart and Cape Central's Howard Garrett.

Compton's team was also picked as the "Number One" squad in Southeast Missouri for the 1969- 70 season in the final poll, racking up nine of a possible 15 first place votes for 141 points over runner- up Dexter's 131 points and four first place votes.

Two Indian players were selected to the 15- player Daily Standard "dream team." They were 6- foot- 3 James "Red" Tucker and 5- foot- 7 George "June Bug" Ross.

The fourth honoree of the Indians squad this season was reserve- starter Mark Baker, who with his defensive work and outstanding work in school earned him a place on the paper's 15- player All- Academic squad.

Headling up the teams which honor 25 cage players, is 6- foot- 6 scoring star Ken Andrews of Puxico, who was named to his third straight All- Academic team and to his first All- Star team as selected by the paper.

The little man shared the spotlight with he big boys on the Dream team as four players chosen for one of the 15 spots were under six- feet tall.

The All- Star teams only underclassman was 6- foot- 4 Steve Bock of Delta, who also was named to the Academic squad along with Advance's Tony Jenkins; Neelyville's Larry Wills and Don Botsch of Bernie, who were members of both squads along with Andrews.

Panel members selected Carl "Goober" Townsend and Bob "STP" Johnson as referees of the year for the second straight year in a row.

Two fo the players will be furthered honored tomorrow when the All-State team is announced.

A total of 25 basketballers, were selected to the teams as five players were chosen both ways.

Three are repeaters to the All- Star squad in Matthews' Kara Nunn; Sikeston's Larry Lawrence and Oran's Don Evans.

All- Academic repeaters are Tony Jenkins of Advance and Puxico's Andrews.

Dexter tied New Madrid with placing the most players on the All- Star squad, landing its one- two scoring punch of Lloyd Hyten and Mick Lynch among the top 15.

Six of the top 15 led their teams to regional championships and into the state tournament of their respective class.

Andrews (6-6) was the biggest player selected to either team while Ross was the smallest 5-7).

Maffeo, Cool Apprentice Rider, Is a Hot Jockey at Hialeah

MIAMI (AP) On the first Saturday of May of 1967, Charlie Maffeo made the 80-mile trip from Lexington, Ky., where he worked on a horse farm, to see the Kentucky Derby. He found a place near the quarter pole.

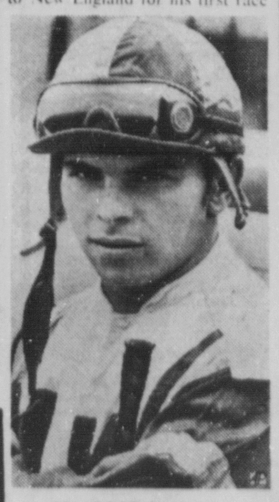

"I could watch the riders making their moves in the stretch and saw Bob Ussery come on with Proud Clarion," he recalled at Hialeah Park recently. "I was a great thrill to me. I want to be there on a Derby horse some day, and I want to win it."

Currently a top apprentice at Hialeah, Maffeo is farther than 80 miles from the Derby but much closer in stature. In 1965 he emigrated from his native Avelino, Italy, to Boston, having never seen a horse race. This year he came to Hialeah's mid-January opening fresh from setting a riding record at nearby Tropical Park, where he had 66 winners to be leading jockey.

"I couldn't speak English when I came over," the 22-year-old rider said, of his early days as an auto mechanic in Boston. "No one spoke Italian. Not being able to explain to anyone what was needed or what was wrong with the cars made it tough.

"Finally the boss politely suggested it might be best if I went to school and learned English, but I put it off. Friends got me interested in the race track, and an aunt introduced me to trainer Dick DeStasio after an open house at Suffolk Downs. I went to work for him as a groom."

Maffeo, who now speaks perfectly acceptable English, also had the experience of breaking yearlings in Kentucky, then returned to New England for his first race

last April. Some 30 races later he got both his first and second winners by wrapping up the daily double at Rockingham Park on July 15.

By the end of 1969 the 5-foot-1 apprentice of 108 pounds had 210 victories.

The competition is tough at Hialeah, especially with Sandy Hawley, a 20-year-old Canadian apprentice, off to a strong start the first few weeks.

"Maffeo has the greatest communication with a horse I've ever seen," says trainer Vinnie Blengs, who took Maffeo to Florida with DeStasio's blessing. "He's the coolest kid in the world — nothing bothers him. Horses really run for him."

THE GOOD OLD DAYS in farming may bring back fond memories. But, they might not all be pleasant as, remember the farm machinery seat at left? It calls to mind jouncing, bouncing rides on a horse- drawn cultivator; a spine- wrenching jolt when the wheel of a hay rake hit a woodchuck hole; the searing hot mteal of a grain binder blistered by a July sun, and long cold days riding a plow behind horses. The modern tractor seat used today, at right, might be a symbol of farm progress, certainly in the comfort department. Seats were among University of Missouri- Columbia College of Agriculture Centennial displays shown on the UMC campus.

Coffee Corner

—by Cherie—

I've always heard that "fact is stranger than fiction," and so it is!

Haven't you ever heard the story of the dog who followed its former owners from New York to California, without ever having any idea where they'd gone and taking 3 years to do so? Well, the only thing I can figure out is that dogs must have a built-in radar system, else how could they possibly do these things.

You're all familiear with our twelve- year old poodle Coquette de Viverette, better known among her everyday circle of friends as Coco that fat blonde. Anyway, about a week and a half ago she was riding in the car with me when I stopped by someone's house for about 3 minutes. While visiting at the door her poodle, a gorgeous chocolate male went prancing out to my car and spoke, (I should have been listening more carefully to their conversation), sweetly to my Coco. He was taken in the house and we left. Now, the windows of the car were up so scent can have nothing to do with this strange tale. About four days ago, Coco suddenly became to the neighborhood not just any fat old blonde, but that luscious fat French blonde Coquette and popularity was the price we paid. Night before last we arrived home at midnight, let Coco out for a minute while I told the babysitter good night, turned back to the dog and she had vanished! Well, I searched and called and got madder and madder and finally informed Charles (who was quite amused that she had put one over on me), that I was to old for this sort of nonsense and so was she and I was going to bed and forget her! Sure I did. At one I got in the car and rode up and down the streets just dreading what I might find lying in a ditch as she never goes out of her yard and only knows a car as something to go riding in. No luck, I was frozen and returned home to warm my feet on Charles back and go on to sleep. Sure I did. At two I again arose, this time I found a golf sock to cover one foot and a bobby sock on the other to keep me warm and sallied forth again, and who do you think I saw peeking around the corner of the house. One little black nose topped by a blonde fluff of puff, and one little black nose topped by a brown fluff of puff. Now you tell me how that old dog had found her way to that male Romeo poodles home and lured him back with her. She was so pleased, she came huffing and puffing up the steps and him right behind her and me ready for wholesale murder. No wonder it took her two hours, I'll bet she had to stop every ten feet and rest, I haven't seen her make it to the end of the driveway without resting at least once in years. Now men of science explain that one. I will say one thing for her, she does have marvelous taste, I couldn't have picked a prettier fellow myself; see there, she may be fat, but she's still got class!!!

Broseley Man Beaten, Robbed

BROSELEY - Doyle F. Smith, 22, Broseley, reported to the highway patrol that three men beat and robbed him of $30 about 12:30 a.m. Sunday as he was hitchhiking along highway AA about a half-mile south of highway 60.

Smith told Cpl. Robert Mouser of the patrol that he flagged down a car, believed to be a 1960 model Ford, and the three occupants jumped out, beat him, and robbed him. Smith said the men were Negroes.

Banquet Circuit Grows For Coleene McCollum

WEST POINT, Miss - After flame-haired Colleene McCollum got the ax from her controversial television show, it didn't take her long to tire of bridge clubs and the relaxed social life of the Golden Triangle.

In fact, being fired from her 12-year-old TV show may have been a blessing. She is now one of West Point's most traveled women. She scoots from coast to coast giving lectures on sex and marriage to rollicking audiences. She spoke last year at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet in Sikeston, Mo. Her fees range from $200 to $600 per engagement

"There's a tremendous demand for a good woman speaker - especially on a provocative subject," she says.

Although her bouncing effervescence has been tempered somewhat by being on the same platform with such luminaries as Hubert Humphrey and Shirley Temple Black, she is quick to chuckle about the one time she was left speechless.

"I was on a flight to speak before a convention and this man sitting next to me asked what I did. I told him I lectured on sex and marriage. He paused, looked at me searchingly and asked "which do you prefer?"

Mrs. McCollum says she looks forward to a time when her two children finish school and her agents in Montreal, Dallas nd Chicago no longer have to turn down requests for appearances. So far she has lectured in 36 states and two foreign countries.

After college at Blue Mountain, Miss., Mrs. McCollum studied opera and theater at Juilliard School of Music in New York and worked with experimental television in the early 1950s.

"While in New Pork I auditioned for a Eugene O'Neill play on Broadway and lost the part of a Maine lady ot Patricia Neal who became an instant star," she laughs.

Although her Mississippi drawl lost her the part, it helped her to make her niche in New York.

"I had to go to work and ended up the only gentile in an orthodox Jewish clothing firm in Manhattan. They hired me because they thought my southern accent would help to draw curious Yiddish-speaking customers," she said.

Progressing from theater auditions and radio and television commercials she ended up in Northeast Mississippi not far from her childhood home of Tupelo and married a softspoken West Point pharmacist, H. Owens McCollum.

She got her own hourly TV show entitled Something for the Girls on a regional station in the mid-1950x. "But," she said, "after 12 years I was fired because the program became too controversial."

"We talked about birth control, the seamy side of politics, religious phonies and spiritualism. The FCC was leaning on controversial shows so off the air I went."

Helping bounce her off the airwaves, she recalls, included guests weird to the area such as a Nazi and even "a Cajun commedian who later bombed on the Ed Sullivan Show."

She is not likely to win many points with women's club members.

"One thing I preach to women is to not get involved in lots of things. There's nothing mind expanding about playing bridge or going to club meetings that don't accomplish anything.

"There's too damn many things going on like the PTA and garden clubs that sap a woman's time, and before she knows it she has nothing left for herself or her family."

After being bounced off the air and quickly finding herself bored with the club life she preaches against, she consulted with friends and put together an address on sex and marriage.

She is now writing a book entitled "How to Have an Affair With Your Husband."

Although sex and marriage is her theme for nearly every address, she alters the format to "bear the traffic."

"If I speak to young sophisticated women I let all the stops out, but my talks toned down for chamber of commerce-type mixed gourps."

April 2 Date for Delivery

BENTON - Holders of 1969 stored corn on their farms should remember the date of April 2, Kenneth Vowels, office manager of Agricultural Stablization Conservation Services, said today.

All who have farm stored corn are being notified to deliver the grain by this date, because of general storage conditions in the area. The office manager said all postcards must be completed by producers and returned to the county office prior to April 2.

These farmers who stored corn may either repay the loan, deliver the commodity to Commodity Credit Corporation or request to hold the grain until July 31. The latter request is for producers, who have permanent storage and are equipped to safely store corn through the period.

In the event the storage is extended, written applications must be filed with the county office and approved by the state committee. The grain must be sampled by the county office and graded No. 3 or better and must contain no more than 14.5 per cent moisture. If approved for the extended storage the producer must retain the quality and quantity throughout.

Vowels reminded producers that grain stored on the farm cannot be sold, fed to livestock, or moved from the storage structure without approval of the county committee. This applies to corn, soybeans, wheat, and grain sorghum in storage structures. Holders of the loans need only to visit or telephone the county ASC office to obtain release of the grain.

Balloting Slated at 4,646 Precincts

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— Missourians will be voting in 4,646 precincts at the April 7 referendum on the income tax revision bill.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick released the county-bycounty precinct list today. It compares with 4,705 precincts in the November 1968 general election.

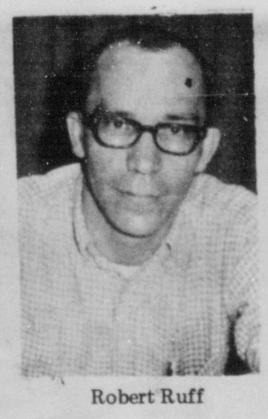

This time, for the first time, citizens will vote on all subjects — school boards, city officials, the income tax and local issues — at the same polling place. The change was made by the 1969 legislature in an effort to modernize Missouri election laws.

The result was that some precincts had to be re-aligned, and some consolidated.

State Capitol Occupants Honor Wearing of Green

A reporter made a doublecheck to assure himself that it wasn't money green. It wasn't. It's definitely the green of "the ould sod."

Robinson's office is in the southeastern corner of the capitol. In the northwestern corner are the offices of a man who is Irish 365 days of the year.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick doesn't have enough thatch on his head to dye, green or any other color. But he more than made up for it.

The women wore green dresses or suits and green carnations. Kirkpatrick issued a county by county list of precincts for the April 7 referendum election on the income tax revision — typed with a green ribbon, of course.

Someone sent him a green loaf of bread and he also got a big badge making him an "official shamrock inspector."

Kirkpatrick said Robinson stopped by and he admired the treasurer's slick green hairdo. Then he said with a gleam in his eyes:

"Wouldn't it be awful if it didn't wash out like the barber said it would?"

Bernie Native Named to Wisconsin Historical Post

MADISON, WIS. - Judge Thomas H. Barland, Eau Claire, president of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, today announced the appointment of Dr. James Morton Smith as the new director of the Society effective July 1.

Dr. Smith, a noted historian of colonial America, author of many scholarly historical works and now a professor of history at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., was a visiting professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, in 1964-65.

A former editor of publications and acting director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, an organization sponsored by Colonial Williamsburg, Inc. and the College of William and Mary, and director of the Coe Foundation Institute in American Studies at Hampton Institute, Smith will assume the director's position vacated by Dr. Leslie H. Fishel, jr., now president of Heidelberg College at Tiffin, Ohio. He will succeed Dr. Richard A. Erney, Madison, who has been acting director since June, 1969. Dr. Erney will resume the position of associate director of the Society.

Judge Barland said:

"The Society's selection committee searched widely to bring to Wisconsin the best talent to be found for this important job. In Dr. Smith we have found scholarly eminence, administrative ability and exceptional potential for this most demanding position, and we are indeed fortunate to obtain his services."

Born in Bernie, Mo., May 28, 1919, Smith is married to the former Kathryn Hegler of Benton, Ill., they have two children, Melissa Jane, 18, and James Morton, Jr., 13.

Dr. Smith graduated from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, in 1941, and holds a master of arts degree from the University of Oaklahoma, Norman. He received his doctorate from Cornell University in 1951. He has taught at Butler University, Indianapolis, Ohio State University, Columbus, the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va.; and Duke University, Durham, N.D. In 1966 he joined the faculty at Cornel University.

Author of articles and scholarly reviews, and recipient of many fellowships and awards, Smith has written four books on history and has contributed to history textbooks. Among the titles he has authored are: "Freedom's Fetters: The Alien and Sedition Laws and American Civil Liberties"; "Liberty and Justice: A Historical Record of American Constitutional Development"; "Seventeenth-Century America: Essays in Colonial History"; and "George Washington: A Profile". He is now completing a three-volume work on the correspondence of Jefferson and Madison.

Noting Smith's extensive academic experience, Judge Barland commented: "In addition to Dr. Smith's imposing scholarly achievements, he brings to Wisconsin a deep interest and conviction of the need for popular presentation of history."

Smith has served on the board of editors of the Journal of Southern History, the Editorial Committee of the Papers of John Marshall and as the chairman of the Editorial Board of the George Mason Papers.

Smith, a member of the Organization of American Historians, American Historical Association, the Southern Historical Association, Historic Ithaca, and the International Commission for the History of Representative and Parliamentary Institutions, served in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve in World War II attaining the rank of lieutenant.

Danforth Rules Teacher Insurance Part of Compensation

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth Monday clarified the duties of school boards which buy insurance for their teachers.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, asked for the opinion last November and a week ago criticized Danforth for delay in answering his request.

Danforth held that if a school board buys insurance for its teachers, the premiums must be considered as part of the teachers' compensation. Therefore the total amount is subject to deductions for the withholding of state income tax and for contributions to the teachers' retirement system.

He said insurance premiums must come from the teachers' fund.

Municipal League Endorses Tax Plan

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Directors of the Missouri Municipal League voted unanimously Monday to endorse the state income tax revision proposal. The public will vote on the proposal April 7.

Jaems Egan, Florisant mayor, urged the organization to become active in supporting the tax. He said the league represents about 75 per cent of the Missouri population and 357 cities.

No one disputes that our current best field tank is better than any tank any other nation has or is developing. The MBT-70 was to be a "dream tank." Yet after hundreds of millions of dollars and seven years, the Army still can't make its "dream tank" work.

Last year the Senate accepted my amendment to cut $10 million from the tank's appropriation.

Now the Army has announced that the MBT-70 will be no more. Unfortunately they're not dropping the project; they're just changing the name.

Henceforth the MBT-70 will be known as "Tank, Combat, Full Tracked: 152MM Gun-Launcher XM803." For short, I assume.

Bloomfield Man Burned In Explosion

BLOOMFIELD — Forrest Jones, 71, of Route two, suffered severe burns of the face when an LP gas tank exploded at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Jones had started a heater in a camper on his pick- up truck shortly before 5 p.m., and then went back to his house. When he returned to he camper, which was parked in a garage, and opened the door, the explosion occurred. It is believed that a small LP tank attached to the heater exploded

Neighbors took Jones to the Dexter Memorial hospital, where he was found to have suffered second and third degree burns of the face area. His daughter- in law, Mrs. Harold Jones of Bloomfield, reported that he is improving.

Blaze Destroys Caruthersville Drug Store

CARUTHERSVILLE — Prescription Drug Store was destroyed by fire Tuesday according to the Pemiscot County Sheriff's Department. The building and its contents were lost.

The Hayti fire department was called to assist in fighting the blaze at 3 a.m., and helped keep the fire from spreading to other buildings. Firemen believe the fire started upstairs in an apartment, although no official word has been received as to how the fire started.

Jerry Dudley of Caruthersville was the store's owner.

Eastland Fears Indoctrination Of Cane Cutters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1,000 Americans who recently journeyed to Cuba to harvest sugar cane are "being indoctrinated and trained to attack and destroy our government and institutions," Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., charged Monday.

The young Americans sailed from Canada last month with the announced purpose of harvesting the sugar cane. But Eastland said they would be of little or no help in that job.

"It is not a likelihood but a very clear and present danger that these militant revolutionaries will return to the United States to implement the Communist purpose of causing chaos, confusion, and outright revolution in our institutions of higher learning, in the streets of our cities, and across our nation," Eastland told the Senate.

He said his internal security subcommittee would soon begin hearings into the matter.

Meanwhile, the State Department announced it would ease restrictions for travel to mainland China for anybody with a "legitimate purpose."

Restrictions, however, would remain in force for Americans wanting their passports validated for travel to Cuba, North Vietnam and North Korea.

Each year consumers spend an increasingly large amount of their income for services ranging from major repairs, to minor adjustments. Buying services is different from buying goods, which a consumer can examine, touch and see before purchasing. When buying services the consumer places his trust in the person performing the service.

Your Better Business Bureau suggests you know the firm's reputation before you engage its services. Although most service firms are honest, there are a few which cause a majority of the complaints. Be careful when a concern offers service at an extremely low price. Reputable firms will provide written estimates and give approximate cost of their services before contracting to do the work, and a full itemized statement when the service is completed.

Your best assurance is to deal only with a service firm you know is reliable. When in doubt, check the experience of other customers or contact your Better Business Bureau.

Hand-Operated Bakery at No Loss for Customers

FRONTENAC, Kan. (AP) — It is 3 o'clock on a Sunday afternoon. The bread is out of the oven. Its aroma fills the air. Customers, who have been waiting, begin picking up the loaves while they are still hot.

This is the Frontenac Bakery, in a small building two blocks off Frontenac's main street. Frontenac is just north of Pittsburg.

Buying bread here is not merely a matter of stocking the larder. It is an excursion into the past.

The bakery disdains automation. It makes bread as it was made years ago. In this place the human hand is still much in use.

Mike Spritzer is the proprietor. He is a young man, but tradition-minded. Before him his father, Martin Spritzer, ran the bakery, and before that his maternal grandfather, the late George Vacca.

The Italian-born Vacca founded the bakery Feb. 14, 1900.

"We make only 300 to 500 loaves a day in the week," Mike Spritzer said. "On Sunday we make more. Sunday is our big retail day. We're closed on Tuesdays and Saturdays."

The bakery's long, hard-crusted Italian loaf is its No. 1 product.

"It is cooked on the bricks in the oven," Spritzer said. "We make what we call French bread from the same dough. It is cooked in pans and the crust is softer."

Except for the work of an old electric mixer and dicer, everything is done by hand.

Spritzer gets up early to fire the furnace. Until six or seven years ago it was fired with wood. "Wood got expensive and we converted to gas," he said.

After the old Dutchess oven reaches 600 degrees the heat is turned off. Baking begins at about 400 degrees. The bread is cooked with the retained heat.

About 1 p.m. on weekdays the bread starts coming out of the oven and customers begin picking it up. Some of it is sliced, but most isn't. Sacking is by hand.

Work is done with a small staff. Martin Spritzer still helps out part time. So does Mike's wife, Irene, and Mrs. Mary Konek. Mrs. Zola Davis works full time.

The fixture around the place is Geno Giacoretti, an employe 41 years. His fingers, working in dough, seem to have eyes. How many loaves of bread does he guess he has handled.

"About 15 million," he said.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Trailer Camper Devises His Own Radio Antenna

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I have good news for those owners of campers and travel trailers who cannot get radio reception. We used our camper for three years without a radio before we discovered how to get up to 15 different stations. Take approximately 25 feet of insulated wire, loop the center six or seven times to about 12 inches in diameter and lay the looped portion on your transistor radio. Run the ends outside, through a hole drilled near where the radio sets. Attach one end of the wire to the camper or trailer and ground the other end to a six- or eight-inch piece of metal (a screwdriver will do) stuck in the ground. I tell all my traveling friends about this and all say it has worked for them.—EARL

DEAR EARL—I do very much the same thing with a radio that plugs into an electric socket and did not have very good reception. A key tied to the end of the wire which hangs out the window did the trick for me.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am a skier who usually must wear glasses. I do not wear them when I ski but do when riding the chair lift back to the top of the slope to enjoy the scenery. I would appreciate hearing of a clever way to carry my glasses when I am not wearing them. Surely I am not the only skier with this problem.—D. M.

DEAR POLLY—I was always forgetting which clothes had stains on them until the laundry was washed and hung on the line and I would see them. Now I clothespin each stain before the clothes go into the hamper. These pins are a reminder to treat the spots before laundering.—MRS. J. M.

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Over Teased whose synthetic hair pieces are looking dull and lifeless. She should wash them as usual, rinse in clear water and then rinse in a warm water solution with about ¼ cup of fabric softener. The pieces come out soft and manageable.—SALLIE

DEAR GIRLS—A gentleman whose business is the grooming of wigs told me that using a mild shampoo and rinsing would make synthetic hair pieces easy to brush out but he had known of those who added the softener. The piece can be dried naturally in a warm (not hot) air dryer.—POLLY

Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.
Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden Sank to grief,
So dawn goes down to day.
Nothing gold can stay.

Nature was frequently the theme for Robert Frost (1874-1963), one of America's best known poets. In today's column, amateur poets express their thoughts on nature.

REMEMBER?
The wind blows the morning by
And clouds are set beneath the sun,
Nothing left but to laugh or cry,
Then look for a mirror - a magic one.

A tall tree stands alone
A bird sings on a hill,
Whispering grasses green and unproven,
Day lies dying in the chill.

A million years, by day and night
The mourning bell does rest and sigh,
Only their sun shines so bright,
Who will remember- today I die!

NATURE'S ACROBATS
Old leaves...
Dry leaves.
Skittering across a beach
of winter - dead lawn,
Refugees clinging lightly
To a woven- wire fence
as if to a freedom wall,
Acrobats soaring through Cold air as only
birds should do...
Oaks and sycamores lose
leaves,
Flat and curved,
each taking its own path
Away from the mother
branch
To make room for new buds and spring.

—Sami,
Sikeston, Mo.

AUGUST TRIOLOGY: 1967
(pt.)

A cool autumn day
the brisk winds of change
pull leaves from indifferent trees like aged hairs,
baldness slipping in,
I button up my coat a little more;
do I dread the day

me and not the air.

—TLORM,
Truman, Ark.

AND THE LEAF FALLS
See the little leaf floating
through the air?
It's free to fly but first it had to die
and I shudder.

I walk alone through that dream
down the footpaths of my mind
with my footsteps keeping time to a melody laced with rhyme
and I'm wondering
just where I am going.

You're not alone my pretty
one,
The blinding sun is shadowing my run
from man's blunder.

Balloting Slated at 4,646 Precincts

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— Missourians will be voting in 4,646 precincts at the April 7 referendum on the income tax revision bill.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick released the county-bycounty precinct list today. It compares with 4,705 precincts in the November 1968 general election.

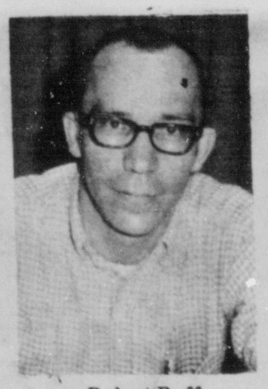

This time, for the first time, citizens will vote on all subjects — school boards, city officials, the income tax and local issues — at the same polling place. The change was made by the 1969 legislature in an effort to modernize Missouri election laws.

The result was that some precincts had to be re-aligned, and some consolidated.

State Capitol Occupants Honor Wearing of Green

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — William E. Robinson, Missouri state treasurer, showed up at his office Tuesday with his normally snowy hair dyed kelly green.

A reporter made a doublecheck to assure himself that it wasn't money green. It wasn't. It's definitely the green of "the ould sod."

Robinson's office is in the southeastern corner of the capitol. In the northwestern corner are the offices of a man who is Irish 365 days of the year.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick doesn't have enough thatch on his head to dye, green or any other color. But he more than made up for it.

Normally his office is replete with green—rugs, furniture, ink pens...

Tuesday, all his staff wore green-dyed carnations. The men wore green suits if possible and all wore green ties of various shades. Kirkpatrick served rolls with green dyed fruit centers and green fruit punch to visitors.

The women wore green dresses or suits and green carnations. Kirkpatrick issued a county by county list of precincts for the April 7 referendum election on the income tax revision — typed with a green ribbon, of course.

Someone sent him a green loaf of bread and he also got a big badge making him an "official shamrock inspector."

Kirkpatrick said Robinson stopped by and he admired the treasurer's slick green hairdo. Then he said with a gleam in his eyes:

"Wouldn't it be awful if it didn't wash out like the barber said it would?"

Bernie Native Named to Wisconsin Historical Post

MADISON, WIS. - Judge Thomas H. Barland, Eau Claire, president of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, today announced the appointment of Dr. James Morton Smith as the new director of the Society effective July 1.

Dr. Smith, a noted historian of colonial America, author of many scholarly historical works and now a professor of history at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., was a visiting professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, in 1964-65.

A former editor of publications and acting director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, an organization sponsored by Colonial Williamsburg, Inc. and the College of William and Mary, and director of the Coe Foundation Institute in American Studies at Hampton Institute, Smith will assume the director's position vacated by Dr. Leslie H. Fishel, jr., now president of Heidelberg College at Tiffin, Ohio. He will succeed Dr. Richard A. Erney, Madison, who has been acting director since June, 1969. Dr. Erney will resume the position of associate director of the Society.

Judge Barland said:

"The Society's selection committee searched widely to bring to Wisconsin the best talent to be found for this important job. In Dr. Smith we have found scholarly eminence, administrative ability and exceptional potential for this most demanding position, and we are indeed fortunate to obtain his services."

Born in Bernie, Mo., May 28, 1919, Smith is married to the former Kathryn Hegler of Benton, Ill., they have two children, Melissa Jane, 18, and James Morton, Jr., 13.

Dr. Smith graduated from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, in 1941, and holds a master of arts degree from the University of Oaklahoma, Norman. He received his doctorate from Cornell University in 1951. He has taught at Butler University, Indianapolis, Ohio State University, Columbus, the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va.; and Duke University, Durham, N.D. In 1966 he joined the faculty at Cornel University.

Author of articles and scholarly reviews, and recipient of many fellowships and awards, Smith has written four books on history and has contributed to history textbooks. Among the titles he has authored are: "Freedom's Fetters: The Alien and Sedition Laws and American Civil Liberties"; "Liberty and Justice: A Historical Record of American Constitutional Development"; "Seventeenth-Century America: Essays in Colonial History"; and "George Washington: A Profile". He is now completing a three-volume work on the correspondence of Jefferson and Madison.

Noting Smith's extensive academic experience, Judge Barland commented: "In addition to Dr. Smith's imposing scholarly achievements, he brings to Wisconsin a deep interest and conviction of the need for popular presentation of history."

Smith has served on the board of editors of the Journal of Southern History, the Editorial Committee of the Papers of John Marshall and as the chairman of the Editorial Board of the George Mason Papers.

Smith, a member of the Organization of American Historians, American Historical Association, the Southern Historical Association, Historic Ithaca, and the International Commission for the History of Representative and Parliamentary Institutions, served in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve in World War II attaining the rank of lieutenant.

Danforth Rules Teacher Insurance Part of Compensation

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth Monday clarified the duties of school boards which buy insurance for their teachers.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, asked for the opinion last November and a week ago criticized Danforth for delay in answering his request.

Danforth held that if a school board buys insurance for its teachers, the premiums must be considered as part of the teachers' compensation. Therefore the total amount is subject to deductions for the withholding of state income tax and for contributions to the teachers' retirement system.

He said insurance premiums must come from the teachers' fund.

Municipal League Endorses Tax Plan

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Directors of the Missouri Municipal League voted unanimously Monday to endorse the state income tax revision proposal. The public will vote on the proposal April 7.

Jaems Egan, Florissant mayor, urged the organization to become active in supporting the tax. He said the league represents about 75 per cent of the Missouri population and 357 cities.

Frankly Speaking

By
THOMAS F. EAGLETON
U.S. Senator—Missouri

WASHINGTON IN BRIEF

Laos. Some of the facts with respect to American military participation in Laos are slowly emerging. The truth is that we are significantly engaged in Laos — in a way hauntingly reminiscent of our early to eliminate entirely within the involvement in Vietnam back in the 1950s.

If there is one thing on which all Americans agree, it is that we want no more Vietnams. Senator Symington has held extensive hearings on the subject of Laos, pick out this comparatively tiny and he has been leading the fight amount in a 19 billion dollar to have the full nature of our bill, participation them made known to the American public.

The public was the right to $40,000 to hold a White House know what is going on," he says. Conference — Children and I agree. The public owes Senator Youth – to talk about problems Symington a great debt of – while at the same time gratitude for his thorough ordering the elimination of a analysis of the escalating program costing only half as American role in Laos and for much that would have actually his diligence in pressing the done something about a Administration to make the problem.

facts- all the facts- publicly OUR IMAGINATIVE available. PENTAGON. To my mind, the DENTAL CARE FOR POOR MAN-BATTLE TANK-70 (MBT-70) CHILDREN. Well, not this year, is a perfect example of wasteful To make the once- vetoed Pentagon spending on a weapons appropriations bill for the system we neither need nor can Department of Health, afford. Education and Welfare and the No one disputes that our current best field tank is better than any tank any other nation has or is developing. The MBT-70 was to be a "dream tank." Yet after hundreds of millions of dollars and seven years, the Army still can't make the "dream tank" work.

Last year the Senate accepted my amendment to cut $10 million from the tank's appropriation.

Now the Army has announced that the MBT-70 will be no more. Unfortunately they're not dropping the project; they're just changing the name.

Hence forth the MBT-70 will be known as "Tank, Combat, Full Tracked: 152MM Gun-Launcher XM803." For short, I assume.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT. I would like to close with this item from a recent newsletter written by Senator Stephen M. Young of Ohio:

"We Senators could take a tip from this: The Lord's Prayer has 56 words; Lincoln's Gettysburg Address 266; the Ten Commandments 297; the Declaration of Independence 300. A recent government order on the price of cabbage has 26,911 words!"

Bloomfield Man Burned In Explosion

BLOOMFIELD — Forrest Jones, 71, of Route two, suffered severe burns of the face when an LP gas tank exploded at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Jones had started a heater in a camper on his pick- up truck shortly before 5 p.m., and then went back to his house. When he returned to he camper, which was parked in a garage, and opened the door, the explosion occurred. It is believed that a small LP tank attached to the heater exploded

Neighbors took Jones to the Dexter Memorial hospital, where he was found to have suffered second and third degree burns of the face area. His daughter- in - law, Mrs. Harold Jones of Bloomfield, reported that he is improving.

Blaze Destroys Caruthersville Drug Store

CARUTHERSVILLE — Prescription Drug Store was destroyed by fire Tuesday according to the Pemiscot County Sheriff's Department. The building and its contents were lost.

The Hayti fire department was called to assist in fighting the blaze at 3 a.m., and helped keep the fire from spreading to other buildings. Firemen believe the fire started upstairs in an apartment, although no official word has been received as to how the fire started.

Jerry Dudley of Caruthersville was the store's owner.

Einstein's theory of relativity said that time would pass more slowly aboard a space ship going at extremely high speed than it does on earth. The World Almanac notes. Showing how at least one aspect of time's relativity is common experience. Einstein said: "When you sit with a nice girl for two hours you think it's only a minute. But when you sit on a hot stove for a minute you think it's two hours. That's relativity."

Eastland Fears Indoctrination Of Cane Cutters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1,000 Americans who recently journeyed to Cuba to harvest sugar cane are "being indoctrinated and trained to attack and destroy our government and institutions," Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., charged Monday.

The young Americans sailed from Canada last month with the announced purpose of harvesting the sugar cane. But Eastland said they would be of little or no help in that job.

"It is not a likelihood but a very clear and present danger that these militant revolutionaries will return to the United States to implement the Communist purpose of causing chaos, confusion, and outright revolution in our institutions of higher learning, in the streets of our cities, and across our nation," Eastland told the Senate.

He said his internal security subcommittee would soon begin hearings into the matter.

Meanwhile, the State Department announced it would ease restrictions for travel to mainland China for anybody with a "legitimate purpose."

Restrictions, however, would remain in force for Americans wanting their passports validated for travel to Cuba, North Vietnam and North Korea.

Each year consumers spend an increasingly large amount of their income for services ranging from major repairs, to minor adjustments. Buying services is different from buying goods, which a consumer can examine, touch and see before purchasing. When buying services the consumer places his trust in the person performing the service.

Your Better Business Bureau suggests you know the firm's reputation before you engage his services. Although most services firms are honest, there are a few which cause a majority of the complaints. Be careful when a concern offers service at an extremely low price. Reputable firms will provide written estimates and give approximate cost of their services before contracting to do the work, and a full itemized statement when the service is completed.

Your best assurance is to deal only with a service firm you know is reliable. When in doubt, check the experience of other customers or contact your Better Business Bureau.

Hand-Operated Bakery at Caruthersville Has No Loss for Customers

FRONTENAC, Kan. (AP) — It is 3 o'clock on a Sunday afternoon. The bread is out of the oven. Its aroma fills the air. Customers, who have been waiting, begin picking up the loaves while they are still hot.

This is the Frontenac Bakery, in a small building two blocks off Frontenac's main street — Frontenac is just north of Pittsburg.

Buying bread here is not merely a matter of stocking the larder. It is an excursion into the past.

"The bakery disdains automation. It makes bread as it was made years ago. In this place the human hand is still much in use.

Mike Spritzer is the proprietor. He is a young man, but tradition-minded. Before him his father, Martin Spritzer, ran the bakery, and before that his maternal grandfather, the late George Vacca.

The Italian-born Vacca founded the bakery Feb. 14, 1905.

"We make only 300 to 500 loaves a day in the week," Mike Spritzer said. "On Sunday we make more. Sunday is our big retail day. We're closed on Tuesdays and Saturdays."

The bakery's long, hard-crusted Italian loaf is its No. 1 product.

"It is cooked on the bricks in the oven," Spritzer said. "We make what we call Frenchbread from the same dough. It is cooked in pans and the crust is softer."

Except for the work of an old electric mixer and slicer, everything is done by hand.

Spritzer gets up early to fire the furnace. Until six or seven years ago it was fired with wood. "Wood got expensive and we converted to gas," he said.

After the old Dutchess oven reaches 600 degrees the heat is turned off. Baking begins at about 400 degrees. The bread is cooked with the retained heat.

About 1 p.m. on weekdays the bread starts coming out of the oven and customers begin picking it up. Some of it is sliced, but most isn't. Sacking is by hand.

Work is done with a small staff. Martin Spritzer still helps out part time. So does Mike's wife, Irene, and Mrs. Mary Konek. Mrs. Zola Davis works full time.

The fixture around the place is Geno Giacometti, an employe 41 years. His fingers, working in dough, seem to have eyes. How many loaves of bread does he guess he has handled.

"About 15 million," he said.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Trailer Camper Devises His Own Radio Antenna

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I have good news for those owners of campers and travel trailers who cannot get radio reception. We used our camper for three years without a radio before we discovered how to get up to 15 different stations. Take approximately 25 feet of insulated wire, loop the center six or seven times to about 12 inches in diameter and lay the looped portion on your transistor radio. Run the ends outside, through a hole drilled near where the radio sets. Attach one end of the wire to the camper or trailer and ground the other end to a six- or eight-inch piece of metal (a screwdriver will do) stuck in the ground. I tell all my traveling friends about this and all say it has worked for them.—EARL

DEAR EARL—I do very much the same thing with a radio that plugs into an electric socket and did not have very good reception. A key tied to the end of the wire which hangs out the window did the trick for me.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am a skier who usually must wear glasses. I do not wear them when I ski but do when riding the chair lift back to the top of the slope to enjoy the scenery. I would appreciate hearing of a clever way to carry my glasses when I am not wearing them. Surely I am not the only skier with this problem.—D. M.

DEAR POLLY—I was always forgetting which clothes had stains on them until the laundry was washed and hung on the line and I would see them. Now I clothespin each stain before the clothes go into the hamper. These pins are a reminder to treat the spots before laundering.—MRS. J. M.

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Over Tweased whose synthetic hair pieces are looking dull and lifeless. She should wash them as usual, rinse in clear water and then rinse in a warm water solution with about ¼ cup of fabric softener. The pieces come out soft and manageable.—SALLIE

DEAR GIRLS—A gentleman whose business is the cleaning of wigs said we that using a mild shampoo and rinsing would make synthetic hair pieces easy to brush out but he had known of those who added the softener. The piece can be dried naturally or under a warm (not hot) air dryer.—POLLY

BY CHARLES FRANCIS BRADY

NOTHING GOLD CAN STAY
By Robert Frost

Nature's first green is gold,
Her harvest hue to hold.
Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.
Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden Sank to grief,
So dawn goes down to day.
Nothing gold can stay.

Nature was frequently the theme for Robert Frost (1874-1963), one of America's best known poets. In today's Column, amateur poets express their thoughts on nature.

REMEMBER?

The wind blows the morning by
And clouds are set beneath the sun,
Nothing left but to laugh or cry,
Then look for a mirror - a magic one.

A tall tree stands alone
A bird sings on a hill,
Whispering grasses green and unbrown,
Day lies dying in the chill.

A million years, by day and night
The mourning bell does rest and sigh,
Only their sun shines so bright,
Who will remember- today I die!

NATURE'S ACROBATS
Old leaves..
Dry leaves.
Skittering across a beach
of winter - dead lawn,
Refugees clinging tightly
To a woven- wire fence
as if to a freedom wall,
Acrobats soaring through Cold air as only
birds should do...
Oaks and sycamores lose leaves,
Flat and curved,
each taking its own path
Away from the mother branch
To make room for new buds and spring.

—Sami,
Sikeston, Mo.

AUGUST TRIOLOGY: 1967
(p3)
A cool autumn day
the brisk winds of change pull leaves from indifferent trees like aged hairs,
baldness slipping in,
I button up my coat a little more;
do I dread the day

me and not the air.
—TLORM,
Truman, Ark.

AND THE LEAF FALLS
See the little leaf floating
through the wind.
The day is fair but there's no one to cry
or to wonder.

Winding and weaving while gracing the sky.
It's free to fly but first it had to die
and I shudder.

I walk alone through that dream down the footpaths of my mind with my footsteps keeping time to a melody laced with rhyme
and I'm wondering
just where I am going.

You're not alone my pretty one,
The blinding sun is shadowing my run
from man's blunder.

ARMED FORCES

CHARLESTON, S. C. – Sergeant James E. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cook of Morley, Mo., is a member of a unit that has earned the U. S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

Sergeant Cook, a jet engine mechanic in the 437th Military Airlift Wing, Charleston, AFB, S. C., will wear the distinctive service ribbon to mark his affiliation with the unit.

The wing was cited for meritorious service in support of military operations from July 1968 to July 1969. It is part of the Military Airlift Command which provides global airlift for U. S. military forces.

Sergeant Cook is a 1966 graduate of Scott County Central High School. His wife, Rose, is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothey Herring of Centralia, Ill.

Pfc. John A. Worley, St. Louis and formerly of Sikeston serving in South Vietnam with the Fourth division, with a dog, went ahead of his troop to scout the enemy.

He said the dog saved his life on two occasions. The third time the dog was shot, but when he went back to bury the animal, the enemy had taken the carcass and left the fur.

Worley attended high school here through the junior year. He graduated from Beaumont high. He is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Masters, 214 Watson; brother of Helen Worley, 502 W. Gladys, and Shirley Hopper, Morley; and a nephew of Everett Masters Jr., Lonnie Masters, and Roland Stout, all of Sikeston.

His mother, wife and two daughters, live at 2010 E. O'Bear, St. Louis.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 2 MAR 1970 – The 97th Services Squadron ceased to be a squadron Sunday. The unit will be reorganized as a division as a result of current economy measures.

Command-wide, 98 manpower spaces will be saved because of the move. Locally, there will be four manpower space changes. The first sergeant, orderly room clerk, and training man will be used by other base activities, and the services supervisor slot will be delted altogether.

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (FHTNC) March 11-- Marine Sergeant William T. Pearce, husband of the former Miss Christine M. Patterson of Essex, Mo., was awarded the Good Conduct Medal while serving with Second Marine Air Wing, Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C.

He earned the medal for three consecutive years of honorable service with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Fellow down the way dashed home because he heard on the radio that total demand for credit this year will be $67-billion and he wanted to make sure his wife was at home.

Renaissance of Jerusalem

RENAISSANCE OF JERUSALEM is bringing new vitality to Israel's capital city. Famed walls of the Old City are getting a face-lifting and landscaped gardens are planned for extensive adjacent area.

CLEARING RUBBLE is prime part of rebuilding Jewish quarter of Old City. Ancient synagogues are common in the area. Damaged in fighting of 1948 and 1967, they are only now being restored as part of the over-all development plan and renaissance of the city.

GREEK ORTHODOX monk supervises while workmen carve ornate Byzantine designs into a frieze that will decorate a section of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. Work on church will continue at least another year.

Surrounded by conflict, Israel continues to build and rebuild, looking hopefully to a future when tensions will abate. Jerusalem, the capital, is embarked on a revitalization that may rival the historic works of Solomon and Herod. These photos capture some of the flavor of renaissance Jerusalem, where the people attempt to come to terms in a clash of diverse religions, cultures and economies.

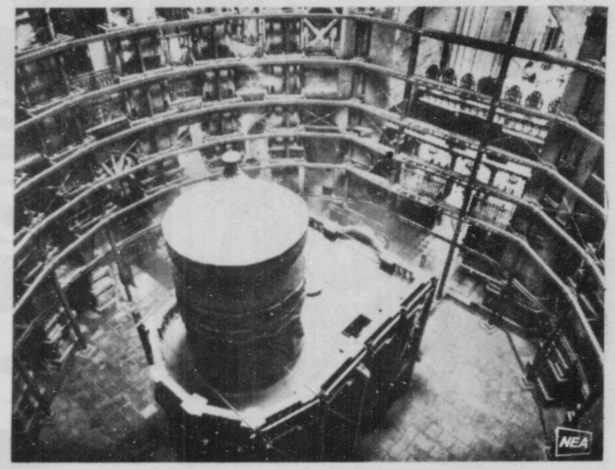

"To really understand this you have to go through a war yourself . . . God forbid!"

JERUSALEM WORKMEN painstakingly form building blocks out of native stone. By law, all construction in the city must be of stone. While it adds to building costs, the practice is partly responsible for giving Jerusalem its unique-looking character.

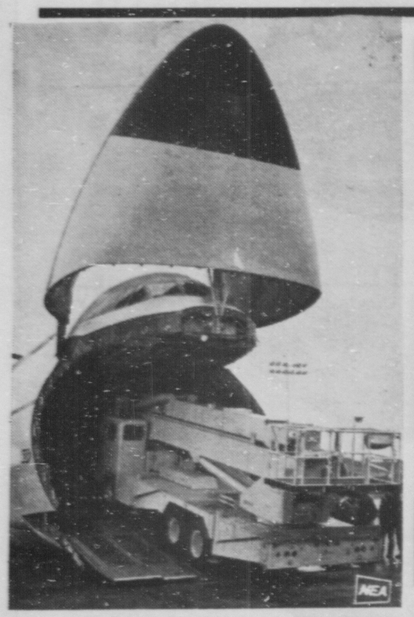

LAND IS CLEARED for dormitory construction on Mt. Scopus. The mountain will accommodate an estimated 1,000 students as well as science departments of Hebrew University. Prior to June, 1967, access to Mt. Scopus was limited and university staff members could not make use of its facilities.

HOLIEST AND MOST IMPORTANT part of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where tomb of Jesus is located, may never see repair. Behind the "temporary" retaining walls and buttresses are cubicles claimed by rival religions. To repair this section would be to destroy the tiny part of the church which is theirs.

SHADE GRABBER — A radio-telephone operator cools it by grabbing a little shade while calling his base camp in the A Shau Valley, Republic of Vietnam. The soldier is a member of the 3d Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry, 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile).

JUST A BITE for the world's largest aircraft, the Air Force's C-5 Galaxy. A 23-ton "cherry-picker" personnel hoist drives into the Lockheed plane and is swallowed up in the cavernous opening. After loading, the landing gear, which had been "kneeled," was raised 34 inches to put the plane at its regular height for take-off.

EARLY MORNING in Okinawa. All is quiet as day breaks over a small fishing village. A quarter of a century has passed since American forces stormed the shores of the Pacific island in the last days of World War II. There are indications that the island may be returned to Japanese control with the United States retaining bases there.

FIRST WATER enters the Kualapuu Reservoir at Molokai, Hawaii. When filled to capacity in a few years, the reservoir will hold nearly a billion and a half gallons of water with a level of 50 feet. A nylon-reinforced butyl rubber lining is just 1/32-inch thick, but will give without tearing under tremendous water weight.

Holly Schmidt, national poster child for Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, demonstrates her gift for establishing instant rapport when she visits U. S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch. Now in her second term as MDAA's "ambassador," the little girl from Saginaw, Michigan, is travelling around the country to win support for the March Against Muscular Dystrophy, now under way in this community. The annual drive raises funds for the massive research sponsored by the Association, as well as for the extensive services it makes available to patients and their families.

A lovely new morning glory with bright rose petals and white throat is named Early Call for its extra-early blooming time, up to a month earlier than other similar kinds.

Two colors, deep rose and white, in a new morning glory call you to witness their early appearance — early for morning glory flowers, that is. Even though they're as large — 4 inches across — as blossoms of those well known varieties, Heavenly Blue and Pearly Gates, they start appearing weeks, sometimes a month, earlier.

These extra-early yet large sized flowers are the chief advantages of the new variety, Early Call by name. Others are its vigorous growth, to 7 feet, and its free flower production.

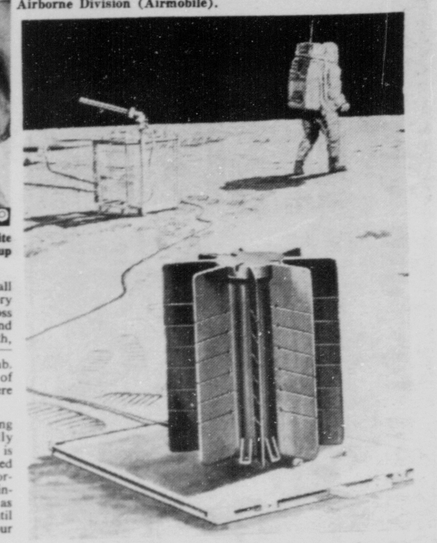

The flower petals are rose, the throats are white for contrast and the big flowers stay open well past their allotted time of high noon.

The vines will not climb by themselves but need help in getting started up a support. Left alone they sprawl on the ground and, surprisingly, make a handsome ground cover — an idea you might be able to use.

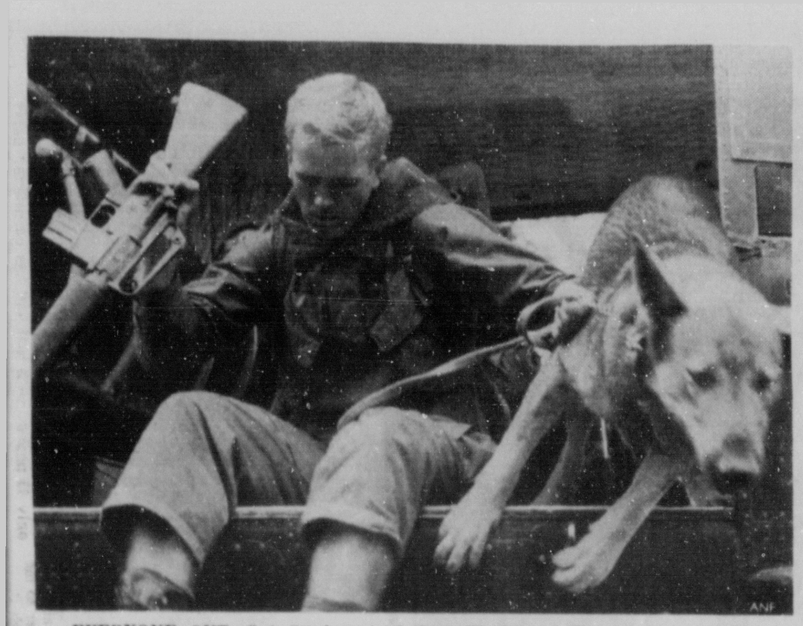

Like all morning glories Early Call should be planted in a sunny spot, near a support, if you expect vines to climb. It puts on a better show of bloom if seeds are sown where plants are to flower.

The other way of handling morning glories, especially where the growing season is short, is to plant a single seed in a 2-inch pot filled with ordinary garden soil. Grow indoors, in a sunny window, as many pots as you wish until frost free time arrives in your area.

Then transplant seedlings without breaking the earth ball around their roots, for morning glories resent root disturbance. Or use compressed peat pots and plant pot and all, first soaking the pot in water so the roots can grow through it.

ATOMIC POWER PLANT will be set up on the moon by Apollo 12 astronauts to power five surface experiments for at least a year, day and night. The nuclear generator, shown in foreground, will use eight pounds of man-made plutonium worth $1 million. Developed by GE for the Atomic Energy Commission, the unit weighs only 45 pounds with fuel and has no moving parts.

EVERYONE OUT—Sp4 Stephen A. Loftus, Waukegan, Ill., and his scout dog, "Shep", make a rapid exit from a helicopter during a landing in the mountains southwest of Hue, Republic of Vietnam. Specialist Loftus and his dog, members of the 42d Scout Dog Platoon, are attached to Company B, 2d Battalion, 502d Infantry, 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile). (U.S. Army Photo by Sp5 E. P. Boice)

If You Were the Judge

Partner Can't Collect For Bank Mistake

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Pincus was a partner in a firm that had become so successful that every time Pincus opened his mouth he put his feats in it. Proud of the firm's accomplishments, he'd continuously bust loose the buttons of his shirt with pride.

Then one day his pride was shattered. The partnership gave out a sizeable check which its bank erroneously marked with those despicable works know to all businessmen, "Insufficient Funds." It was then returned to the depositor.

When Pincus hears about the bank's error, it was as if someone had stabbed him in the back. In fact, he developed an ulcer and sued the bank for causing it.

"By carelessly dishonoring the partnership check," he complained in court, "the bank made me sick at the thought that the partnership's reputation would go down the drain. It struck me like a catastro-stroke."

"If any injury was caused by our error," responded a bank official, "it was to the partnership and not to Pincus. Therefore, while we might be responsible if the partnership got an ulcer, we're not responsible because Pincus got one."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the bank pay for Pincus's ulcer?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the bank's customer was the partnership and not the individual partners. Consequently, while the bank may have breaced an obligation to the partnership by wrongfully dishonoring its check, it did not breach any obligation to Pincus so as to entitle him to collect for his ulcer. (Based upon a 1966 New Mexico Supreme Court decision)

BOOK ON PLUMBING CARE

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. This old saying is never applied to better advantage than in the case of your plumbing. A booklet that tells you how to practice good maintenance, how to make simple repairs and what jobs should be left to experienced plumbing contractors is available for 25 cents and a 6 cent stamp from the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill.

Among other things, the booklet tells you how to repair leaky faucets, the causes and cures of noisy plumbing, how to unplug a drain or stopped- up water closet and how to shut off the water if your pipe develops a leak.

COMPTON APPOINTED

ST. LOUIS — Earl M. Compton has been appointed controller for Mohr Valu Centers of Wetterau Foods, Inc., it was announced today by Irving Brin, president of Mohr Distributors, Inc., a wholly- owned subisidary of Wetterau.

Wetterau acquired Mohr in December in an exchange of stock with three corporations in Rolla and Flat River, Mo., and Litchfield, Ill. Mohr Valu centers in those cities sell general merchandise, including men's and women's clothing, soft goods, shoes, toys, small electrical appliances, automotive accessories, and health and beauty aids.

Compton has been a Wetterau employee since July, 1961, serving successively as accountant in the Hazelwood, Mo., division, manager of the retail accounting department for the division, and, since September, 1967, as director of retail accounting at staff headquarters. Before joining Wetterau, he was assistant controller of the Chase- Park Plaza Hotel.

A native of Belleville, Ill, he graduated from Washington University in 1957 with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He is a nember of the board of directors of the Airport Township Regular Republican Club.

He lives with his wife, the former Ruth Ann Ater of Hecker, Ill., and two daughters, at 811 Riderwood Drive, Hazelwood.
